International Bar Association

The Global Voice of the Legal Profession

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organization of international legal practitioners, bar associations, and law societies. The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world.

With a membership of more than 40,000 individual lawyers and 197 bar associations and law societies spanning all continents, the IBA has considerable expertise in providing assistance to the global legal community.

Grouped into two divisions – the Legal Practice Division and the Public and Professional Interest Division – the IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests. Through the various committees of the divisions, the IBA enables an interchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices, and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of business law around the globe.

The IBA Human Rights Institute (IBAHRI) works across the Association to promote, protect, and enforce human rights under a just rule of law, and to preserve the independence of the judiciary and the legal profession worldwide.

Additionally, the IBA has a wide array of high-quality publications and its world-class conferences provide unrivalled professional development and network-building opportunities for international legal practitioners and professional associates.

The principal aims and objectives of the IBA are:

- To promote an exchange of information between legal associations worldwide.
- To support the independence of the judiciary and the right of lawyers to practise their profession without interference.
- Support of human rights for lawyers worldwide through its Human Rights Institute.

The IBA works towards these objectives through three main areas of activity:

- Services for individual lawyer members through its divisions, committees, and constituents.
- Support for activities of bar associations and, in particular, developing bars.
- Support of human rights for lawyers worldwide.
