The CECL-book series on European company law is closely linked to the bimonthly journal European Company Law ('ECL'), also published by Kluwer Law International. The persons comprising the ECL's editorial board and the editors of the CECL-book series are one and the same. The aims and objectives of CECL can be found at <www.cecl.nl>. The series covers subjects of company law in a broad sense, including insolvency, co-determination and securities law. The editorial board ensures that all parts of this series are well written, of sufficient scientific depth and, at the same time, useful for legal practitioners and academics alike. The board's credo is that international and comparative law should never degenerate into a theoretical l'art pour l'art-exercise, but must always be subservient to the requirement of practical applicability and a further development of the law.

List of Editors

Hanne Søndergaard Birkmose took her PhD in law at the Aarhus School of Business in 2003. The PhD thesis was about regulatory competition in European company law. In 2007, she was appointed associate professor at the Department of Law, Aarhus University. Her research areas include company law – in particular international company law and EU company law – and corporate governance, and she has written several national and international articles in these areas. Recently, she has mainly worked with shareholder activism and the role of institutional shareholders. Hanne Søndergaard Birkmose is a member of the Nordic Company Law Network and the Nordic Corporate Governance Network.

Mette Neville is a professor in Company Law at the Aarhus School of Business and Social Sciences, Aarhus University. Her main research areas are company law and housing law, and she is the author of numerous books and articles on these subjects. Her special interests are corporate governance and small and medium-sized companies. She is, for example, a member of the Danish Financial Council and Chairman of the Disciplinary Committee at OMX Commodities. She participates in many different national and international networks within company law and corporate governance, and is one of the founders of the Strategic Partnership between Aarhus University, Nykredit and PwC on Small and Medium-Sized Companies 'Vidensforum for Små og Mellemstore Virksomheder – www.vidensforum.dk' Mette Neville has also served on various preparatory committees on law, for instance the Danish Committee for Financial Supervisory Structure under the Danish Ministry of Economic and Business Affairs. She has also served as a Danish member of legal scholar networks in connection with EU studies, such as the European Commission Study on the operation and the impacts of the Statute for a European Company (SE). She is responsible for the strategic board programme at Aarhus University.

Karsten Engsig Sørensen is a professor and PhD coordinator at the Department of Law, Aarhus University. He holds a Danish law degree, a PhD (on EU company law), and a Danish Dr. Jur. (on joint ventures). He also has an LLM from the University of Exeter. His research is mainly focused on EU law and company law, and in these areas, he has published several books and articles in both Danish and English. Additionally, he has been the editor of several books on company law, EU law and WTO law appearing on, inter alia, Kluwer Law International and Cambridge University Press. He is one of the two editors of the SSRN e-journal Nordic and European Company Law, and a member of the Nordic Network for Company Law.

List of Contributors

Paul Krüger Andersen is a professor of company law at the Department of Law, School of Business and Social Sciences, Aarhus University. He holds a PhD in marketing law from 1976 and a Dr. Jur. from 1997 (studies in Danish corporate group law). He is the co-founder of the Nordic Network for Company Law. In 1999, he co-founded and has since been the editor of the Nordic Journal of Company Law (Nordisk Tidsskrift for Selskabsret). Since 2000, he has been a member of the board of the Danish Association of Corporate Governance (DACP). In 2003, he was a legal adviser for the Latvian Companies Register. He is a member of the ECGI (European Corporate Governance Institute, Brussels). Since 2007, he has been Chairman of the European Company Law Group, which aims to create a European Model Company Act. He is the author and co-author of several textbooks and numerous articles on private law, marketing law, company law and securities law.

Jan Andersson is a professor in private law, in particular business organisations, at Stockholm University. Previously, he has been a professor in commercial law at Jönköping International Business School (JIBS) in Sweden and before that professor in private law at the Faculty of Law, University of Bergen, Norway. He has a Swedish Dr. Jur. from Uppsala University and two LLM (Lund and Umeå). Since the early days of his research career, his main interest has been corporate law and other areas closely connected to it such as law & economics and corporate governance. He has a wide range of publications in Swedish and English. He is also a member of the Nordic Network for Company Law.

Linn Anker-Sørensen is a research assistant in the project 'Sustainable Companies' at the University of Oslo, Faculty of Law. She graduated from law school in 2009. Her master thesis concerning the transposition of the SE in Norwegian Company Law, and questioning whether the European Company Statute could lead to regulatory competition among Member States is published in the International and Comparative Corporate Law Journal. Her special interests are corporate groups in the EU and how these are to be regulated, and also harmonisation of EU company law.

Dorthe Kristensen Balshøj is a research assistant within Company Law at the Department of Law, School of Business and Social Sciences, Aarhus University. In October 2013, she will commence as a PhD student within the areas of Public Procurement Law and Competition Law.

Pierre-Henri Conac is a professor of Commercial and Company Law at the University of Luxembourg. His research areas deal principally with securities law, company law, and comparative law in these fields. He has been a member of several working groups in these areas, including the EU Commission-appointed Reflection Group on the Future of EU Company Law of 2011 (http://ec.europa.eu/internal_market/company/modern) and the European Model Company Act (<http://law.au.dk/emca>). He participates regularly in conferences in Europe and internationally. He is the managing editor of the Revue des Sociétés (Dalloz), France's oldest corporate law review, and is one of the editors of the European Company and Financial Law Review (www.degruyter.com/ecfr).

Guido Ferrarini is a professor of Business Law and Capital Markets Law at the University of Genoa, Department of Law, and the Director of the Centre for Law and Finance. He holds a J. D. (University of Genoa, 1972), an LLM (Yale Law School, 1978) and a Dr. Jur. (h.c., Ghent University, 2009). He is a founder, director and fellow of the European Corporate Governance Institute (ECGI), Brussels. He was a member of the Board of Trustees, International Accounting Standards Committee (IASC) and an independent director at several Italian blue-chip companies. He was an advisor to the Draghi Commission on Financial Markets Law Reform, to Consob (the Italian Securities Commission) and to the Corporate Governance Committee of the Italian Stock Exchange. He has held Visiting Professor positions at several universities in Europe (Bonn, Frankfurt, Ghent, Hamburg, LSE, UCL, Tilburg and Duisenberg) and in the US (Columbia, NYU and Stanford), teaching courses on comparative corporate governance and financial regulation. He is the author of many articles in the fields of financial law, corporate law and business law, and editor of several books, including the recent Financial Regulation and Supervision: A Post-crisis Analysis (with E. Wymeersch and K. Hopt).

Carsten Gerner-Beuerle is a senior lecturer at the Law Department of the London School of Economics and Political Science. He holds degrees in law from Humboldt University Berlin (PhD) and the University of Minnesota (LLM) and in economics from the University of London (MSc). He is also admitted to the bar in Germany. His main research interests are in comparative, international, and European company law and securities regulation and in law and economics. He also worked as an expert in company law and financial regulation on a study for the European Commission on directors' duties and a study for the European Parliament on insurance law.

Jesper Lau Hansen worked as a lawyer before joining the University of Copenhagen, where he is a professor of financial markets law. His doctorate thesis in 2001 concerned securities regulation and he has primarily worked within this field and company law with a particular interest for European and Nordic perspectives. He holds an LLM from Cambridge University and serves on the editorial board of the Journal of Corporate Law Studies, as well as the pan-Nordic Journal of Company Law (Tidsskrift for Selskabsret). He has served on various Danish committees, including the committee that prepared the current Companies Act of 2009, and European committees, notably the Reflection Group on the future of EU company law that advised the European Commission on its 2012 Action Plan. He is currently an academic member of the Securities and Markets Stakeholder Group connected to ESMA.

Masato Hisatake is a professorial fellow at the Department of Business Law at Tilburg University in the Netherlands. He is also a visiting professor at Tohoku University in Japan.

Carolyn Langes is an academic assistant of Christoph Teichmann at the University of Würzburg at the chair for civil law, German and European commercial and company law. She is currently writing her PhD thesis under his supervision. Her research focuses on German and European Company law, in particular with regard to gender issues in the area of company law.

Joseph A. McCahery is a professor of International Economic Law at Tilburg University School of Law. Before coming to Tilburg, he taught at the University of Amsterdam and Warwick University. He is also a Programme Director of Finance and Law at the Duisenberg School of Finance in Amsterdam. He has been an advisor to several governments, international institutions and corporations. McCahery has worked in the area of banking, comparative corporate governance, law and finance, and securities regulation. He has many publications in top law and finance journals and has written or co-edited ten books, including Hedge Fund Activism, Private Equity and Governance (Oxford University Press, forthcoming). He obtained his PhD from Warwick University in 1998.

Wolf-Georg Ringe is a professor of International Commercial Law at Copenhagen Business School (CBS) and the University of Oxford. He is an affiliate member of the Center for Corporate Governance at CBS, an associate member of the Oxford-Man Institute of Quantitative Finance and a Research Fellow of the Institute of European and Comparative Law at the University of Oxford. Wolf-Georg Ringe has held numerous visiting positions at universities worldwide, inter alia a visiting professorship at Columbia Law School, New York. As part of a European-wide consortium, he regularly advises the European Parliament on issues of European company law. His current research interests are in the general area of Law and Finance, (Comparative) Corporate Governance, Financial Regulation and the Conflict of Laws.

Edmund-Philipp Schuster is a lecturer at the Law Department of the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Prior to joining LSE, he practised corporate law with Baker & McKenzie LLP in London and Vienna and worked for the Austrian Takeover Commission. He holds law degrees from the University of Vienna and the LSE. His primary research areas are corporate law and takeover regulation, including the harmonisation of company law at the European level, as well as law and finance. He also worked as a company law expert on an EU project providing pre-accession technical assistance to the Republic of Albania and a study for the European Commission on directors' duties.

Beate Sjäffjell is a professor and Dr. Juris at the University of Oslo, Faculty of Law. She is the head of the research group Companies, Markets, Society and the Environment at the Faculty of Law in Oslo, and of the international research project Sustainable Companies (2010-2013). She has published extensively on EU company and securities law and the integration of sustainable development. Many of her papers are available at <http://ssrn.com/author=375947>. She is a member of the steering group of the Nordic Company Law Network.

Christoph Teichmann is a professor at the University of Würzburg. He teaches civil law, and German and European commercial and company law. His academic research focuses on German and European Company Law, comparative company law, the European freedom of establishment and co-determination issues.

Maria Cristina Ungureanu is a consultant in corporate governance (Milan), research fellow at the Centre for Law and Finance (Genoa), member of the European Corporate Governance Institute (Brussels). Prior to this, she worked in corporate and investor consulting in London and Johannesburg. Her specialties include corporate governance, executive remuneration, shareholder activism, financial services regulation and investor relations. She holds a bachelor degree in Economics, a masters degree in Business Administration and a PhD in Finance from the University of Iasi, Romania. She is the author of several papers on executive remuneration, corporate governance and European financial integration and is often invited to international conferences and seminars to present these topics.

Christoph van der Elst is a professor of Business Law and Economics at Tilburg University and at Ghent University, and he is an ECGI Research Associate. He holds both a master in law and a master in economics and has a PhD in economics (Ghent University). He is a member of the Belgian Bar (Cottyn), a member of the disciplinary court for the Belgian registered auditors and chairman of the professional examination commission of registered auditors. His research interests are corporate governance, (economic analysis of) company law and corporate risk management, and in these areas he has published in both national and international journals and books.

Erik P.M. Vermeulen is a professor of Business and Financial Law at Tilburg University and Tilburg Law and Economics Center (TILEC). He is also a Senior Counsel Corporate/Vice President at Group Legal Department of Philips in the Netherlands. He has worked on projects related to corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions, corporate venturing and corporate venture capital. Corporate governance and corporate venturing are also recurring themes in his lectures in the International Business Law Program at Tilburg University (of which he is the Director). He has also lectured these topics at Ghent University in Belgium, Pontificia Universidad Javeriana and Universidad Icesi in Colombia, Interdisciplinary Center (IDC) Herzliya in Israel, Kyushu University in Japan, TIASNimbas Business School, Brabant Center for Entrepreneurship and Duisenberg School of Finance in the Netherlands. Professor Vermeulen has written extensively in the area of corporate and partnership law, corporate governance, joint ventures, venture capital and innovation. His papers and books have been widely published by leading publishers, such as Oxford University Press and Kluwer Law International. He has worked on projects for national and international organisations, such as the European Commission, OECD, and the Dutch Development Finance Institution, concerning financial and venture capital markets, corporate law and corporate governance.
