FOREWORD

Welcome to the 48th edition of PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE, America's first and only compendium of official, FDA-approved prescription drug labeling. For authoritative information on current indications and prescribing guidelines, there is no better source.

This year's edition of PDR provides the latest available information on nearly 3,000 specific pharmaceutical products, including 174 completely new listings. Through the Product Name Index, which lists these drugs by both brand and generic name, you can locate prescribing information on nearly every therapeutic entity in general use today.

PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE is published annually by Medical Economics Data in cooperation with participating manufacturers. PDR is the cornerstone in a library of drug references that includes:

- PDR Guide to Drug Interactions•Side Effects•Indications™
- PDR For Nonprescription Drugs®
- PDR For Ophthalmology®

Data from these printed references is also available in a variety of electronic formats:

- Pocket PDR™ — A handheld personal database of key sections from each prescription-drug listing in PDR.
- PDR Library on CD-ROM™ — Complete product information from all PDR volumes on one convenient disc, for use on PC networks and individual PCs.
- PDR Drug Interactions/Side Effects/Indications Diskettes™ — A powerful screening program for patient regimens of up to 20 drugs.
- PDR Database Tapes — A preformatted text file suitable for integration in large mainframe-based information systems.

For more information on any of these products, please call, toll-free, 1-800-232-7379 or fax 201-573-4956.

Under the federal Food, Drug & Cosmetics (FD&C) Act, a drug approved for marketing may be labeled, promoted, and advertised by the manufacturer for only those uses for which the drug's safety and effectiveness have been established. The Code of Federal Regulations 201.100(d)(1) pertaining to labeling for prescription products requires that for PDR content "indications, effects, dosages, routes, methods, and frequency and duration of administration and any relevant warnings, hazards, contraindications, side effects, and precautions" must be in the "same language and emphasis" as the approved labeling for the products. FDA regards the words same language and emphasis as requiring VERBATIM use of the approved labeling providing such information. Furthermore, information that is emphasized in the approved labeling by the use of type set in a box, or in capitals, boldface, or italics, must be given the same emphasis in PDR.

The FDA has also stated that the FD&C Act "does not, however, limit the manner in which a physician may use an approved drug. Once a product has been approved for marketing, a physician may prescribe it for uses or in treatment regimens or patient populations that are not included in approved labeling." The FDA also observes that "accepted medical practice" often includes drug use that is not reflected in approved drug labeling. For products that do not have official package circulars, the publisher has emphasized the necessity of describing such products comprehensively, so that physicians can have access to all information essential for intelligent and informed decision making.

The function of the publisher is the compilation, organization, and distribution of this information. Each product description has been prepared by the manufacturer, and edited and approved by the manufacturer's medical department, medical director, and/or medical consultant. In organizing and presenting the material in PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE, the publisher does not warrant or guarantee any of the products described, or perform any independent analysis in connection with any of the product information contained herein. PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE does not assume, and expressly disclaims, any obligation to obtain and include any information other than that provided to it by the manufacturer. It should be understood that by making this material available the publisher is not advocating the use of any product described herein, nor is the publisher responsible for misuse of a product due to typographical error. Additional information on any product may be obtained from the manufacturer.
