

Law Enforcement Ethics

CLASSIC AND CONTEMPORARY ISSUES

Brian D. Fitch
EDITOR

Los Angeles | London | New Delhi
Singapore | Washington DC

FOR INFORMATION:

SAGE Publications, Inc.
2455 Teller Road
Thousand Oaks, California 91320
E-mail: order@sagepub.com

SAGE Publications Ltd.
1 Oliver's Yard
55 City Road
London EC1Y 1SP
United Kingdom

SAGE Publications India Pvt. Ltd.
B 1/1 Mohan Cooperative Industrial Area
Mathura Road, New Delhi 110 044
India

SAGE Publications Asia-Pacific Pte. Ltd.
3 Church Street
#10-04 Samsung Hub
Singapore 049483

---

Acquisitions Editor: Jerry Westby
Associate Editor: MaryAnn Vail
Editorial Assistant: Nichole O'Grady
Production Editor: Laura Barrett
Copy Editor: Matthew Sullivan
Typesetter: C&M Digitals (P) Ltd.
Proofreader: Eleni Georgiou
Indexer: Judy Hunt
Cover Designer: Michael Dubowe
Marketing Manager: Terra Schultz
Permissions Editor: Jennifer Barron

Copyright © 2014 by SAGE Publications, Inc.

---

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher.

Printed in the United States of America

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Fitch, Brian D.

Law enforcement ethics : classic and contemporary issues / Brian D. Fitch.

p. cm.
Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-4522-5817-1 (pbk.)

1. Law enforcement—Moral and ethical aspects—United States. 2. Police ethics—United States. 3. Police misconduct—United States. 4. Police training—Moral and ethical aspects—United States. I. Title.

HV7924.F576 2014

174'.936323—dc23      2012041595

This book is printed on acid-free paper.

13 14 15 16 17 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Law Enforcement Ethics

Preface

---

In the United States, as well as in other democratic societies, police officers are accorded an extraordinary set of powers and responsibilities available to few others (Chappel & Piquero, 2004; Kappeler, Sluder, & Alpert, 1998). Police officers have the power to search and seize personal property, to detain and make arrests, and to apply varying levels of coercive force, up to and including deadly force, in the pursuit of their legal mandates. While police officers may have considerably more authority and, by extension, more opportunities to abuse that authority, there is no evidence to suggest that law enforcement professionals are any better equipped than the general public to make moral decisions (Cohen & Feldberg, 1991). Moreover, evidence suggests that law enforcement professionals are not necessarily any less likely to commit criminal offenses than the average citizen—findings that are further complicated by the fact that police officers are, for the most part, free to come and go with little, if any, oversight or supervision (Kappeler et al., 1998).

Nonetheless, society has tremendous expectations of law enforcement and very low tolerance for unethical behavior (Boles, 1995). Officers are expected to adhere to a strict and unwavering code of ethics and to conduct themselves accordingly at all times, both on and off duty. As a result, law enforcement agencies face serious implications when unethical behavior or criminal activities are exposed, including damaged public trust, jeopardized criminal investigations, and costly, often unnecessary, litigation (Dunn & Caceres, 2010; Kappeler et al., 1998). Nonetheless, it seems that one does not have to look very far these days to find myriad examples of police misconduct, corruption, and abuse in the media. Rodney King, Abner Louima, Antoinette Frank, and, most recently, Kelly Thomas—a schizophrenic homeless man who was bludgeoned to death with the butt of a Taser at a bus stop in the city of Fullerton, California—have become household names.

Indeed, the harm caused by the increasing number of high-profile cases of abuse, misconduct, and corruption may be responsible for the growing number of internal affairs units found in many large law enforcement agencies, whose role it is to investigate citizen complaints, as well as potential violations of department rules identified by supervisors (Cohen & Feldberg, 1991). While there is a lack of data regarding the scope of law enforcement misconduct, it is likely that virtually every police agency has witnessed some form of corruption, abuse, or scandal (McCafferty, Sourynal, & McCafferty, 1998). Although scholars, educators, and practitioners often disagree on the precise mix of factors responsible for misconduct, it is probably safe to assume that law enforcement corruption and abuse are influenced by a number of individual, collective, contextual, and organizational variables, some of which are more difficult to study and address than others. This collection of essays is the result of the collaborative efforts of a diverse taskforce with a vested interest in law enforcement ethics. The contributors represent practitioners from local, state, and federal law enforcement agencies; faculty from university departments, including criminal justice, political science, psychology, sociology, medicine, and law; professional oversight bodies; and centers devoted to the study and teaching of ethics.

This volume comprises 18 chapters, organized around four broad categories. Part I, Ethical Foundations, contains five chapters. In Chapter 1, J. J. Klaver provides an overview of law enforcement ethics. The author explores the individual, organizational, and environmental factors that may contribute to law enforcement misconduct. The issues of organizational structure, departmental policies and procedures, social influences, and organizational culture and their relationships to misconduct are also considered. Chapter 2 highlights the need for proper psychological screening of law enforcement applicants. Ana Gamez and Gary Collins discuss the importance of a partnership between the evaluating psychologists and agency management in selecting potential law enforcement candidates. Chapter 3, presented by Brian D. Fitch, Christine H. Jones, and Luann P. Pannell, argues for a new model of law enforcement ethics training. This includes a discussion of many of the problems associated with traditional lecture-based models of instruction, as well as strategies for incorporating the latest findings from the field of adult education to enhance learning, memory, and retention. In Chapter 4, Brian D. Fitch, Randy B. Means, and Gregory Seidel investigate the management of police ethics. The authors outline the need for clear policy, effective supervision, and proper consequences in influencing officer behavior. The final chapter in this section considers issues of policy, supervision, and oversight in the United Kingdom's 43 police services. Attilio R. Grandani discusses the minimum international standards affecting the United Kingdom's statutes and structures, Police and Criminal Evidence (PACE) Act 1984, inspections, audits, and the current complaint system.

Part II, Ethical Perspectives, is composed of five chapters. In Chapter 6, Theron L. Bowman and Daniel T. Primoizic offer a forensic examination of the "will" by charting the internal pathology of morality and irrationality. This includes a study of the classic philosophical arguments presented by Aristotle, as well as those offered by Robert J. Steinberg, as a strategy for attenuating police misconduct. Chapter 7 confronts the ways officers' values, beliefs, and behaviors are influenced by social learning, including beliefs about misconduct. Brian D. Fitch and Christine H. Jones discuss the essential propositions of social learning theory, as well as how these tenets function as a general theory of police misconduct. In Chapter 8, Aaron D. Conley and Bryon G. Gustafson address fundamental questions about group failings and organizational and institutional responses to those failures. This includes questions about how standards of behavior come to be and what law enforcement organizations should do when institutional standards are violated. Chapter 9, written by Paul T. Zipper and Tina Adams, presents the psychology of marginality. The authors investigate the emotional, psychological, and organizational causes of marginality, while highlighting the importance of early intervention by management and mental health professionals in addressing marginal behavior in all its forms. Chapter 10 outlines the need for greater awareness of the causes, symptoms, and treatment of PTSD among members of the law enforcement community. Amir Hamidi and Patrick Koga examine the symptoms and onset of PTSD, including the neurophysiological correlates of PTSD, biological responses to fear, and sub-clinical PTSD. The chapter also includes an investigation of current treatments available for PTSD, including cognitive processing therapy (CPT) and mindfulness-based stress reduction (MBSR).

Part III, Ethical Professionalism, presents four chapters. In Chapter 11, Kevin A. Elliott and Jocelyn M. Pollock take an in-depth look at the ethics of force. This includes an examination of pertinent case law, policy, and training, as well as the damage to public trust caused by highly publicized incidents. Chapter 12 focuses on the use of trickery and deceit in criminal interrogations. James L. Ruffin explores the effects of case law—more specifically, the U.S. Supreme Court case of Miranda v. Arizona (1966)—on interrogation practices, as well as arguments commonly found in the courts, social sciences, and philosophy. The chapter includes a discussion on the emergence of Investigative Interviewing in the United Kingdom and other democratic nations, while concluding with an overview of research on the attitudes of American police officers toward the use of trickery and deceit. Chapter 13, authored by Alexandro Villanueva, explores the question of why law enforcement officers cheat in a variety of settings, including promotional exams. The chapter offers a typology of cheating and a brief theoretical background of the civil service system, and concludes with recommendations to address cheating, while creating more fair and equitable standards throughout the promotional process. In Chapter 14, Bernard E. Harcourt confronts the problem of racial profiling among American law enforcement agencies by examining the arrest of Henry Louis Gates Jr. and the rationale behind racial profiling. He further offers strategies to combat this phenomenon while increasing the overall effectiveness of law enforcement.

Part IV, Ethical Challenges, features four chapters on emerging issues facing today's law enforcement leaders. Chapter 15 looks at how leadership, ethics, professionalism, and accountability have assumed prominent roles in academic, government, and public discourse since the events of 9/11.

Presented by Kelly W. Sundberg, this chapter focuses on the increasing importance of professionalism and ethical policing, especially among federal agencies, while outlining many of the challenges associated with recruiting highly skilled officers capable of adapting to diverse new political mandates. In Chapter 16, Cyndi Banks takes a penetrating look at the concept of democratic policing in three developing nations: The Philippines, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone. Topics of discussion include the ways norms affect “best practices,” how local policing customs continue to survive into the postcolonial period, and challenges associated with transforming current models into modern democratic policing practices. Chapter 17 discusses the destructive consequences of off-duty misconduct to officers, their agencies, and the public at large. The author, David Massey, explores the implications of stress, culture, and other factors associated with misconduct, as well as offers suggestions about what leaders can do to proactively address the problem in our modern, media-driven age. Chapter 18, written by Jarret Lovell, explores the impact of citizen journalism and social media on contemporary policing. The author outlines the ways changes in media technology bring new information about police practices to the public sphere, often leading to strategic and organizational change. This includes a discussion of how contemporary law enforcement must learn to work with citizen journalists, while recognizing the technology of social media as a positive force for enhanced police professionalism and accountability.

References

---

- Boles, M. L. (1995). Institutionalizing ethics for the next century (Senior Leadership Program Research Papers 3). Tallahassee: Florida Department of Law Enforcement.
- Chappel, A. T., & Piquero, A. R. (2004). Applying social learning theory to police misconduct. Deviant Behavior, 25(2), 89–108.
- Cohen, H. S., & Feldberg, M. (1991). Power and restraint: The moral dimension of police work. Westport, CT: Praeger.
- Dunn, A., & Caceres, P. J. (2010, Spring). Constructing a better estimate of police misconduct. Policy Matters Journal, 10–16.
- Kappeler, V. E., Sluder, R. D., & Alpert, G. P. (1998). Force of deviance: Understanding the dark side of policing (2nd ed.). Long Grove, IL: Waveland Press.
- McCafferty, F. L., Souryal, S., & McCafferty, M. A. (1998). The corruption process of a law enforcement officer: A paradigm of occupational stress and deviancy. Journal of the American Academy of Psychiatry and Law, 26(3), 433–458.

Brief Contents ---

Preface	xvii
PART ONE: ETHICAL FOUNDATIONS	1
Chapter 1 Law Enforcement Ethics and Misconduct: An Introduction J. J. Klaver	3
Chapter 2 Psychological Evaluations of Law Enforcement Applicants: The Search for Ethical Officers Ana M. Gamez and Gary G. Collins	29
Chapter 3 Rhetoric Versus Reality: Why Ethics Training Fails—and How to Fix It Brian D. Fitch, Christine H. Jones, and Luann P. Pannell	49
Chapter 4 The Role of Supervision in Motivating and Maintaining a Culture of Ethics Brian D. Fitch, Randy B. Means and Greg Seidel	75
Chapter 5 Ethics and Accountability: Policy and Oversight in the United Kingdom Attilio R. Grandani	99
PART TWO: ETHICAL PERSPECTIVES	119
Chapter 6 Police Misconduct and Moral Crimes Against Self: A Philosophical Analysis Theron L. Bowman and Daniel T. Primožic	121
Chapter 7 Bad Apple or Bad Barrel: Social Learning Theory as a Paradigm for Understanding Law Enforcement Misconduct Brian D. Fitch and Christine H. Jones	139
Chapter 8 Ethics, Enforcement, and the Prospect of Professionalism Aaron D. Conley and Bryon G. Gustafson	159
Chapter 9 The Psychology of Marginality: The Role of Subculture in Shaping, Developing, and Reinforcing Work Ethic Paul T. Zipper and Tina Adams	181

Chapter 10 Neurophysiological Correlates of Misconduct in Law Enforcement Officers With Subclinical Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder Amir Hamidi and Patrick M. Koga	205
PART THREE: ETHICAL PROFESSIONALISM	229
Chapter 11 The Ethics of Force: Duty, Principle, and Morality Kevin A. Elliott and Joycelyn M. Pollock	231
Chapter 12 Law Enforcement Interrogations: An Ethical Perspective James L. Ruffin	257
Chapter 13 Police Exams and Cheating: The Ultimate Test of Ethics Alexandro Villanueva	277
Chapter 14 Henry Louis Gates and Racial Profiling: What's the Problem? Bernard E. Harcourt	295
PART FOUR: ETHICAL CHALLENGES	325
Chapter 15 Leading Within the Era of Superagencies: Recruiting, Educating, Inspiring, and Retaining the Post-9/11 Generation of Officers Kelly W. Sundberg	327
Chapter 16 Implementing Democratic Policing Reform: Challenges and Constraints in Three Developing Countries Cyndi Banks	347
Chapter 17 The Tarnished Badge: Police Off-Duty Misconduct David Massey	385
Chapter 18 Public Information in the Age of YouTube: Citizen Journalism and the Expanding Scope of Police Accountability Jarret Lovell	405
Index	423
About the Authors	457

Detailed Table of Contents

---

Preface	xvii
PART ONE: ETHICAL FOUNDATIONS	1
Chapter 1 Law Enforcement Ethics and Misconduct: An Introduction	3
J. J. Klaver
The Study of Law Enforcement Misconduct	5
A Historical Perspective	7
The Study of Organizational Ethics	8
Law Enforcement Misconduct	9
Defining Misconduct	11
Organizational Elements and Control	13
Recruitment and Screening	14
Preservice and In-Service Training	15
Policies and Practices	16
Accountability	17
Organizational Ethics and Influences	17
Organizational Policies and Procedures	19
Ethics Training	20
Organizational Leadership	21
Summary	23
Discussion Questions	24
References	24
Chapter 2 Psychological Evaluations of Law Enforcement
Applicants: The Search for Ethical Officers	29
Ana M. Gamez and Gary G. Collins
Ethics in Law Enforcement	30
Selection and Hiring Trends	31
Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA) 1990	33
The Role of Personality and Psychological Screenings
in the Workplace	33

Use of Personality Instruments in Suitability Evaluations	35
Minnesota Multiphasic Personality
Inventory-Revised (MMPI-2)	36
Personality Assessment Inventory (PAI)	37
California Personality Inventory (CPI)	37
NEO Personality Inventory-Revised (NEO-PI-R)	38
Sixteen Personality Factor Questionnaire—Fifth
Edition (16 PF)	38
Inwald Personality Inventory (IPI)	39
Pre-Employment Interviews	39
Focusing on Ethical Standards	41
Summary	42
Discussion Questions	43
References	43
Chapter 3 Rhetoric Versus Reality: Why Ethics Training
Fails—and How to Fix It	49
Brian D. Fitch, Christine H. Jones, and Luann P. Pannell
Pedagogy and Practices of Law Enforcement Training	50
Problems With the Didactic Model	52
Active Learning	54
Role of the Facilitator	55
Role of the Student	57
Role of Content	57
Role of Context	59
Role of Affect	60
Role of Assessment	61
The Need for a New Model of Training	62
Realigning Law Enforcement Ethics Training
With Active Learning	62
Benchmarks of Ethical Policing	64
Summary	65
Reduce or Eliminate Lecture	66
Incorporate Active Learning Strategies	66
Emphasize Prior Learning	66
Connect With the “Real World”	67
Serve as Facilitator	67
Integrate Affect	67
Model Behavior	68
Discussion Questions	68
References	69
Chapter 4 The Role of Supervision in Motivating and
Maintaining a Culture of Ethics	75
Brian D. Fitch, Randolph B. Means, and Greg Seidel
Introduction	76

Policy	77
Rules Versus Guidelines	78
Supervision	80
Performance Counseling	81
Investigate the Problem	82
Describe the Required Performance	82
Outline the Reasons	83
Discuss the Consequences	83
Consistency	84
Fairness	84
Legal Requirements	85
Due Process	86
Proportionality	86
Timeliness	87
Employee Motivation	88
Reward Systems	89
Common Mistakes	91
Perception	91
Contingency	91
Timing	91
Consistency	91
Recognition	92
Knowledge	92
Human Relations Skills	93
Physical Preparedness	93
Tactical Skills	93
Reliability	93
Attitude	93
Productivity	93
Quality	94
Education	94
Community Involvement	94
Summary	94
Discussion Questions	95
References	95
 Chapter 5 Ethics and Accountability: Policy and Oversight in the United Kingdom	 99
Attilio R. Grandani
The Importance of Accountability	100
Public Trust	101
International Standards	102
Accountability and Bureaucracy	103
United Kingdom Statutes and Structures	104
The Tripartite Structure	105

Accountability and Guidance 1984	106
Consultation and Monitoring	107
Inspections of Constabulary	108
Audit Commission	109
Best Value Program	109
Minimum Standards	110
Fiscal Responsibility	111
Organizational Responsibility	111
Officer Accountability	112
Complaints System	113
Multilateral Agreement	114
Agency Monitoring	115
General Populace	115
Summary	116
References	117
 PART TWO: ETHICAL PERSPECTIVES	 119
Chapter 6 Police Misconduct and Moral Crimes Against Self:
A Philosophical Analysis	121
Theron L. Bowman and Daniel T. Primozić
An Underexamined Cause of Police Misconduct	123
Aristotle's Analysis of Weakness of Will	124
Other Possible Causes of Weakness of Will	127
Descartes and the Problem of Overbearing Strength of Will	127
Teaching Our Will to Listen to Reason	129
The Ethically Constrained Robot	131
The Forensics of Crimes Against Self in the Inner City	132
Summary	134
Discussion Questions	136
References	137
 Chapter 7 Bad Apple or Bad Barrel: Social Learning Theory as a
Paradigm for Understanding Law Enforcement Misconduct	139
Brian D. Fitch and Christine H. Jones
Social Learning Theory	141
Differential Association-Reinforcement Theory
of Criminal Behavior	143
Application	145
Law Enforcement Culture	146
Differential Association	147
Differential Rewards	148
Imitation	148
Definitions	149
Creating a Culture of Excellence	151
Differential Association	151
Differential Reinforcement	152

Imitation	152
Definitions	153
Summary	154
Discussion Questions	155
References	155
Chapter 8 Ethics, Enforcement, and the Prospect of Professionalism	159
Aaron D. Conley and Bryon G. Gustafson
Social Foundations	160
Ethics and Enforcement	161
Foundations of Western Ethics	162
Waypoints for Law Enforcement Ethics	166
Reform Efforts	167
Theory, Practice, and Lived Reality	168
Shifts in Normative Sources of Morality and Authority	170
Solutions	172
Prospects for Professionalism	176
Summary	176
Discussion Questions	177
References	177
Chapter 9 The Psychology of Marginality: The Role of Subculture in Shaping, Developing, and Reinforcing Work Ethic	181
Paul Zipper and Tina Adams
The Officer: Candidacy and Fitness for Duty	182
Marginality	184
The Ethics of Marginality	184
Supervisor–Subordinate Relationships	186
Marginal Behavior and Ethical Dilemmas	187
A Marginal Dilemma	189
Marginality in the Supervisor	189
Potential Stressors Leading to Marginal Behavior	190
High-Stakes Consequences for Reporting	191
Evidence-Based Solutions	193
The Selection Process	193
Use of Policies, Procedures, and Resources to Address the Problem of Marginality	194
Employee Assistance Program	194
The Role of Supervision	195
Ombudsman	196
The Union	196
Accountability of Senior Leaders	197
The Need for Ongoing Dialogue and Resolution	198
Summary	198
Discussion Questions	199
References	200

Chapter 10 Neurophysiological Correlates of Misconduct in Law Enforcement Officers With Subclinical Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder	205
Amir M. Hamidi and Patrick M. Koga
Epidemiological Considerations of PTSD in Law Enforcement	206
Organizational Stressors in Law Enforcement in the United States and Abroad	209
Clinical and Subclinical PTSD	210
Anger and Hostility	211
Neurophysiological Correlates of PTSD	211
Biological Responses to Fear	212
Subclinical PTSD	214
Racial, Ethnic, Cultural, and Gender Determinants of PTSD	216
Gender Variables	217
Organizational Stress and Police Culture	218
PTSD as a Cognitive Failure and Cognitive Processing Therapy (CPT)	219
Mindfulness-Based Mind Fitness Training (MMFT)	222
Summary	222
Discussion Questions	224
References	224
 PART THREE: ETHICAL PROFESSIONALISM	 229
Chapter 11 The Ethics of Force: Duty, Principle, and Morality	231
Kevin A. Elliot and Joycelyn M. Pollock
Introduction	232
The Role of Law Enforcement	234
Parameters of Force	234
Case Law	235
Force Policy and Force Continuum	237
Less-Lethal Technologies	237
Factors Associated With Use of Force	238
Situational Factors	238
Race/Ethnicity	239
Training	240
The Military Model	241
Police Subculture	242
Individual Factors	243
Psychophysiology and Force Science	244
Ethical Justifications for Use of Force	246
Summary	248
Training	249
Police Subculture	249
Community Policing	249

Ethics Indoctrination	250
Force Science	250
Discussion Questions	250
References	251
Chapter 12 Law Enforcement Interrogations: An Ethical Perspective	257
James L. Ruffin
Miranda and the New Psychology of Interrogation	259
The Courts	260
The Social Scientists	262
The Philosophers	262
The English Model of Investigative Interviewing	263
The Principles of Investigative Interviewing	265
Police Philosophies and Practices	266
Law Enforcement Attitudes on Deceit and Trickery	268
Research on Law Enforcement Attitudes	269
Summary	271
Discussion Questions	272
References	273
Chapter 13 Police Exams and Cheating: The Ultimate Test of Ethics	277
Alexandro Villanueva
A Rudimentary Typology	278
A Note of Caution	279
Theoretical Background	280
Max Weber and Bureaucracy	281
When Loyalties Conflict	283
Whistleblowers Anonymous	284
Police Patronage and Its Legacy	286
Organizational Learning	286
Summary	288
Discussion Questions	290
References	290
Chapter 14 Henry Louis Gates and Racial Profiling:
What's the Problem?	295
Bernard E. Harcourt
Introduction	296
The Persistence of Racial Profiling	299
What's the Problem?	302
The Problems With Statistical Discrimination	303
Statistical Determination Is Likely Counterproductive to
Law Enforcement	305
Statistical Discrimination Likely Causes a Ratchet Effect	312
The Costs of the Ratchet	314
What Is Really Going On? Estimating the Impact of
Racial Profiling	317

The Real Solution: Axing Statistical Discrimination, Embracing Chance	319
Summary	320
Discussion Questions	321
References	321
PART FOUR: ETHICAL CHALLENGES	325
Chapter 15 Leading Within the Era of Superagencies: Recruiting, Educating, Inspiring, and Retaining the Post-9/11 Generation of Officers	327
Kelly W. Sundberg
The North American Border Security Superagency Era	329
Reflecting on the 1968 Unification of the Canadian Forces	331
The Failure of the Combined Forces Initiative	334
The Fyffe Report	336
Effectively Communicating and Implementing Change	337
Creating, Sustaining, and Evolving Organizational Culture	338
Educating	339
Recruiting and Retaining Excellent Officers	340
Summary	342
Discussion Questions	343
References	343
Chapter 16 Implementing Democratic Policing Reform: Challenges and Constraints in Three Developing Countries	347
Cyndi Banks
Introduction	347
Democratic Policing	350
Global Norms and Standards Relating to Democratic Policing	354
United Nations Code of Conduct for Law             Enforcement Officials 1979	355
The Basic Principles on the Use of Force and             Firearms by Law Enforcement Officials 1990	356
Optional Protocol to the Convention Against Torture             and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading             Treatment or Punishment 2006	356
Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of             Prisoners, United Nations Rules for the Treatment             of Women Prisoners and Non-custodial Measures for             Women Offenders (the Bangkok Rules) and Body             of Principles for the Protection of All Persons Under             Any Form of Detention or Imprisonment	357