Introduction

The new millennium holds many fears and just as much potential. The latter is particularly evident in the world of architecture where we may see many of the buildings and constructions currently on the computer and in the architect's imagination become a reality as we progress with technology and are able to produce construction materials thought impossible by previous generations.

This book celebrates architects who have been involved in The Images Publishing Group's 'International Architecture Yearbook' over the last six issues. It is a comprehensive guide to who's who in architecture. While it does not pretend to include all of the great names involved in the profession, those who are portrayed here are certainly at the pinnacle of design.

The Images Publishing Group is in its 18th year of publishing architecture and is proud to have been involved with recording significant projects around the world. Alessina Brooks and Paul Latham would like to take this opportunity to thank and congratulate all the many friends, acquaintances and collaborators who have been involved in establishing The Images Publishing Group as one of the leading architectural publishers.

Without the cooperation of the international architects and designers, our publishing house could not exist. On the birth of the new century, we hope that architecture and design by people will never be replaced by machines.

Design Philosophy and History

The philosophy of each member of this design team seeks to display the unique fusion of cultures in South Africa through a vision of an exuberant architecture.

Often the firm's designs express the expectations, aspirations, illusions and the collective memory of contemporary Africa through the opportunities revealed in contrasting form, texture, symbol and geometry.
Adrian Maserow Architects continually reinvents 'AMA Architecture', an architecture dedicated to the art of design which aims to make each commission an enduring work of value to its users.

The firm is influenced by local and international architects, crafts, materials and technologies and participates at the highest level with the leaders of business and state.
