

SEVENTH EDITION

FREE
MENTORING PROGRAM

www.abacon.com/mentor

SOCIAL WORK PRACTICE

A GENERALIST APPROACH

LOUISE C. JOHNSON
STEPHEN J. YANCA

SEVENTH EDITION

Social Work Practice

A Generalist Approach

Louise C. Johnson

*Professor Emeritus
University of South Dakota*

Stephen J. Yanca

Saginaw Valley State University

Allyn and Bacon

Boston ■ London ■ Toronto ■ Sydney ■ Tokyo ■ Singapore

Editor-in-Chief, Social Sciences: Karen Hanson
Series Editor, Social Work and Family Therapy: Judy Fifer
Series Editorial Assistant: Alyssa Pratt
Marketing Manager: Jackie Aaron
Composition Buyer: Linda Cox
Manufacturing Buyer: Julie McNeill
Cover Administrator: Brian Gogolin
Production Administrator: Rosalie Briand
Editorial-Production Service: Trinity Publishers Services
Electronic Composition: Omegatype Typography, Inc.

Copyright © 2001, 1998, 1995, 1992, 1989, 1986, 1983 by Allyn & Bacon
A Pearson Education Company
160 Gould Street
Needham Heights, MA 02494

Internet: www.abacon.com

All rights reserved. No part of the material protected by this copyright notice may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without the written permission of the copyright owner.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Johnson, Louise C., 1923–

Social work practice : a generalist approach / Louise C. Johnson and Stephen J. Yanca. — 7th ed.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 0-205-31701-4

1. Social service. 2. Social case work. I. Yanca, Stephen J. II. Title.

HV40.J64 2000
361.3'2—dc21

00-028862

Printed in the United States of America

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 05 04 03 02 01

Credits are on p. 447, which constitutes a continuation of the copyright page.

P R E F A C E

Written from a generalist perspective, Social Work Practice: A Generalist Approach, Seventh Edition, synthesizes historical and current understandings into a logically developed sequence for learning about and teaching the practice of social work. As a textbook for beginning students, it should be particularly useful for undergraduates in introductory practice or methods courses. The material can be used on a one-semester basis or in a two-semester sequence.

Generalist social work, as developed in this text, begins with the need of an individual or a social system. The social worker explores or assesses the situation in which the need exists with the client and significant others. Based on the findings of this exploration, a plan for work to alleviate the situation is developed and an agreement contract between the worker and the client is drawn up. The focus of the plan can be an individual, a small group, a family, an organization, or a community. Once the plan is developed, the worker and client, and perhaps other persons, work to carry out the plan. At some point, the worker and client decide whether to terminate their relationship or continue to work together on further plans.

Students should have certain prerequisites before using the material covered in this book. These include:

1. At least one introductory course covering the history and development of social welfare and an introduction to the profession.
2. A broad liberal arts base providing a wide variety of knowledge pertaining to the human situation, an appreciation of history, and some understanding about the nature of knowledge.
3. Courses providing an understanding of human behavior and the social environment such as those in psychology, sociology, anthropology, political science, and economics. Courses that include understandings of human development and human diversity, including racial and ethnic differences, are particularly important.

A course on human behavior in the social environment taken in a social work program is not a prerequisite or a corequisite. This book provides the content needed for integration of social science content into the social work practice frame of reference. Examples of concepts and how they are used in practice situations are given as one means to assist students in applying this knowledge to practice.

The book does not attempt to present any one model or approach to social work but rather synthesizes material from a number of sources into a coherent whole. Although at points it may seem that the major focus is on work with individuals, this is not the case. It is often easier, however, for students to grasp concepts when their application to work with individuals is presented. These examples can then be used as a base for considering applications to other systems (family, small group, organization, and community). Also, no attempt is made to consider practice with any particular population or social problem area. Rather, the assumption is made that the generalist approach can be used in a wide variety of situations, such as with older people, those who have medical and mental health problems, those who are discriminated against because of lifestyle, and those who suffer because their social situation does not provide for their basic needs. This focus, then, includes service to discrete groups such as homosexuals, the homeless, and veterans.

Plan for the Text

Part One develops five perspectives on social work practice and a framework on which the other two parts are based. Parts Two and Three consider two processes essential to the social work endeavor: the interactional process and the social work process—which is conceptualized as assessment, planning, action, evaluation, and termination.

Social work background material about minority groups and women has been emphasized in the text, which specifically addresses issues of working with these groups. The material on minority groups is not focused on working with a particular minority group but on providing the student with a framework from which to view all persons of minority status. It seeks to provide an understanding of what knowledge and attitudes are needed if a social worker is to work effectively with persons of minority status. It is expected that the learning environment will then provide specific materials for those minority groups that students are most apt to encounter in their practice of social work. Readings that are useful in the development of understanding about practice with minorities and women are suggested. In order to enhance readability, yet maintain a nonbiased gender content, the pronouns he and she are used alternately throughout the book.

The organization chosen for this text seems most appropriate to the authors, who have based it on years of experience in teaching generalist social work practice. As the concepts are developed, attention is given to building on material presented in earlier sections of the book. Repetition is used to reinforce learning. The authors assume that the present cannot be understood apart from the past; thus historical as well as contemporary aspects of the material covered are noted.

Since this is a book for beginning students, it was written with their needs in mind and does not attempt to detail all aspects of the concepts introduced. It does develop concepts so that students will have more than a superficial introduction yet not be overwhelmed by material for which they have no experiential knowledge. An attempt has been made to minimize the use of jargon yet to introduce the student to professional language. Charts and schemas are provided to help students organize considerable amounts of information into a coherent whole to maximize understanding.

The book contains many case examples. Most major sections of each chapter contain vignettes that depict the major concepts in action. In addition, longer case examples are provided. In some chapters, a case may be provided in several parts, illustrating several major concepts. An attempt has also been made to use case examples from practice in a wide variety of settings. In choosing case material, dimensions of size and kind of community, client age and needs, and agency purpose and source of sanction have been considered. Although much can be learned from a textbook, thorough learning takes place only as the conceptualizations are applied in actual practice experiences. Each chapter contains a summary, a statement of learning expectations for that chapter, study questions, and suggested readings for use by students and teachers. An appendix, with summaries of models of social work practice, as well as a glossary of key terms, are included at the end of the text.

Acknowledgments

Thanks are due to the reviewers of various editions of this text, whose suggestions were greatly appreciated and were incorporated into this revision wherever possible: Jean Brooks, Jackson State University; Margaret R. Calista, Marist College; Shirley M. Clark, Chattanooga State Technical Community College; Jean E. Daniels, California State University, Northridge; Diane Dwyer, State University of New York–Brockport; Ralph J. Gilmore, Westfield State College; Susan Grettenberger, Michigan State University; Kenneth J. Herrmann, Jr., SUNY, Brockport; Patricia Hunter, California State University, Chico; Lillie C. Kirsch, Marion Technical College; Anna Martin-Jearld, Bridgewater State College; Christine McGill, San Francisco State University; Barbara L. McGregor, Saginaw Valley State University; Judy Norman, Brigham Young University; Jean L. Nuernberger, Central Missouri State University; Art Preciado, California State University, Chico; Emma Quartaro, Seton Hall University; Jeanette Simon, Upper Iowa University.

L. C. J.
S. J. Y.

Social Work Practice

CONTENTS

Preface   xiv

PART ONE   Perspectives on Social Work Practice   1

1   Social Work as a Response to Concern/Need   3

From Concern to Need	4
Need	4
Cause-Function Debate	6
Common Human Needs	7
Human Development Perspective	8
Human Diversity	9
Social Systems Theory	11
Ecological Perspective	12
Strengths Perspective	13
Social Functioning	14
Summary	14
Questions	15
Suggested Readings	15
Notes	16

2   Social Work as a Developing Profession   17

Social Work as a Profession	18
Development of Social Work Knowledge	19
Pre-1920	19
1921–1930	21
1931–1945	22
1946–1960	24
1961–1975	25
1976–1990	28
1991–2000	29

Summary	31
Questions	32
Suggested Readings	32
Notes	33

3 Social Work as a Creative Blending of Knowledge, Values, and Skills 39

Knowledge	40
Values	45
Skills	52
Creative Blending of Knowledge, Values, and Skills	54
Summary	57
Questions	57
Suggested Readings	58
Notes	59

4 Social Work as a Process of Facilitating Growth and Change 61

Blending an Ecosystems Strengths Approach with the Problem-Solving Process	62
The Natural Process of Growth and Change	65
Process	66
The Stages of the Change Process	66
Social Work Practice and the Change Process	73
Summary	74
Questions	74
Suggested Readings	75
Notes	75

5 Social Work as Intervention into Human Transactions 76

Intervention	77
--------------	----

Transactions as the Focus for Change	80
Influence	82
Changes Sought by the Social Worker	85
Summary	87
Questions	88
Suggested Readings	88
Notes	89

PART TWO    The Interactional Process    91

6    The Worker    93

Knowledge of Self	94
Lifestyle and Philosophy of Life	95
Moral Code and Value System	95
Roots	98
Life Experiences	98
Personal Needs	99
Personal Functioning	102
The Helping Person	107
Characteristics of a Helping Person	107
Responsibility and Authority	109
Helping Skills	111
The Multiperson Helping System	112
Summary	116
Questions	117
Suggested Readings	117
Notes	118

7    The Client    119

Becoming a Client	120
Understanding the Individual Client	124
Vital Roles	126

Human Diversity	126
Motivation, Capacity, and Opportunity	131
Stress and Crisis Determination	132
Strengths and Uniqueness of Clients	132
Understanding the Multiclient System: The Family	137
Summary	148
Questions	149
Suggested Readings	149
Notes	150

8 Environment 152

Person in Environment as an Ecosystem	153
The Community as a Social System	153
Understanding the Agency	163
Transactions between Person and Ecosystem	170
Working in a Bureaucracy	172
Summary	176
Questions	177
Suggested Readings	177
Notes	179

9 Interaction with Individuals 180

Formation of a One-to-One Action System	181
Relationship	190
The Helping Relationship	190
Special Influences on the Helping Relationship	193
Communication	199
The Interview: An Interactional Tool	203
Preparing for an Interview	205
The Stages of an Interview	205
Skills Used by the Worker during the Interview	207

Summary	212
Questions	212
Suggested Readings	213
Notes	214

10 Multiperson Interaction 215

The Family as the Fundamental Experience with Multiperson Interaction	218
The Family as a Multiperson Client System	220
The Small Group as a Social System	225
Structure	225
Function	229
Development	230
The Social Worker as a Group Member	237
Group Enabling	237
Issues in Group Participation	240
Use of the Team	240
Leadership	242
Conflict	243
Social Work Tasks	243
The Worker and the Multiperson Client	244
The Worker and Group Interaction	245
Group Formation	247
Discussion Leadership	249
Structuring Group Activity	250
The Family Group as a Social System	251
Structure	251
Function	252
Development	253
Summary	253
Questions	254
Suggested Readings	255
Notes	256

PART THREE    The Social Work Process    257*11    Assessment    259*The Content of the Assessment Phase    260

Judgment    263

The Use of the Change Process in Assessment    268

Identification of Need    269

Identification of Blocks to Need Fulfillment    270

Formulation of the Concern or Need    272

        Preliminary Assumptions about the Nature of the Concern or Need    274        Preliminary Assumptions about Potential Strengths and Resources in the Ecosystem    275

Selection and Collection of Information    276

Analysis of the Information Available    276

Assessment of Small Groups    277

Transactional Assessment    278

The Dual Perspective    279

Mapping    280

Social Support Network Analysis    281

Needs Assessment    282*Summary    286*Questions    287*Suggested Readings    287*Notes    289*12    Planning    290*Components of a Plan    292

Goals and Objectives    292

Units of Attention    296

Strategy    296

Planning with Multiperson Client Systems    303*Factors Affecting a Plan of Action    305

The Community    305

The Agency    306

The Social Issue    307

The Worker	308
The Client	309
Diversity and Populations at Risk	310
Strengths and Limitations of the Systems Involved	311

Agreement between Worker and Client 312

Summary 313

Questions 314

Suggested Readings 315

Notes 315

13 Direct Practice Actions 317

Action to Enable Clients to Use Available Resources 319

The Service Delivery System	320
Referral	323
Broker and Advocate Roles	324
Empowerment and Enabling	326

Action in Response to Crisis 330

Recognizing Crisis	331
Responding to Crisis	332

Action That Is Supportive 334

Use of Activity as an Interventive Strategy 337

Action as Mediation 341

Summary 344

Questions 345

Suggested Readings 345

Notes 347

14 Indirect Practice Actions 349

Environmental Change 350

Involvement of Influentials 354

Coordination of Services 356

Case Management	358
Networking	360

Program Planning and Resource Development 363

Developing a Volunteer Program 367

Self-Help Groups 368

Changing Organizations from Within 369*Cause Advocacy 373

Community Organization 375

Influencing the Political Process 375

Social Action Organizing 377

Summary 378*Questions 379*Suggested Readings 379*Notes 381*15 Evaluation 383*Accountability 384*Kinds of Evaluation 387*Techniques for Use in Evaluating 389

Recording 389

Research 393

Program Evaluation 400

Use of Computers 401

Issues Related to Evaluation 402

Client Participation 402

Confidentiality 402

Effect of Privacy and Open-Access Laws 404

Summary 404*Questions 405*Suggested Readings 405*Notes 406*16 Termination 408*Kinds of Termination 409

Planned Termination	413
Individuals	413
Families	415
Small Groups	415
Components of Termination	417
Disengagement	417
Stabilization of Change	418
Evaluation	419
Summary	422
Questions	422
Suggested Readings	423
Notes	423
 Appendix: Models of Social Work Practice	 425
Glossary	440
Author Index	449
Subject Index	451

PART ONE

Perspectives on Social Work Practice

Part One provides an overview of the nature of social work practice. When the reader has an understanding of the complexity of the practice situation and has developed a framework in which to place the details, study of practice specifics can follow. The reader likely will wish to return to the concepts presented to develop a greater depth of understanding.

Social work is complex, having a wide variety of applications. Because of this, there are a number of perspectives regarding its nature. Five descriptions or perspectives are presented here to provide the overall framework of generalist social work practice. These are most often those referred to in social work literature and that best explain the nature of contemporary generalist social work practice. No attempt has been made to identify a particular ideology or model as the approach of this book. However, a specific approach has developed with each subsequent edition and is referred to as an interactive-transactional approach to generalist social work practice using ecosystems and strengths perspectives. Concepts, ideas, and understandings gained from a wide variety of practice literature and experiences are synthesized to describe the realities of generalist social work practice.

A generalist approach requires that the social worker assess the situation with the client and decide which systems are the appropriate units of attention, or focus of the work, for the change effort. As the units of attention may include an individual, a family, a small group, an agency or organization, a community, or the transactions among these, the generalist approach emphasizes knowledge that can be applied to a variety of systems. Each of the five perspectives discussed in Part One has application to all these units of attention.

Each perspective describes social work practice from contrasting but complementary views. Each may be seen as a different facet of a complex way of thinking, feeling, and doing, and each provides a way of understanding the activity that has come to be known as generalist social work practice. Together, they provide a description of the essential nature of generalist social work practice.