ACKNOWLEDGMENTS— FIRST EDITION

I wish to thank a number of individuals for their help regarding this project. In particular, my thanks to Professors Alan Bromberg, Dennis Honabach, and Mark Sargent for their comments. I thank Ralph Ferrara, Robin Goldman, Sam Gruenbaum, Will Kaulbach, Joe Kempler and Richard Starr, all of whom were my coauthors for certain publications, portions of which appear herein. My thanks also to Callaghan & Co., publishers of my treatise on Securities Practice: Federal and State Enforcement (1985) (updated annually) (coauthored with Ralph Ferrara), and to Law Journal Seminars-Press, publisher of my treatise on Securities Regulation: Liabilities and Remedies (1984) (updated annually) for granting their permission for me to use excerpts from the respective treatises. I also thank several law reviews in which I authored articles for granting their permission to use certain portions thereof herein, including the Cornell Law Review (67 Cornell L. Rev. 557 (1982), 66 Cornell L. Rev. 27 (1980)) and Fred B. Rothman & Co., the Emory Law Journal (30 Emory L.J. 169 (1981)), the Journal of Corporation Law (11 J. Corp. L. 1 (1985)), the Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review (13 Loyola Univ. (L.A.) L. Rev. 247 (1980) (coauthored with Samuel Gruenbaum), the University of Maryland Law Review (46 Md. L. Rev. 923 (1987)) (coauthored with Robin Goldman), the University of Pennsylvania Law Review (129 U. Pa. L. Rev. 263 (1980)) (coauthored with Ralph Ferrara) and Fred B. Rothman & Co., and the Vanderbilt Law Review (40 Vand. L. Rev. 489 (1987)) (coauthored with Will Kaulbach).

From the University of Maryland Law School, I thank Bob Krusen for his research assistance, Anne Rollins for her comments, and LuAnn Marshall, Gwen Davis, and Eileen Gretes for their expert secretarial help. This book was written while I was a member of two faculties, the faculties of the University of Maryland Law School and the Southern Methodist University School of Law. I thank both institutions and their respective deans, Mike Kelly at Maryland and Paul Rogers at SMU, for their support of this project.

I wish to dedicate this book to my friends at The University of Maryland School of Law. I've been fortunate to teach during the past six years at this superb institution with wonderful colleagues and students. As I enthusiastically join the SMU Law faculty on a more permanent basis, I will miss my friends at the Maryland Law School.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS— SECOND EDITION

The Second Edition to this reference text comes during my seventh year at SMU. It has been a fine seven years and I thank the university and my colleagues.

This project was funded by summer research grants (including the William Hawley Atwell Fund) from SMU Law School. I thank Dean Paul Rogers and the Atwell Fund for their support.

I owe many thanks to several individuals for helping this project become reality. I certainly thank the contribution of all those mentioned in the acknowledgments to the First Edition as well as the publishers who granted permission for me to use excerpts from my other books and articles.

For the Second Edition, I thank my secretary, Ms. Kathleen Vaughan, for her significant assistance. I also thank Professor Alan Bromberg, Mr. Ralph Janvey, Mr. Daryl Lansdale, Mr. Bruce Mendelsohn, Mr. Chris Olive and Mr. Buddy Reece as well as my research assistants, Mr. Cory Farley, Ms. Julie Herzog, and Mr. Cliff Murray, for their meaningful input. My thanks as well to The International Lawyer granting permission for me to use excerpts from my article that appeared in 29 Int'l Law. 43 (1995). I again thank Law Journal Seminars-Press for granting permission for me to use excerpts from my treatise, Securities Regulation: Liabilities and Remedies.

I dedicate this Second Edition to my good friend and colleague Professor Alan R. Bromberg. Professor Bromberg truly is the preeminent scholar in the United States in the areas of the law relating to securities fraud and partnership law. He also is a wonderful and generous individual. His help and guidance through my years at the University of Maryland and here at SMU have meant so very much to me. I thank you Alan.

August 1995

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS— THIRD EDITION

Fifteen years have elapsed since the publication of the First Edition of Understanding Securities Law. As this reference text undergoes modification due to securities law developments and the author's prerogative, I thank the contribution of all those mentioned in the acknowledgments to the First and Second Editions as well as the publishers who have granted permission for me to use excerpts from my other books and articles.

This project was funded by summer research grants from the SMU School of Law. I thank Dean John Attanasio and the Law School for their generous support.

For the Third Edition, I thank my secretary, Ms. Judy Parsley, for her significant assistance. I also thank my research assistants Mr. Jeff Brown, Mr. Noah Hansford, Mr. Barrett Howell, and Mr. Jason Myers for their meaningful input.

I dedicate this Third Edition to my parents Gerald and Phyllis Steinberg in honor of their fifty-ninth wedding anniversary. I am a lucky man to have two wonderful and loving parents. Mom and Dad, thanks so very much for your love, support, and guidance.

September 2000

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS— FOURTH EDITION

Twenty years have elapsed since the publication of the First Edition of Understanding Securities Law. As this reference text undergoes modification due to securities law developments and the author's prerogative, I thank the contribution of all those mentioned in the acknowledgments to the First, Second and Third Editions as well as the publishers who have granted permission for me to use excerpts from my other books and articles.

This project was funded by a summer research grant from the SMU Dedman School of Law. I thank Dean John Attanasio and the Law School for their generous support.

For the Fourth Edition, I particularly thank my administrative assistant, Ms. Jan Spann, for her significant contribution. I also express my gratitude to Ms. Michele Oswald and Ms. Carolyn Yates for their secretarial assistance.

I thank Mr. Gregory Ivy, Associate Director of the Underwood Law Library, for his contribution of "Selected Securities Law Research Sources" contained in Chapter 1 of the book. My thanks also to my research assistants, a number of whom are now practicing lawyers—Mr. Chris Claasen, Ms. Karen Crenshaw, Ms. Shanna Nugent, Ms. Andrea Petersen and Mr. Tabor Pittman—for their meaningful input.

I dedicate this Fourth Edition to my wonderful family—my wife Laurie, my daughter Alexandra (Alex), and my sons Avram (Avi) and Phillip (Bear)—with all my love.

November 2006

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS— FIFTH EDITION

This project was funded by a summer research grant from the SMU Dedman School of Law. I thank Dean John B. Attanasio and the Law School for their generous support. I also thank my research assistants Mr. Dustin Appel and Mr. Ignacio Hirigoyen as well as my administrative assistant Ms. Jan Spann for their assistance. In addition, I wish to extend my appreciation to those persons mentioned in the acknowledgments to the First, Second, Third and Fourth Editions as well as the publishers who have granted permission for me to use excerpts from my other books and articles.

I dedicate this Fifth Edition to my terrific aunt and uncle, Frances and Fred Marblestone. Aunt Frances and Uncle Fred — this is a “small” way for me to say thank you for being so wonderful to my Mom and Dad, my sister Nancy, and me.
