Acknowledgements

I would like to thank my family, my husband Stephen and our daughters Eilidh and Emma, parents Hilda and Ian Calderwood and Una and Andrew Gillies for all their help, support and encouragement in helping me complete this book.

This book largely originates from a thesis awarded by the University of Strathclyde and from various publications. In particular I would like to thank The Clark Foundation for Legal Education and the University of Strathclyde Scholarship Fund which both provided financial support for the period of PhD study and to my supervisor Professor Barry J. Rodger. I would also like to give special thanks to Catherine Colston, Maura McCaw, Liz McCallum, Isobel McGregor, Professor Jenny Hamilton, Professor Ian Lloyd and Dr Rowena Murray.

I would also like to thank The Society of Legal Scholars who provided financial assistance for me to be able to present a paper on revision of the Rome Convention at the Tenth International Consumer Law Conference, Peru in 2005. I would also like to thank the University of Leicester for providing a period of academic study leave and for the friendship and support of my colleagues at the University of Leicester, in particular, Professor Trevor Buck (now at De Montfort University, Leicester), Professor David Bonner, Professor Chris Clarkson, Professor Sarah Dromgoole (now at the University of Nottingham), Professor Cosmo Graham and Professor Robin White. Finally, I would also like to thank Alison Kirk and Carolyn Court, Elaine Couper and Aimée Feenan at Ashgate for their assistance.
