OXFORD MONOGRAPHS IN INTERNATIONAL LAW

The aim of this series is to publish important and original pieces of research on all aspects of international law. Topics that are given particular prominence are those which, while of interest to the academic lawyer, also have important bearing on issues which touch upon the actual conduct of international relations. Nonetheless, the series is wide in scope and includes monographs on the history and philosophical foundations of international law.

Acknowledgements

This book is based on the general part of a Ph.D. thesis ('Jurisdiction in International Law: United States and European Perspectives') which the author successfully defended at the Faculty of Law of Leuven University in 2007. I attempted to make the work current to 1 January 2008.

The author would like to acknowledge the great assistance given by a number of professors, colleagues, friends, and institutions. I of course take responsibility for any possible mistakes.

Special mention should obviously be made of my supervisor Professor Jan Wouters, who offered me the opportunity to write my Ph.D. thesis at the Institute for International Law of the Law Faculty of Leuven University. It was Professor Wouters who proposed, in late 2001, to study divergent approaches to international law from a transatlantic perspective. I acknowledge the confidence he had in me and the many academic opportunities which he gave me, both in research and teaching. He has always challenged me to give my own informed opinion on controversial academic questions. Thanks Jan.

I would also like to thank the Fund for Scientific Research Flanders (FWO), which generously funded my Ph.D. research at Leuven University (2002–2006), my research study at the European Law Research Center at Harvard Law School (2005), and other study trips abroad.

Thirdly, I would like to extend my thanks to my colleagues at the Leuven Institute for International Law, who have always been a great source of support for my research: Roemer, Sten, Maarten, Bruno, Tom, Dominic, Bart, Frederik, Dries, Leen, Heidi and Viviane. I also appreciate their commitment to society and their desire to bring about more justice in this world through scientific research and teaching.

Doubtless, I would not have been able to write this book without the support of friends and family. In particular, I would like to thank my parents and Lilian, who have always supported me.

Finally, I acknowledge everyone who was my companion on the road to self-fulfilment, of which this book was only a minor part.
