

ASPEN PUBLISHERS

WHALEY

Problems and Materials on PAYMENT LAW

Eighth Edition

Wolters Kluwer

Law & Business

© 2008 Douglas J. Whaley
Published by Aspen Publishers. All Rights Reserved.

No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopy, recording, or any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from the publisher. Requests for permission to make copies of any part of this publication should be mailed to:

Aspen Publishers
Attn: Permissions Department
76 Ninth Avenue, 7th Floor
New York, NY 10011-5201

To contact Customer Care, e-mail customer.care@aspenpublishers.com, call 1-800-234-1660, fax 1-800-901-9075, or mail correspondence to:

Aspen Publishers
Attn: Order Department
PO Box 990
Frederick, MD 21705

Printed in the United States of America.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0

ISBN 978-0-7355-6566-1

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Whaley, Douglas J.

Problems and materials on payment law / Douglas J. Whaley. —8th ed.
p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-7355-6566-1 (hardcover : alk. paper) 1. Negotiable instruments—United States—Cases. 2. Payment—United States—Cases. I. Title.

KF957.A4W47 2008

346.73'096 —dc22

2007047563

About Wolters Kluwer Law & Business

Wolters Kluwer Law & Business is a leading provider of research information and workflow solutions in key specialty areas. The strengths of the individual brands of Aspen Publishers, CCH, Kluwer Law International and Loislaw are aligned within Wolters Kluwer Law & Business to provide comprehensive, in-depth solutions and expert-authored content for the legal, professional and education markets.

CCH was founded in 1913 and has served more than four generations of business professionals and their clients. The CCH products in the Wolters Kluwer Law & Business group are highly regarded electronic and print resources for legal, securities, antitrust and trade regulation, government contracting, banking, pension, payroll, employment and labor, and healthcare reimbursement and compliance professionals.

Aspen Publishers is a leading information provider for attorneys, business professionals and law students. Written by preeminent authorities, Aspen products offer analytical and practical information in a range of specialty practice areas from securities law and intellectual property to mergers and acquisitions and pension/benefits. Aspen's trusted legal education resources provide professors and students with high-quality, up-to-date and effective resources for successful instruction and study in all areas of the law.

Kluwer Law International supplies the global business community with comprehensive English-language international legal information. Legal practitioners, corporate counsel and business executives around the world rely on the Kluwer Law International journals, loose-leaves, books and electronic products for authoritative information in many areas of international legal practice.

Loislaw is a premier provider of digitized legal content to small law firm practitioners of various specializations. Loislaw provides attorneys with the ability to quickly and efficiently find the necessary legal information they need, when and where they need it, by facilitating access to primary law as well as state-specific law, records, forms and treatises.

Wolters Kluwer Law & Business, a unit of Wolters Kluwer, is headquartered in New York and Riverwoods, Illinois. Wolters Kluwer is a leading multinational publisher and information services company.

FOR MY PARENTS,
ROBERT AND LENORE WHALEY

As we shall see, paper-based payment systems are rapidly giving way to the electronic transfer of funds. Soon we can expect that electronic payment will be the norm, and paper transfers increasingly rare. Given that, it makes little sense to call casebooks on point “Negotiable Instruments Law” or “Commercial Paper,” and a number of recent books have opted for a title such as “Payment and Credit Systems Law.” I have chosen to call this work “Problems and Materials on Payment Law.” The omission of a reference to “credit” is deliberate. Of course, promissory notes and credit cards are used to acquire credit (as are checks when the drawer is attempting to ride the float period during their collection), but the law covered by the casebooks doesn’t focus on the credit function. If it did, it would have to cover all the credit issues better left to a course in consumer law (qualifying for credit, granting credit, the disclosing of credit information, etc.). Instead, even with promissory notes and credit cards, the legal issues we are concerned with deal with payment problems: who owes what to whom? Consequently, the umbrella term “payment law” seems to me the best shorthand reference to our subject.

This book explores the law of payment primarily through focusing on a series of Problems designed to encourage the student to concentrate on the exact statutory language in the Uniform Commercial Code, the Electronic Fund Transfer Act, and the Expedited Funds Availability Act. While I have included illustrative cases to demonstrate the reactions of the courts to these issues, I have used only those I felt were very important; most UCC court decisions are too imposing, either factually or legally, to make good pedagogical tools.

Unfortunately, students reared on the case method sometimes have trouble concentrating on Problem after Problem. Such an attitude here can be academically fatal. As a guide to the degree of concentration required, I have used a hierarchy of signals. When the Problem states “Read §3-406,” I mean “Put down this book, pick up the Uniform Commercial Code, and study §3-406 carefully.” When the instruction is “See §3-406,” the reader need look at the cited section only if unsure of the answer. “Cf. §3-406,” or simply “§3-406,” is a lesser reference included as a guide for the curious.

I have heard it said that law students cannot follow legal Problems having more than two characters. If true, payment law would be unteachable, as its issues almost always involve three or more parties. To help the reader keep them straight, I have given the characters in my Problems distinctive names and, I hope, have created interesting factual patterns, all designed to keep the mind alive.

I have edited the footnotes out of most cases; the ones that remain have been stripped of their original numbering and have been consecutively numbered with my own footnotes. Unless clearly indicated otherwise, all footnotes in the cases are the court’s own. I have also taken the liberty to change most statutory citations in cases to their simple Uniform Commercial Code form.

I wish to acknowledge the debt I owe to the late Professor R. Bruce Townsend, formerly of the faculty of the Indiana University, Indianapolis Law School, one of the drafters of the Uniform Commercial Code and my mentor in my early days of teaching this subject. Professor John J. Slain, New York University School of law, also deserves my thanks for helping me organize my initial exploration of the world of investment securities. As always, I am indebted to the fine people at Aspen Publishers, who have taken good care of me through seven casebooks. Finally, my grateful thanks goes to my many students, who through the years have taught me as much about the law as I taught them.

Douglas J. Whaley

December 2007

PROBLEMS AND MATERIALS ON PAYMENT LAW

SUMMARY OF CONTENTS

Contents	xi
Preface	xix
Chapter 1. Negotiability	1
Chapter 2. Negotiation	27
Chapter 3. Holders in Due Course	35
Chapter 4. The Nature of Liability	111
Chapter 5. Banks and Their Customers	173
Chapter 6. Wrongdoing and Error	259
Chapter 7. Electronic Banking	325
Chapter 8. Investment Securities	367
Appendix. 1990 Version of §3-605	391
Table of Cases	403
Table of Statutes	407
Index	413

Preface	xix
CHAPTER 1. NEGOTIABILITY	1
I. Introduction	1
II. Types of Negotiable Instruments	2
III. The Negotiability Concept	4
A. "Writing"	6
B. "Signed"	6
C. "Unconditional Promise or Order"	7
1. Implied Conditions	7
Triffin v. Dillabough	8
2. Consideration Stated	16
D. "Fixed Amount of Money"	17

E. “Courier Without Luggage” Requirement	18
Woodworth v. The Richmond Indiana Venture	19
F. “Payable on Demand or at a Definite Time”	21
G. “Payable to Bearer or to Order”	22
H. Consumer Notes	24
 CHAPTER 2. NEGOTIATION	 27
I. Some Technical Terms	27
A. Parties	27
B. Negotiability vs. Negotiation	28
II. Transfer and Negotiation	28
III. Special and Blank Indorsement	29
IV. Forgery of the Payee’s Name	32
 CHAPTER 3. HOLDERS IN DUE COURSE	 35
I. Acquiring Holder in Due Course Status	35
A. “Holder”	36
B. “Value”	36
Falls Church Bank v. Wesley Heights Realty, Inc.	38
C. “Good Faith” and “Notice”	39
General Investment Corp. v. Angelini	40
Any Kind Checks Cashed, Inc. v. Talcott	45
Winter & Hirsch, Inc. v. Passarelli	54
Jones v. Approved Bancredit Corp.	60
Sullivan v. United Dealers Corp.	67
D. The Shelter Rule	69
Triffin v. Somerset Valley Bank	71
II. Real and Personal Defenses/Claims	78
A. Defenses Against a Holder in Due Course	78
Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. v. Culver	79
Sea Air Support, Inc. v. Herrmann	86
Kedzie & 103rd Currency Exchange, Inc. v. Hodge	87
B. A Special Note on Forgery	96

C.	Procedural Issues	97
	Virginia National Bank v. Holt	98
D.	Defenses Against a Non-Holder in Due Course	101
	Herzog Contracting Corp. v. McGowen Corp.	101
E.	Jus Tertii	107
F.	Conclusion	108
 CHAPTER 4. THE NATURE OF LIABILITY		 111
I.	The Underlying Obligation	112
	Ward v. Federal Kemper Insurance Co.	113
II.	Liability on the Instrument	118
A.	The Maker's Obligation	119
B.	The Indorser's Obligation	119
C.	The Surety's Obligation	122
1.	Exoneration	124
2.	Subrogation	124
3.	Contribution	125
4.	Strictissimi Juris	125
5.	The Accommodation Party	127
	Floor v. Melvin	129
6.	Tender of Payment	133
7.	Section 3-605 — Strictissimi Juris Again	134
	Chemical Bank v. Pic Motors Corp.	135
	London Leasing Corp. v. Interfina, Inc.	142
8.	New Notes for Old	144
D.	The Drawer's Obligation	145
1.	Presentment and Dishonor	146
	Messing v. Bank of America, N.A.	147
2.	Notice of Dishonor	153
3.	Protest	153
4.	Excuse	153
	Makel Textiles, Inc. v. Dolly Originals, Inc.	154
E.	The Drawee's Obligation	156
1.	The Non-Bank Acceptor	157
	Norton v. Knapp	158

2. Checks	160
Galyen Petroleum Co. v. Hixson	160
3. Certification	163
F. Signature by an Agent	163
Mundaca Investment Corp. v. Febba	164
Nichols v. Seale	168
III. Other Theories of Liability	171
 CHAPTER 5. BANKS AND THEIR CUSTOMERS	 173
I. The Checking Account	174
A. "Properly Payable" Rule	174
B. Wrongful Dishonor	178
Twin City Bank v. Isaacs	178
C. Death or Incompetence of Customer	183
D. Bank's Right of Setoff	184
Walter v. National City Bank of Cleveland	185
E. Customer's Right to Stop Payment	190
1. Ordinary Checks	190
Parr v. Security National Bank	190
Canty v. Vermont National Bank	194
2. Cashiers, Tellers, and Certified Checks	199
Patriot Bank v. Navy Federal Credit Union	200
F. Bank Statements	207
II. Bank Collection	209
A. Funds Availability	210
1. Cash	210
2. Checks	211
a. Across the Counter Presentments	211
b. "On Us" Items	211
c. "Transit" Items	211
d. The Federal Availability Rules	215
B. Check Truncation	221
1. Introduction	221
2. Creating the Image and the Substitute Check	222
3. Legal Equivalence	223
4. Warranty Liability	224

5. Indemnity Liability	225
6. Expedited Recredit for Consumer	226
7. Expedited Recredit for Banks	227
8. Lawsuits and Miscellaneous Provisions	227
C. Final Payment	228
Rock Island Auction Sales, Inc. v.
Empire Packing Co.	231
First National Bank of Chicago v. Standard
Bank & Trust	234
D. Check Return	240
E. Charge Back	242
Valley Bank of Ronan v. Hughes	244
F. Undoing Final Payment	251
G. Delays	253
H. Restrictive Indorsements and Banks	253
I. Priorities in the Bank Account: The Four Legals	254

CHAPTER 6. WRONGDOING AND ERROR 259

I. Forgery of the Payee's Name	260
A. Some Basic Ideas	260
B. Warranty Liability	261
C. Conversion Liability	264
Leeds v. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A.	267
II. Forgery of the Drawer's Name	271
Price v. Neal	272
Decibel Credit Union v. Pueblo Bank & Trust Co.	276
Wachovia Bank, N.A. v. Foster Bancshares, Inc.	279
III. Validation of the Forgery	285
A. Common Law Validation	286
Hutzler v. Hertz Corp.	286
B. The Impostor Rule	292
C. The Employee Indorsement Rule	294
D. The Negligence Rule	296
The Bank/First Citizens Bank v.
Citizens and Associates	297

	Travelers Casualty and Surety Co. of America v.	305
	Wells Fargo Bank N.A.	311
E.	The Bank Statement Rule	312
	Falk v. Northern Trust Co.	322
IV.	Material Alteration	325
CHAPTER 7.	ELECTRONIC BANKING
I.	Consumers and Electronic Fund Transfers	326
A.	Credit Cards	326
1.	Basic Liability	327
2.	Asserting Defenses Against the Credit Card Issuer	328
3.	Billing Errors	329
B.	Debit Cards	334
II.	Wire Transfers	337
A.	Scope of Article 4A	339
B.	Acceptance of Payment Orders	340
C.	Transmission Errors	341
	Grain Traders, Inc. v. Citibank, N.A.	352
	Corfan Banco Asuncion Paraguay v. Ocean Bank	358
	Bank of America N.T.S.A. v. Sanati	365
D.	Conclusion
CHAPTER 8.	INVESTMENT SECURITIES
I.	Terminology	368
II.	Overissue	371
III.	The Issuer and the Holder	372
	First American National Bank v. Christian
	Foundation Life Insurance Co.	375
IV.	Transfers Between Purchasers	376
V.	Registration	378
	Jennie Clarkson Home for Children v. Missouri,
	Kansas & Texas Railway	384
VI.	Security Entitlements	385
	Powers v. American Express Financial Advisors, Inc.

Contents	xvii
APPENDIX. 1990 VERSION OF §3-605	391
1. §3-605. Discharge of Indorsers and Accommodation Parties	391
Official Comment	393
Table of Cases	403
Table of Statutes	407
Index	413

CHAPTER 1

NEGOTIABILITY

I. INTRODUCTION

There is not, of course, enough money to go around, and what money is available is frequently too physically awkward to be moved easily. Human civilization has been able to create additional sources of money in the form of transferable contractual debt. Thus, one can borrow money and give the lender a written promise to repay it (a promissory note) and in this way realize early expected future prosperity. We solved the problem of the awkwardness of the physical transfer of money, and the concomitant possibility of its theft while in transit, by putting the money in the hands of a guarded depository (typically a bank) and then issuing written orders (drafts) for the money's transfer to various people.

In time, complicated things began to happen to these pieces of paper. For one thing, they were transferred (negotiated) through many hands before being presented for payment. If payment was then refused for some reason (the goods proved defective, the maker was financially embarrassed, the bank failed to open its doors one morning), rules had to be invented to straighten out who owed what to whom and to establish which defenses would be good against the person demanding payment and which would not. Similarly, if the instrument was stolen or forged, rules had to be established to put the risk of loss on somebody. Article 3 (Negotiable Instruments) and Article 4 (Bank Deposits and Collections) of the Uniform Commercial Code are designed to supply these rules.

Article 3 replaces its widely adopted predecessor, the Negotiable Instruments Law (hereinafter the NIL), and Article 4 replaces the not-so-widely adopted Bank Collection Code. Article 8 (Investment Securities), discussed in Chapter 8 of this book, deals with similar problems raised by the transfer of stocks and bonds. A more recent addition to the Uniform Commercial Code is Article 4A, which addresses legal issues arising from wire transfers of funds; it, along with similar issues arising under the Electronic Fund Transfer Act, a federal statute, is explored in Chapter 5.

Articles 3 and 4 of the Code were written in the 1950s and promulgated in their most widely adopted version in 1962. The rules contained in these Articles varied but little from ones codified in the NIL (first proposed in 1896). But nineteenth-century law serves poorly in a society now living in the twenty-first century, particularly for banking matters, where computers have replaced paper and have made compliance with many of the old rules impossible. In 1990 the American Law Institute and the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws promulgated revised versions of Articles 3 and 4 for adoption by the states. These versions modernize the rules, replace archaic language in the original articles, and answer a host of questions raised by the case law and by commentators over 30 years of litigation.

Finally, in 2002 new changes to Articles 3 and 4 were also proposed, but these changes have so far not been widely adopted (as of this writing in 2007, only Arkansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nevada, and Texas have done so).

II. TYPES OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS

There are many types of negotiable instruments in the world. Money itself is technically a negotiable instrument. A dollar bill is a bill of exchange—that is, a draft (defined below) drawn on the United States Treasury. The Code deals with investment securities (stocks and bonds) in Article 8, and with wire transfers in Article 4A, these matters being specifically excluded from the coverage of Article 3 by §3-102(a).

The types of negotiable instruments that Article 3 does cover can be divided into two basic categories: notes and drafts.