INTRODUCTION

The first appearance of music in the collections of the Harvard College Library can no longer be traced with certainty. A catalogue of holdings published in 1720 lists several collections of hymn texts; Isaac Watts' [Divine and Moral] Songs for Children, also a collection of texts intended to be sung, is listed in a 1725 supplement. Occasional references to music appear in reports of the Librarian in the latter part of the nineteenth century, and some important acquisitions date from that period. But Harvard's research collection of music is largely a creation of the present century. Its growth has been marked by the interest and generosity of alumni and friends. The personal collections of Evert Jansen Wendell, '1882, Richard Aldrich, '1885, Ralph Isham, '1889, Ernest Lewis Gay, '1897, George Benson Weston, '1897, and Harry Elkins Widener, '07, all donated or bequeathed to Harvard, form a substantial portion of the material described in this catalogue. An equally substantial portion was purchased with income from special funds endowed by Francis Boott, '1831, Walter W. Naumburg, '1889, Elkan Naumburg, William Inglis Morse, and Mrs. Ralph Otis Isham. The remainder has come to Harvard through the generosity of many others by gift, bequest, exchange, or purchase.

The Libraries

This catalogue brings together descriptions of early printed music materials administered by three units of the Harvard College Library: the Houghton Library, the Eda Kuhn Loeb Music Library, and the Harry Elkins Widener Memorial Library. The Widener Library houses very little music material, the bulk of its music collection having been transferred to the Eda Kuhn Loeb Music Library in 1956.

The Music Library's collection of rare materials is housed in the Merritt Room of the Isham Memorial Library. The Isham Library itself, established originally in Memorial Church to house organ music, soon broadened greatly its collecting scope and now serves as a special collections adjunct to the Music Library.

The Houghton Library maintains the rare books and manuscripts belonging to Harvard College. Included among the Houghton items are some now housed separately in the Theatre Collection, several items in the Widener Memorial Room, and some volumes on deposit from other Harvard libraries. Numbered among the latter are fifty-one titles that were transferred from the Isham Memorial Library.

The Catalogue

This catalogue was begun in the early 1960's, under the auspices of the Eda Kuhn Loeb Music Library, with a purely local aim: to provide users of the Music Library's card catalogue with brief entries for the Houghton Library's musical holdings. Soon it became evident that the early music collections of the two libraries were both larger and richer than anyone had realized. At this juncture, the decision was made to prepare a formal printed catalogue that would provide ready access to the contents of both collections to members of the Harvard community and to scholars and researchers at large.

The principal research for the catalogue in its new format occurred between mid-1964 and early 1967, at which time the manuscript was essentially complete and my connection with it entered a lengthy hiatus. During the following three years, the manuscript was subjected to proofreading, but finally work drew to a halt. For nearly eight years, the project lay in abeyance and prospects for its revival seemed remote. In September 1977, however, the manuscript was exhumed and the entire project revived. I was reunited with the manuscript and spent the summer of 1978 bringing the catalogue portion to completion. Typesetting, proofreading, and indexing occupied the greater part of 1979.

The catalogue describes the music and books on music, printed before 1801, which had been added to the Harvard collections by January 1967. It includes scores; sets of parts; part-books; song books with music; monographs, treatises and pamphlets on music; music periodicals; and dance manuals containing music. Excluded are song books and dance manuals without music; songs in single-sheet form; liturgical books, hymnals and psalters; and librettos. Early items in all these categories may be found in Harvard library collections. Descriptions of these materials, of the musical manuscripts, and of the early printed musical works acquired since January 1967 undoubtedly will find their way into future publications.

Bibliographical Method

Because of the circumstances under which this catalogue was compiled, final decisions on bibliographical method did not rest entirely in my hands. Certain practices of informal library cataloguing were admitted, compromising the more rigorous principles of traditional descriptive bibliography that I would have favored. For this reason, I am not prepared to recommend to other bibliographers all elements of the bibliographical method employed in this catalogue.

Arrangement

Items are arranged in one alphabetical sequence by Entry (see below). Within a given entry arrangement is alphabetical by title, omitting extraneous words. Successive editions of a single work (for example, Händel's Acis and Galatea) are sub-arranged by date of publication. In a few cases (for example, Abel and Corelli) sub-arrangement is by opus number.

Name Forms

With some exceptions, name forms follow those established by the Library of Congress. Die Musik in Geschichte und Gegenwart served as a second authority. Cross references are provided from variant forms of each name, as well as from different parts of compound names.

Entry

Musical compositions are entered by composer, other works by author, and all anonyma by title. Anthologies are entered according to common usage by title, by editor, or by publisher, with appropriate cross-references. As a general rule, anthologies published before 1650 will be found under the publisher's name. Pastiches appear under the name of the chief composer or compiler if known, otherwise under the title. For the sake of simplicity, all editions of The Beggar's Opera are entered under Pepusch and all editions of Love in a Village under Arne.

Title-Page Transcription

Title-pages are transcribed in quasi-facsimile. Details of the transcription process, which was devised to accommodate considerable variety in title-page and type-face design, are enumerated below:

1. All type-faces are transcribed in roman form;
2. If a word is composed entirely of capital letters, only the first letter is capitalized;
3. Literary quotations, advertisements, volume and price statements, Stationer's Company notices, publishers' numbers, and part-book statements are omitted with ellipsis;
4. Devices and decorations, and any mottos associated with them, are omitted without ellipsis;
5. Engravers' signatures on ornaments, borders, or illustrations are omitted without ellipsis;
6. Punctuation is copied exactly, except that ornamental double punctuation is transcribed as single punctuation, and an apostrophe employed as a diacritical accent is transcribed as the appropriate modern accent;
7. Roman capital and lower-case letters u, v, vv, i, and j are copied as they appear on the title-page;
8. The gothic capital J is transcribed in terms of modern usage;
9. All superscript letters are lowered, except the superscript e employed as an umlaut;
10. Line endings are designated by a vertical bar.

Date of Publication

The thematic indexes, publishers' catalogues, plate-number lists, and special studies cited in the Bibliography were used to assign conjectured dates of publication. When prints could not be dated by means of these more authoritative sources, dates assigned in the British Union-Catalogue of Early Music were accepted.

Format

Format statements for books are based on the principles expounded in Ronald B. McKerrow's An Introduction to Bibliography for Literary Students. McKerrow's axioms regarding chain-line direction and watermark placement were used to determine the format of scores, but in some cases overriding consideration was given to size and shape.

Collation

Collations are given in full, and the presence of illustrative matter, plates, and music is noted. Signature collations are given only in the absence of printed page or folio numbers. Misnumbered pages, leaves, or signatures are noted only if the error affects the total collation.

Notes

Supplementary information, provided in notes below the collation statement, includes plate number statements, language statements, comments on significant errors in imprint or collation, and bibliographical references. The colophon is transcribed if it serves as the source of the imprint statement or if it contains important additional information. Publishers' catalogues appearing in the Harvard copies are noted. The Harvard College Library unit responsible for the present administration of each item is indicated.

Illustrations

The dimensions given in the captions refer to the maximum height and width of the printed portion of the page or pages shown.

Bibliography

The bibliography is limited to works drawn upon in the preparation of this volume. The Devriès and Lesure study could not be utilized to the fullest extent because it appeared after the catalogue portion had reached the corrected page proof stage.

Index

The index contains all names appearing on title-pages or in supplementary notes, except names of dedicatees and names of composers and authors when they appear as entries in the catalogue. References are to item numbers.

Acknowledgments

It is a pleasure to record my gratitude to the Houghton Library, the Harvard University Department of Music, and the Harvard College Library for providing the funds to publish this book. Professor Nino Pirrotta, Librarian of the Eda Kuhn Loeb Music Library from 1956 until 1970, was a kind and generous mentor. Professor William H. Bond, Librarian of the Houghton Library, graciously provided me with office space and extended to me the considerable hospitality of his library. Members of the staff of the Houghton Library who were generous with advice and assistance include Carolyn Jakeman, Assistant Librarian for Reference; James E. Walsh, Keeper of Printed Books; Rodney G. Dennis, Curator of Manuscripts; Ruth Mortimer, Cataloguer in the Department of Printing and Graphic Arts; and Joseph McCarthy, Supervisor of the Stacks.

The finished manuscript was typed by Marte Shaw (who also was helpful in her subsequent capacity as Curator of the Houghton Library Reading Room) and Esther Hecht. Most of the typescript was proofread against the original title-pages by Professor Mary Rasmussen of the University of New Hampshire, with the assistance of Esther Hecht and Philip Gambone. John Lynch most capably typed the bibliography and index. Richard Rainville read the galley and page proofs. Susan Hayes of the Harvard University Press gave freely of her expertise in book production.

Professors John M. Ward, Christoph Wolff (Curator of the Isham Memorial Library), and Lowell Lindgren (now of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology) read major portions of the galley proofs and offered valuable suggestions and corrections. At the eleventh hour, Dr. Hans-Joachim Schulze of Leipzig reduced by one the number of more serious errors in the book.

Florence Lynch, Cataloguer in the Eda Kuhn Loeb Music Library, checked the alphabetization and confirmed the locations. Larry G. Mowers, Assistant Librarian of the Music Library and Keeper of the Isham Library, contributed wise and perceptive advice. Dr. Michael Ochs, Librarian of the Music Library and Lecturer on Music, who served as editor of this volume, was a constant source of expert technical and editorial counsel and an indefatigable collaborator.

I am grateful to Merle Boylan, Director of Libraries at the University of Washington, who assigned my reporting station to Cambridge for a period of one month during the final stages of the project, and to Woodley Chapman and Mary Hogan, who generously provided me with living quarters for the summer of 1978. Christoph Wolff, Rodney Dennis, and Michael Ochs have gained my enduring gratitude for their part in bringing about the completion and publication of this catalogue. My friends Woodley and Catherine Weeks Chapman, Masakata Kanazawa, and Larry Mowers were a special source of encouragement and support.
