SYDNEY AUCKLAND NEW YORK TORONTO LONDON

‘As soon as I’ve tucked you two in I’m going to bed myself,’ said Mummy
as she gave Sue and Jenny a bath.

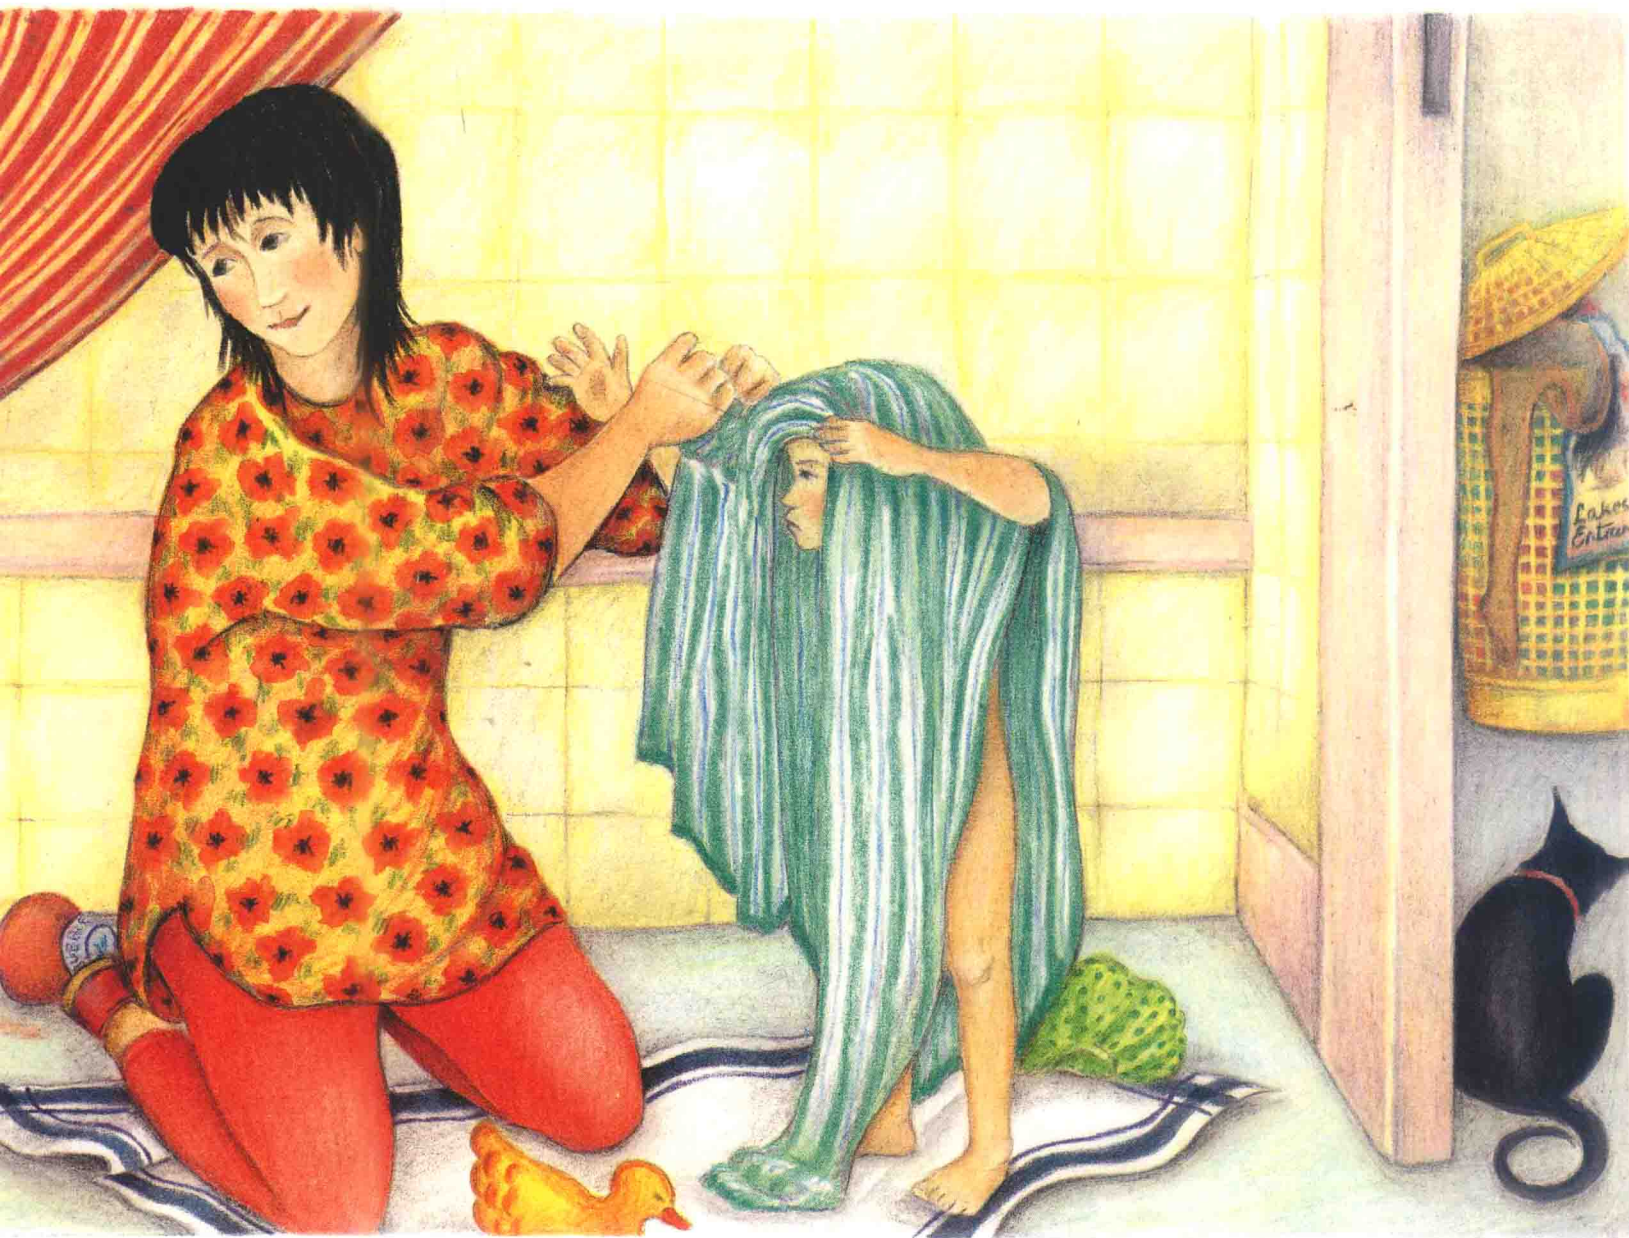

‘I’m so tired that I can’t think straight.’

‘Let me tell the bed-time story tonight,’ said Sue.

‘Then you won’t have to think at all.’

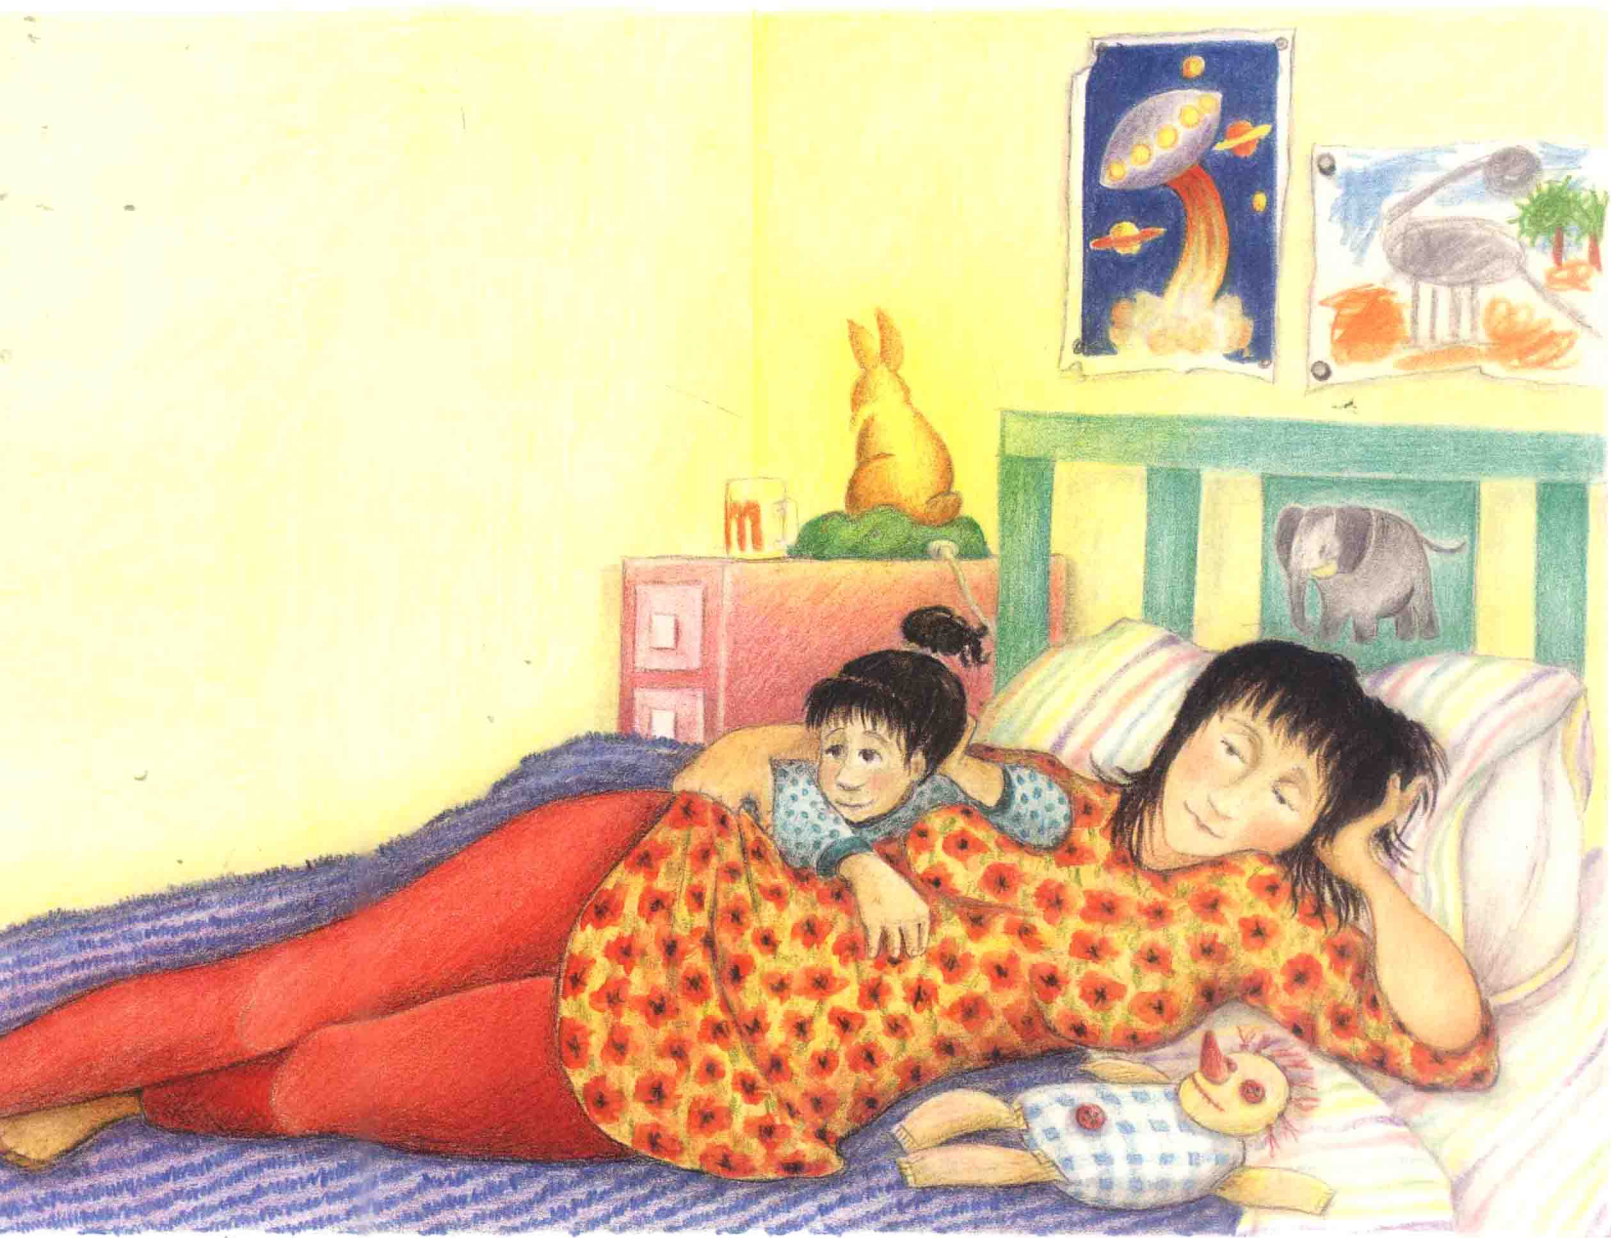

‘That would be great,’ said Mummy.

But Jenny frowned,
'I hope you can tell a good story, Sue,' she said.

Mummy kissed them both and tucked them in.

Then she lay down on Jenny's bed
while Sue made up a story about Mitzi, their cat.

The story was funny and Jenny asked a lot of questions.
Mummy didn't say anything.

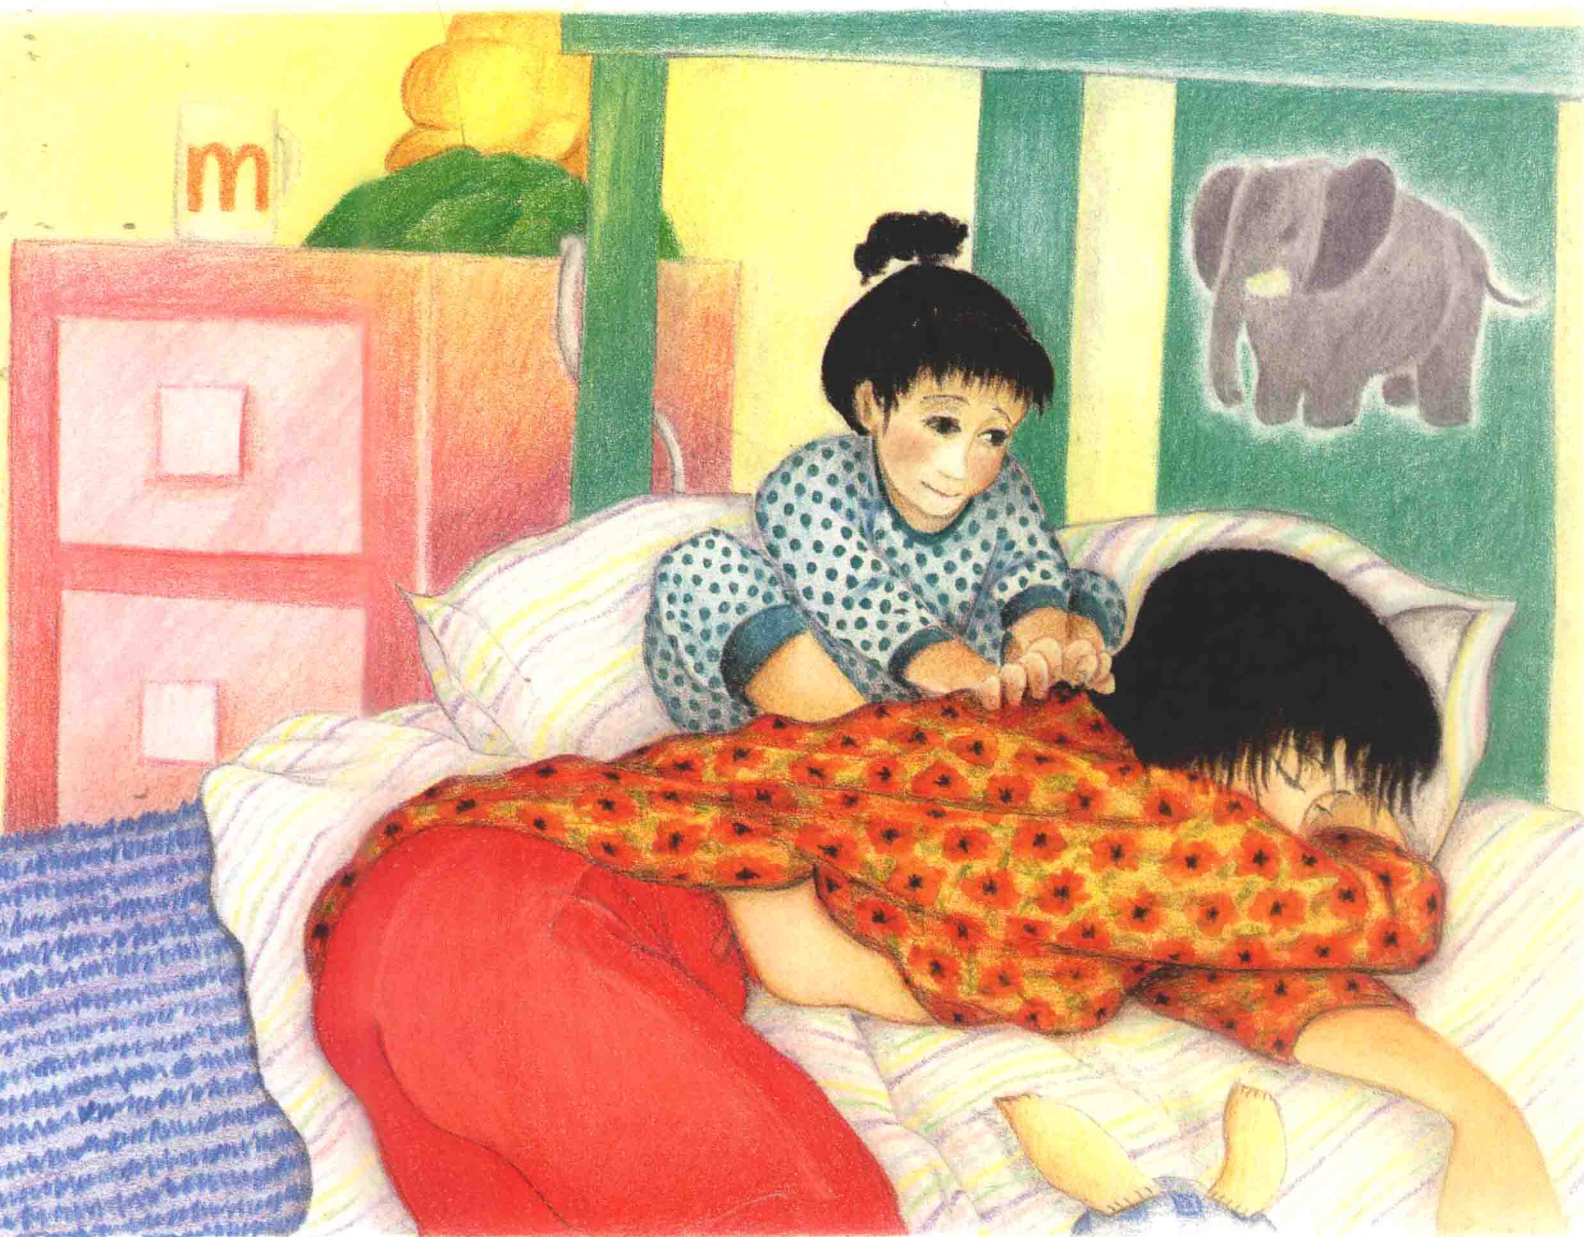

Suddenly Jenny said, 'Mummy's asleep!'

They both sat up.

‘What shall we do?’ asked Sue.

Jenny shook Mummy gently, but Mummy slept on.

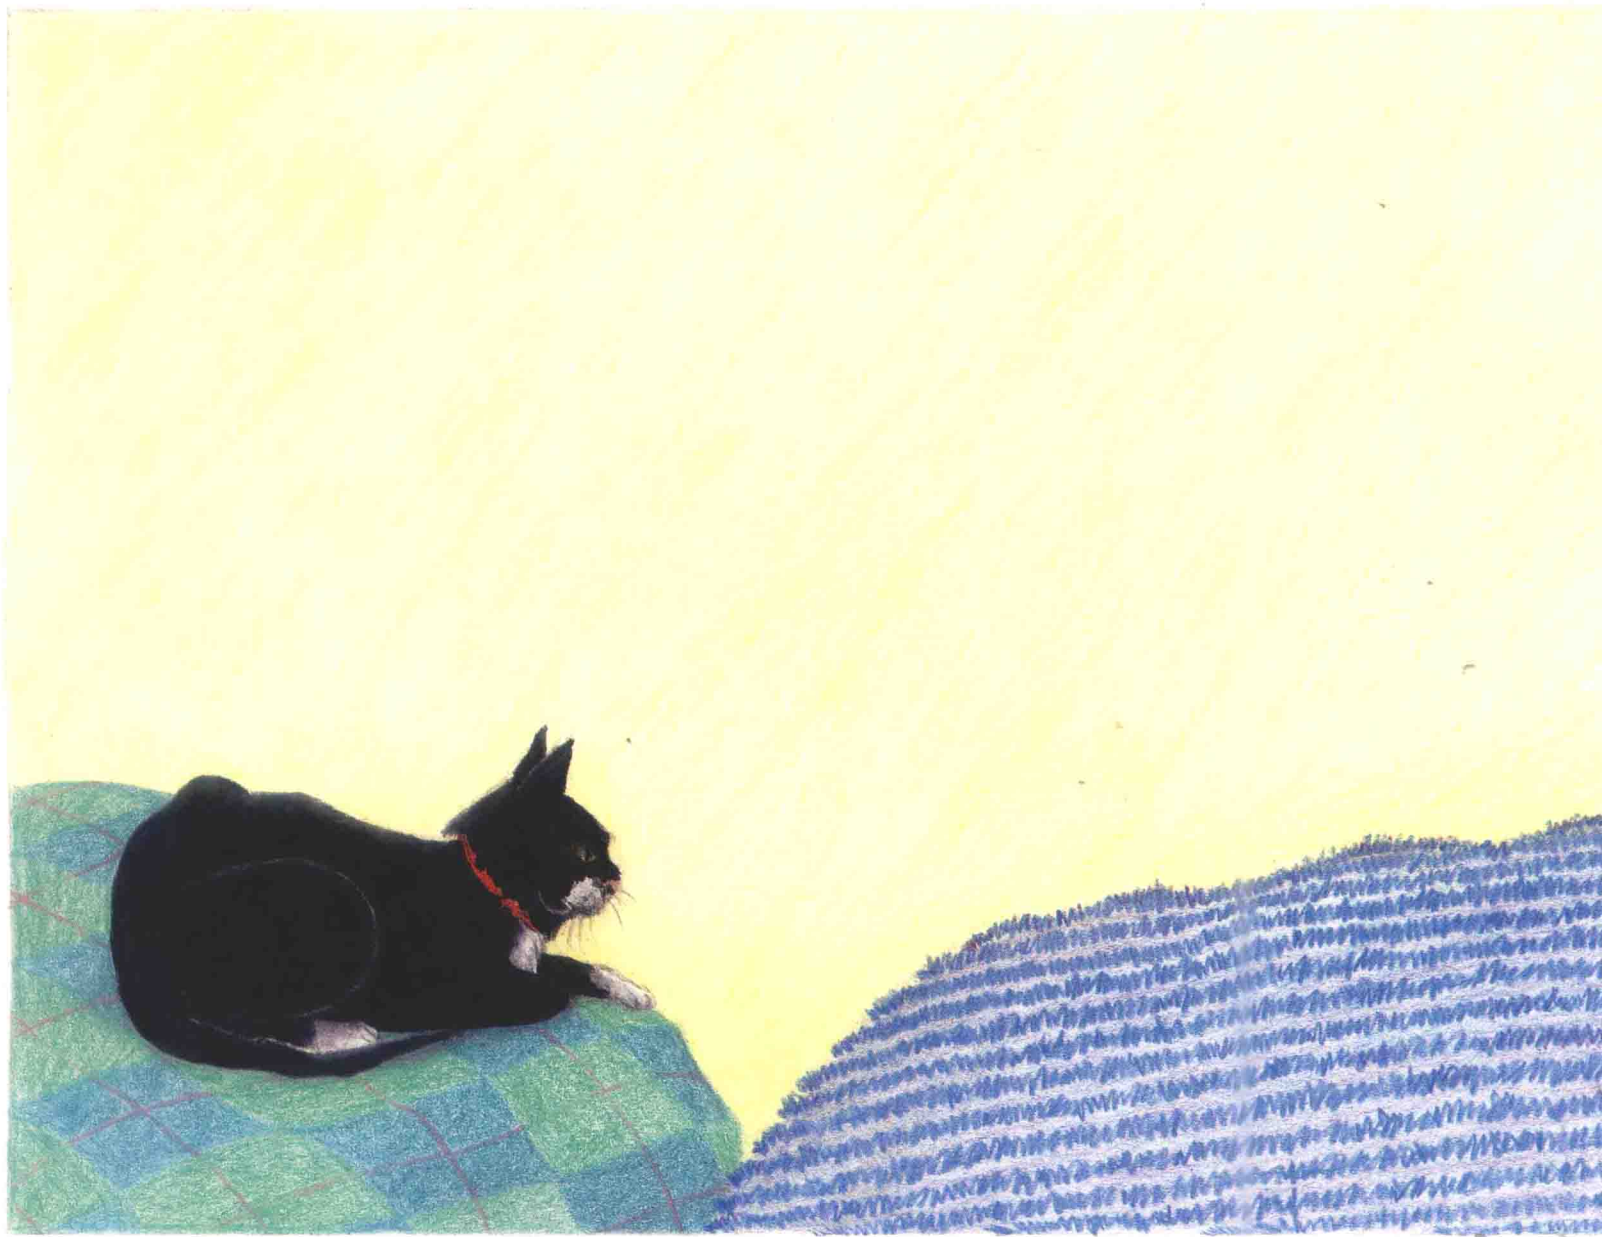

Sue came over to Jenny's bed.

'Wake up Mummy,' she said loudly.

'Mmmm,' said Mummy,
but she didn't wake up.

'We'll have to do something else,' said Sue.

Together they shook Mummy quite hard.
