Christmas would soon be here.
Sebastian Bear was worrying about what presents he should give to his family. "I want to give them all something useful," he said to himself, "Something they will really like."
But he could not think of anything.

STICKERS:

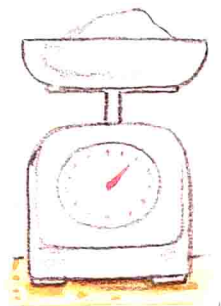

Sebastian helped his mother to make the Christmas pudding. In went the juicy sultanas and raisins, the orange peel, the spices, the flour and the sugar. Sebastian tasted it. "I love raw pudding!" he said, licking his lips.

STICKERS:

Round and round went Sebastian's spoon, stirring the pudding mixture.
"I'm a cement mixer", said Sebastian,
"My barrel is whirling fast!"
When the mixture was ready they wrapped it in calico, boiled it and hung it up in the pantry.

STICKERS:

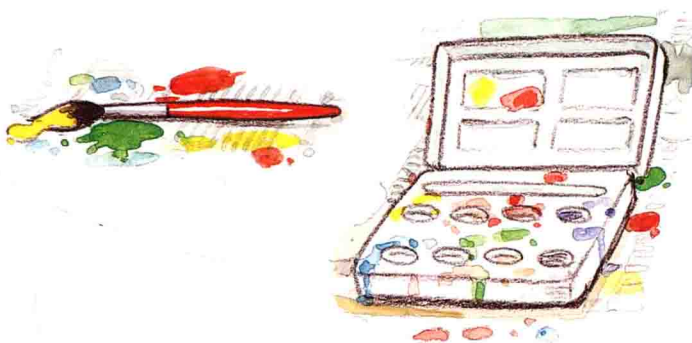

After they had used up all the paints, they waited for the paper to dry and shared the last two honey-drops from the jar on the mantelpiece.

"I think we have the best wrapping paper in Australia!" said Sally proudly.

STICKERS:

Sebastian helped Grandma collect interesting seed-pods to make Christmas decorations.

"Ouch!" said Sebastian. He had just stepped on a prickly seed-pod and it had gone right through the hole in his shoe!

Luckily, bears have tough paws.

STICKERS:

Sebastian and Sally helped Father to get a Christmas tree from the woods. It was exciting amongst the trees. The little bears pretended they were having adventures in the jungle. Father pretended to be scary tiger - until his belt broke and his trousers fell down!

STICKERS:

Then father hitched up his trousers with a piece of string and chopped down the tree they had chosen. They lifted it on the cart and took it home to cover it with decorations.
