IMPORTANT: KEEP THE PDR SUPPLEMENTS WITH YOUR PDR ANNUAL VOLUME

PDR Supplements are published twice a year in May and September to provide you with important revised information, in a convenient and timely manner, on products described in this volume. PDR Supplements also include comprehensive descriptions of new products introduced after this edition went to press.

The Supplements are designed to become a permanent part of this volume. Each issue you receive during the year should be retained. Do not discard the previous issue. PDR Supplements are not cumulative.

HOW TO ALERT YOURSELF TO REVISED PRODUCT INFORMATION

Most physicians refer first to the PDR annual volume when seeking information on a particular product. But new or revised information, submitted after PDR was published, may be available in the PDR Supplements.

As a reminder to check the Supplements for such revisions, we suggest that you write the words "See Supplements" over the out-of-date material in the product's description in this volume. Then you'll be alerted to check the Supplements before prescribing or administering the product.

Never use a product described in this volume until you have checked the PDR Supplements for possible new or revised information.

FOREWORD TO THE FIFTIETH EDITION

With this edition, PDR celebrates a half-century of service to the healthcare community—and 50 years of unparalleled progress. Starting as a modest compendium some 300 pages in length, PDR has grown to become the largest annual medical reference in the United States. Relied on for complete, FDA-approved prescribing information by virtually every American physician, it is now a standard fixture in healthcare facilities across the land, from the smallest of clinics to the most prestigious medical centers.

Over the years, the extraordinary growth of PDR has spawned a whole library of medical references, available in both traditional and electronic form. In addition to PDR itself, this library now includes:

- PDR Guide to Drug Interactions • Side Effects • Indications™
- PDR For Nonprescription Drugs®
- PDR For Ophthalmology®
- PDR® Generics™
- PDR® Nurse's Handbook™
- PDR® Medical Dictionary™
- PDR Supplements

And now, to mark its fiftieth anniversary, PDR has introduced an advanced new PDR® Electronic Library™ on CD-ROM. This Windows-compatible disc provides users with a complete database of PDR prescribing information, electronically searchable for instant retrieval. A standard subscription includes PDR's sophisticated prescription-screening program and an exhaustive file of chemical structures, illustrations, and full-color product photographs. Optional enhancements include the complete contents of The Merck Manual and Stedman's Medical Dictionary, as well as a handy file of patient handouts drawn from PDR's consumer handbook, The PDR® Family Guide to Prescription Drugs®. The disc is available for use on individual PCs and PC networks.

For facilities with large, mainframe-based information systems, PDR information is also available as a preformatted text file on magnetic tape. For drug interaction information drawn from the peer-reviewed medical literature, there's the new PDR® Drug REAX™ system, available for Windows-based PCs. And for personal use—on rounds or on the go—there's Pocket PDR®, a unique handheld electronic database of prescribing information that literally fits in your pocket. For more information on this or any other member of the growing family of PDR products, please call, toll-free, 1-800-232-7379 or fax 201-573-4956.

PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE is published by Medical Economics in cooperation with participating manufacturers. This golden anniversary edition provides the latest available information on more than 2,500 specific pharmaceutical products, including over 200 completely new listings. Each full-length entry provides you with an exact copy of the product's FDA-approved labeling.

Under the federal Food, Drug & Cosmetics (FD&C) Act, a drug approved for marketing may be labeled, promoted, and advertised by the manufacturer for only those uses for which the drug's safety and effectiveness have been established. The Code of Federal Regulations 201.100(d)(1) pertaining to labeling for prescription products requires that for PDR content "indications, effects, dosages, routes, methods, and frequency and duration of administration and any relevant warnings, hazards, contraindications, side effects, and precautions" must be "same in language and emphasis" as the approved labeling for the products. FDA regards the words same in language and emphasis as requiring VERBATIM use of the approved labeling providing such information. Furthermore, information that is emphasized in the approved labeling by the use of type set in a box, or in capitals, boldface, or italics, must be given the same emphasis in PDR.

The FDA has also recognized that the FD&C Act does not, however, limit the manner in which a physician may use an approved drug. Once a product has been approved for marketing, a physician may choose to prescribe it for uses or in treatment regimens or patient populations that are not included in approved labeling. The FDA also observes that accepted medical practice includes drug use that is not reflected in approved drug labeling. For products that do not have official package circulars, the publisher has emphasized the necessity of describing such products comprehensively, so that physicians can have access to all information essential for intelligent and informed decision making.

The function of the publisher is the compilation, organization, and distribution of this information. Each product description has been prepared by the manufacturer, and edited and approved by the manufacturer's medical department, medical director, and/or medical consultant. In organizing and presenting the material in PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE, the publisher does not warrant or guarantee any of the products described, or perform any independent analysis in connection with any of the product information contained herein. PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE does not assume, and expressly disclaims, any obligation to obtain and include any information other than that provided to it by the manufacturer. It should be understood that by making this material available the publisher is not advocating the use of any product described herein, nor is the publisher responsible for misuse of a product due to typographical error. Additional information on any product may be obtained from the manufacturer.

MANUFACTURERS' INDEX

Listed in this index are all manufacturers participating in PHYSICIANS' DESK REFERENCE. It is through their courtesy that PDR is brought to the medical profession.

Each company's entry includes the address, phone, and fax number of its headquarters and regional offices, as well as contacts for inquiries, orders, and emergency information. Products with entries in the Product Information and Diagnostic Product Information sections are listed with their page numbers. Other products available from the manufacturer are listed separately.

If a product has two or three page numbers, the first one or two refer to its photograph, the last one to its prescribing information.

■ Bold page numbers indicate full prescribing information.

■ Italic page numbers signify partial information.

■ The □ symbol means product information is located in PDR For Nonprescription Drugs.

■ The ⊙ symbol means product information is located in PDR For Ophthalmology.
