TO JOHN BLAND

*My Lamb, you are so very small,
You have not learned to read at all.
Yet never a printed book withstands
The urgency of your dimpled hands.
So, though this book is for yourself,
Let mother keep it on the shelf
Till you can read. O days that pass,
That day will come too soon, alas!*

Parts of this story appeared in the Strand Magazine under the title of
THE PSAMMEAD

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

The Psammead	Frontispiece
That first glorious rush round the garden	Page 16
Cyril had nipped his finger in the door of a hutch	19
Anthea suddenly screamed "It's alive!"	23
The baby did not know them	33
Martha emptied a toilet jug of cold water over him	36
The rain fell in slow drops on to Anthea's face	40
And all the gleaming heap was minted gold	46
He staggered and had to sit down	49
They all put their tongues out	51
Mr. Beale snatched the coin and bit it	55
They had run into Martha and the baby	59
He said "Now then!" to the policeman and Mr. Peasemarsb	62
The lucky children started hurriedly for the gravel-pit	68
"Poof, poof, poofy," he said, and made a grab	73
At double-quick time ran the twinkling legs of the Lamb's brothers and sisters	76
Next minute the two were fighting here and there	78
He snatched the baby from Anthea	81

He consented to let the gipsy woman feed him	84
The gipsy woman moved her finger about on his forehead	89
"Thank you," it said, "that's better. What's the wish this morning?"	95
They flew right over Rochester	99
The farmer sat down on the grass suddenly	103
Everyone now turned out its pockets	105
These were the necessaries of life which Cyril handed out of the larder window	108
The children slept	111
The keeper spoke deep-chested words through the keyhole	117
It had turned into a stately castle	127
Robert was dragged forthwith—by the reluctant ear	129
He wiped away a manly tear	132
"Oh, do, do, do, do, do!" said Robert	135
The man fell with a plop-plash into the moat- water	147
Anthea tilted the pot over the nearest lead-hole	151
He also pulled Robert's hair	157
"The Sammyadd's done us again," said Cyril	161
He lifted up the baker's boy and set him on the top of the haystack	163

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS 13

It was a strange sensation being wheeled in a pony-carriage by a giant	166
When the girl came out she was pale and trembling	171
When your time's up, come to me	174
Ask for a good fat Megatherium	179
I suppose he'll be grown up some day	181
You kids must learn not to make yourselves a nuisance	186
There, sure enough, stood a bicycle	189
"Don't let him," said Anthea, "he's not fit to go with anyone!"	192
The grown-up Lamb struggled furiously	195
