INTRODUCTION

In recent years there has been a marked increase in the number of firms that have grown at an astonishing rate through mergers and acquisitions. Some of these have been financed by an exchange of common stock, some by the use of convertible securities and others simply by cash.

Acquisitions and mergers are so prevalent today that the management of every corporation must be able to evaluate the possibilities of expansion by this route. It must also be able to determine whether or not its company is faced with the prospect of being acquired, since hardly a day goes by in which newspapers do not carry notices of solicitation.

The Directory of Inter-Corporate Ownership is a reliable index to Who Owns Whom in America. It lists parent companies, divisions and subsidiaries, affiliates, joint ventures, overseas subsidiaries, as well as American companies owned by foreign firms.

This Directory is intended to serve as an essential reference tool for corporate executives, bankers, financiers, marketing managers, investors, portfolio managers, financial analysts, management consultants, researchers, personnel managers, tax consultants, government officials – in short, for everybody whose activities are in any way concerned with the corporate structure of our society and who owns and governs its activities.

It is divided into two parts:

Volume One – Lists, in alphabetical order, all parent companies and their complete addresses. Each entry also includes the names of the firms – divisions, subsidiaries, affiliates, joint ventures, and overseas branches – they own or control; as well as the state or country of operation for each.

Volume Two – Is an alphabetical index of the approximately 90,000 entries in Volume One: parent companies, subsidiaries, divisions, or overseas subsidiaries. American companies that are subsidiaries, affiliates or joint ventures of foreign firms operating in the United States are also included.

The Directory of Inter-Corporate Ownership covers all functions and activities of the business community. Manufacturers, financial institutions, wholesalers, retailers, service organizations, transportation companies and hundreds of different branches of business, that comprise the complete American corporate community, are noted.

Collecting and organizing the type of material presented in the two volumes of this Directory has been a long and arduous task, chiefly because most corporations regard this information as a kind of "military secret," and very few executives have access to it. The average employee does not usually know what his company owns, and what firms are its subsidiaries or divisions. The knowledge about foreign branches or subsidiaries, or connections with foreign enterprise, is limited to very few.

Care has been taken to assure that the information presented in the Directory of Inter-Corporate Ownership is correct and reliable. Nevertheless, because of human factors, and the possibilities of error inherent in the compilation of a work of this size, the compiler cannot assume liability for the accuracy of all the listings, or for the information on which they are based. Any errors brought to the attention of the publisher will be corrected in a subsequent edition. The listings are up-to-date, allowing for the time it took to compile and prepare the two volumes for publication.

Thanks are due to Joseph F. Meley, Charles E. O'Connell, James H. Headley, June L. Aulick, Sara Gonzalez, Raymond H. Cross, Alberto Vallejo, Margaret Raymond, and Fay Lebow, for their help in preparing this Directory for publication.
