

Richard Starcher

Africans in Pursuit of a Theological Doctorate

Doctoral Program Design in a Non-Western Context

LAMBERT
Academic Publishing

Richard Starcher

Africans in Pursuit of a Theological Doctorate

Doctoral Program Design in a Non-Western Context

LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing

Impressum/Imprint (nur für Deutschland/ only for Germany)

Bibliografische Information der Deutschen Nationalbibliothek: Die Deutsche Nationalbibliothek verzeichnet diese Publikation in der Deutschen Nationalbibliografie; detaillierte bibliografische Daten sind im Internet über <http://dnb.d-nb.de> abrufbar.

Alle in diesem Buch genannten Marken und Produktnamen unterliegen warenzeichen-, marken- oder patentrechtlichem Schutz bzw. sind Warenzeichen oder eingetragene Warenzeichen der jeweiligen Inhaber. Die Wiedergabe von Marken, Produktnamen, Gebrauchsnamen, Handelsnamen, Warenbezeichnungen u.s.w. in diesem Werk berechtigt auch ohne besondere Kennzeichnung nicht zu der Annahme, dass solche Namen im Sinne der Warenzeichen- und Markenschutzgesetzgebung als frei zu betrachten wären und daher von jedermann benutzt werden dürften.

Coverbild: www.ingimage.com

Verlag: LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing AG & Co. KG
Dudweiler Landstr. 99, 66123 Saarbrücken, Deutschland
Telefon +49 681 3720-310, Telefax +49 681 3720-3109
Email: info@lap-publishing.com

Herstellung in Deutschland:
Schaltungsdienst Lange o.H.G., Berlin
Books on Demand GmbH, Norderstedt
Reha GmbH, Saarbrücken
Amazon Distribution GmbH, Leipzig
ISBN: 978-3-8383-8087-2

Imprint (only for USA, GB)

Bibliographic information published by the Deutsche Nationalbibliothek: The Deutsche Nationalbibliothek lists this publication in the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie; detailed bibliographic data are available in the Internet at <http://dnb.d-nb.de>.

Any brand names and product names mentioned in this book are subject to trademark, brand or patent protection and are trademarks or registered trademarks of their respective holders. The use of brand names, product names, common names, trade names, product descriptions etc. even without a particular marking in this works is in no way to be construed to mean that such names may be regarded as unrestricted in respect of trademark and brand protection legislation and could thus be used by anyone.

Cover image: www.ingimage.com

Publisher: LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing AG & Co. KG
Dudweiler Landstr. 99, 66123 Saarbrücken, Germany
Phone +49 681 3720-310, Fax +49 681 3720-3109
Email: info@lap-publishing.com

Printed in the U.S.A.

Printed in the U.K. by (see last page)

ISBN: 978-3-8383-8087-2

Copyright © 2010 by the author and LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing AG & Co. KG and licensors
All rights reserved. Saarbrücken 2010

AFRICANS IN PURSUIT OF A THEOLOGICAL DOCTORATE:
A GROUNDED THEORY STUDY OF
THEOLOGICAL DOCTORAL PROGRAM DESIGN
IN A NON-WESTERN CONTEXT

by

Richard L. Starcher

A DISSERTATION

Presented to the Faculty of
The Graduate College at the University of Nebraska
In Partial Fulfillment of Requirements
For the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Major: Administration, Curriculum & Instruction

Under the Supervision of Professor Sheldon L. Stick

Lincoln, Nebraska

May 2003

AFRICANS IN PURSUIT OF A THEOLOGICAL DOCTORATE:
A GROUNDED THEORY STUDY OF
THEOLOGICAL DOCTORAL PROGRAM DESIGN
IN A NON-WESTERN CONTEXT

Richard Lee Starcher, Ph.D.

University of Nebraska, 2003

Adviser: Sheldon L. Stick

Within the milieu of higher theological education in Africa there is a great demand for highly educated nationals to staff a growing number of theological colleges and seminaries. Due largely to a dearth of other opportunities, Africans desiring theological doctorates have pursued higher studies in Europe and North America. The same pattern is common in other non-Western contexts. However, this practice is perceived as producing certain undesirable “side-effects” (e.g., brain-drain, reintegration difficulties, contextually inappropriate training).

Theological graduate schools in numerous non-Western settings (e.g., Latin America, Korea, India, and Singapore) are launching doctoral programs. Some schools appear to adopt, uncritically, Western models or, worse, simply facilitate transplanted Western programs.

The Nairobi Evangelical Graduate School of Theology (NEGST) has published plans to offer theological doctorates in the near future. How should this seminary proceed when designing a doctoral program appropriate to its context? This dissertation proposes a theory, “Contextual Pragmatism,” for guiding design decisions. The theory proposes the ideal theological doctoral program for “black Africa” has practical value in and for the African context. It facilitates Africa-relevant research and provides relevant preparation for the “real” work awaiting African doctoral graduates. It is achievable because it is affordable, not overly long, and utilizes delivery systems that permit students to manage the realities of life in Africa. It recognizes the practical importance of international credibility by being duly accredited and by striving to conform to globally accepted standards of quality in terms of faculty resources, research capacity, and student excellence.

The theory is grounded in data collected from 33 stakeholders, identified as African theological doctoral students (past, present and prospective) and leaders of institutions of higher education likely to hire NEGST’s future doctoral graduates. Four “profiles” (student, graduate, program, and institutional) emerging from the data identify important aspects of theological doctoral program design in a non-Western context and enhance comprehension of Africans in pursuit of a theological doctorate.

Acknowledgements

I owe thanks to many individuals for help I received in completing this dissertation. At the risk of omitting some, I will mention a few. First, I thank the research participants, most of them African colleagues, for sharing freely from their experiences. This work is their story.

Second, I thank my children; Amy, Josh, and Matt, all of whom contributed to this work by transcribing taped interviews. In addition, Amy meticulously proofread the entire manuscript in preparation for its submission to the dissertation committee.

Third, I thank my academic advisor, Professor Sheldon Stick, for his help and encouragement every step of the way. I am most grateful for his “severe” critique of my writing, without which the text certainly would have been less readable and accurate.

May every doctoral student be blessed with an advisor as helpful as Dr. Stick.

Last but certainly not least, I thank my wife, Marcia, for her faithful support, without which it would have been impossible to bring this task to completion. In addition to proofreading numerous drafts, she served as a sounding board for ideas, provided comfort and encouragement along the way, and patiently endured all my emotional ups and downs. This dissertation is as much hers as it is mine.

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements.....	xiii
Chapter 1: Introduction	1
Problem statement.....	2
Doctoral programs at the Nairobi Evangelical Graduate School of Theology	4
Contextual considerations.....	5
A brief description of NEGST	7
Purpose of the study.....	8
Research questions.....	9
Definitions	10
Limitations of the study	12
Delimitations of the study.....	13
Significance of the study.....	13
Chapter 2: Literature review and preliminary considerations	15
What is a doctorate?.....	15
Environmental considerations in doctoral program design	18
Paths to a doctoral degree in theology	19
Example of London Bible College (England)	20
Example of the Faculté de Théologie Evangélique (France).....	21
Example of Trinity Evangelical Divinity School (U.S.A.).....	23
An analysis of the three sample doctoral paths.....	24

North American seminary doctoral programs	25
The Doctor of Ministry degree	25
A comparison of Doctor of Ministry programs	26
An analysis of the Doctor of Ministry Programs.....	27
The Doctor of Philosophy degree	29
A comparison of Doctor of Philosophy programs	29
An analysis of Doctor of Philosophy Programs.....	31
Combination academic/professional degree programs	34
An analysis of the academic/professional doctoral programs	40
Summary of the reviewed American doctoral programs	41
Theological doctoral programs outside the West	41
South Asian Institution of Advanced Christian Studies	42
Asian Center for Theological Studies.....	43
The Catholic University of Eastern Africa	46
Latin American cooperative doctoral program.....	48
The history of AETAL's proposed doctoral program	48
Conclusions about the type of program needed.....	49
Other pertinent information	49
Analysis of the proposed Latin American doctoral program	51
Conclusion	52
Summary.....	53

Chapter 3: Research methodology, method, and procedures.....	55
The philosophical theoretical framework of qualitative research.....	56
Ontological assumptions of qualitative research	56
Epistemological assumptions of qualitative research	57
The role of the researcher in a qualitative design	57
The role of the researched in a qualitative design	57
Axiological assumptions of qualitative research	58
Rhetorical assumptions of qualitative research	58
Methodological assumptions of qualitative research.....	59
Grounded theory	59
The development of the grounded theory approach	60
The philosophical underpinnings of grounded theory	61
A definition of theory	62
Grounded theory canons and procedures.....	63
Data collection in grounded theory.....	65
Sampling in grounded theory.....	65
Data analysis in grounded theory.....	66
Open coding	66
Axial coding.....	67
Selective coding.....	67
Memo writing	68
Verification in grounded theory.....	68

Proposed research procedure	69
Data collection	70
Use of interviews	72
Use of audio recording.....	73
Data analysis and verification strategies.....	73
Ethical issues.....	74
Pilot study	74
Chapter 4: Student profile.....	76
Demographics	79
Motivation.....	81
Personal ambition	82
Competence	82
Access	84
Usefulness.....	87
Program choice	89
Achievability.....	89
Affordability	89
Family concerns.....	93
Delivery systems.....	95
Conclusion on achievability.....	97
Context.....	97
Relevance.....	97

Credibility	99
Language.....	100
Content.....	101
Field of study	101
Faculty	102
Program model.....	103
Communication/information.....	103
Conclusion on program choice	105
Conclusion on student profile	106
Chapter 5: Graduate profile	107
Academic qualities.....	107
Doctoral degrees	107
Specialization.....	110
Research and writing	112
Heavy faculty workloads	112
Ineffective institutional incentives for research productivity	114
Conclusion on research and writing.....	116
Conclusion on academic qualities.....	117
Skills qualities.....	117
Teaching.....	118
Administration	118
Conclusion on skills qualities	120

Character qualities	120
Experience qualities	123
Conclusion on graduate profile.....	123
Chapter 6: Program profile	125
A contextually useful program	125
Cultural suitability	126
Adaptation trauma.....	126
Cultural adaptation.....	126
Academic adaptation.....	128
Attachment pitfalls.....	132
Brain-drain	132
Reintegration difficulties	133
Conclusion on cultural suitability	135
Relevant research	135
Benefits Africa.....	136
Benefits the African Church	140
Conclusion on relevant research	141
Relevant preparation	143
Preparation for post-secondary teaching.....	143
Preparation for higher education administration	146
Conclusion on relevant preparation	147
Implications of contextual usefulness for program model and content	148

A demonstrably achievable program	148
Affordability	148
Program costs.....	148
Delivery systems.....	155
Income generation.....	158
Program length.....	158
Delivery systems.....	161
An internationally credible program.....	163
Program accreditation	165
Program quality.....	166
Faculty	166
Research capacity	167
Interlibrary collaboration	168
Information technology.....	168
Students.....	169
Conclusion on program credibility and its implications for program model.....	169
Conclusion on program profile	170
Chapter 7: Institutional profile.....	172
Research resources.....	172
Information technology.....	173
Interlibrary cooperation	174
International travel for research.....	175

Doctoral faculty	176
Sufficient faculty resources	176
Erudition and experience	177
Accessibility.....	178
Supplementary doctoral faculty	179
Utilization of adjunct faculty	180
Collaboration for faculty development	181
Conclusion on doctoral faculty	182
Creative leadership	182
Program content.....	183
Program achievability	183
Institutional flexibility	183
Flexible admission policies.....	184
Responsive administration.....	185
Conclusion on institutional flexibility	185
Program affordability.....	186
A modular delivery system	186
Student employment	187
Networking with “stakeholder” organizations.....	189
Conclusion on institutional profile	190
Chapter 8: Summary and discussion.....	191
A Theory of “African” Doctoral Program Design.....	191

Student profile.....	192
Graduate profile	192
Program profile	193
Institutional profile	193
Secondary research questions	194
Question one	194
Question two	195
Question three	196
Question four	197
Question five.....	198
Question six	199
The British model	199
The French model	199
The American model	200
Question seven.....	201
Question eight	201
“Contextual pragmatism” in a global environment	202
“Contextual pragmatism: and the academic-professional continuum	202
“Contextual pragmatism” and NEGST’s “third doctorate”	203
“Contextual pragmatism” and other non-Western theological doctorates.....	204
Conclusion on “contextual pragmatism” in a global environment	205
Usefulness	206

Achievability.....	207
Credibility.....	207
A contextually pragmatic doctoral program	207
Limitations of the study	208
Recommendations for further study	209
References.....	210
Appendix A: Informed consent form.....	215
Appendix B: Abbreviations and acronyms	216
Appendix C: Interview guide for students	218
Appendix D: Interview guide for institutional leaders	219
Appendix E: Initial open coding categories.....	220