Acknowledgments

I have been extremely fortunate to have had the kind assistance of several people in the preparation of this project. Joyce E. Larson, a Legal Assistant Coordinator in the Mutual Funds division of Brown & Wood, generously provided succinct and helpful criticism of the work in progress and continual encouragement throughout the writing of this book. Maria Montgomery, a corporate Legal Assistant and translator of international contracts at Stroock & Stroock & Lavan, spent many devoted hours commenting on and editing the manuscript. Words cannot express my gratitude to these two kind and intelligent women, without whose help this book never would have been possible.

I wish to thank all of the people at Little, Brown and Company who have been unflaggingly cheerful, humorous, and encouraging. Most especially I would like to thank Betsy Kenny, Carolyn O'Sullivan, Kerry Vieira, and Lisa Wehrle.

One final thank you goes to the reviewers listed below. Their careful efforts in reviewing the manuscript, and the many thoughtful comments and suggestions that resulted, have been greatly appreciated.

Introduction

This book provides the paralegal student and practitioner with a quick, simple, and straightforward text on the law of contracts. It helps to clarify this very complex area of law using numerous practical examples of how to draft and interpret different types of contracts. This book is not intended to discuss every nuance of contract law, nor is it designed as a casebook for law students. Basic Contract Law for Paralegals is meant to be an easy-to-use, readable reference tool for the legal assistant.
