

EDITORS: CHRISTOPHER HEATH AND ANSELM KAMPERMAN SANDERS

LANDMARK INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CASES AND THEIR LEGACY

IEEM International Intellectual Property Conferences

Wolters Kluwer
Law & Business

INSTITUTE OF EUROPEAN STUDIES OF MACAU
澳門歐洲研究學會
INSTITUTO DE ESTUDOS EUROPEUS DE MACAU

Landmark Intellectual Property Cases and Their Legacy

IEEM International Intellectual Property Conferences

Christopher Heath and Anselm Kamperman Sanders (eds)

INSTITUTE OF EUROPEAN STUDIES OF MACAU
澳門歐洲研究學會
INSTITUTO DE ESTUDOS EUROPEUS DE MACAU

Wolters Kluwer
Law & Business

Published by:

Kluwer Law International
PO Box 316
2400 AH Alphen aan den Rijn
The Netherlands
Website: www.kluwerlaw.com

Sold and distributed in North, Central and South America by:

Aspen Publishers, Inc.
7201 McKinney Circle
Frederick, MD 21704
United States of America
Email: customer.service@aspenpublishers.com

Sold and distributed in all other countries by:

Turpin Distribution Services Ltd.
Stratton Business Park
Pegasus Drive, Biggleswade
Bedfordshire SG18 8TQ
United Kingdom
Email: kluwerlaw@turpin-distribution.com

Printed on acid-free paper.

ISBN 978-90-411-3343-4

© 2011 Kluwer Law International BV, The Netherlands

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without written permission from the publisher.

Permission to use this content must be obtained from the copyright owner. Please apply to: Permissions Department, Wolters Kluwer Legal, 76 Ninth Avenue, 7th Floor, New York, NY 10011-5201, USA.
Email: permissions@kluwerlaw.com

Printed in Great Britain.

IEEM and International Intellectual Property Law

The involvement of the Institute of European Studies of Macau (IEEM) in matters of intellectual property is based on annual conferences that take up topical issues of intellectual property from a comparative perspective with a particular focus on Asia and Europe. The first of these conferences was held back in 2000, and has meanwhile become an annual event complemented by an Intellectual Property School and IP Master Classes. All three venues serve as a platform for academic teaching and discussion on intellectual property awareness and the proper place and function of intellectual property law in the context of society and public interest.

From the very start, the intellectual property conferences, the IP Law School and the Master Classes have enjoyed the support, assistance and commitment of Mr Gonalo Cabral, who is an advisor to the Government of Macau, of Ms Maria do C u Esteves, past president of the IEEM, and the IEEM's current president Dr Jos  Lu s de Sales Marques. The latter was also instrumental in setting up an IEEM chair for intellectual property law at the University of Maastricht, currently held by Anselm Kamperman Sanders, thereby further contributing to IEEM's academic commitment to the field of intellectual property law.

The conference papers, as revised and updated, are edited by Christopher Heath and Anselm Kamperman Sanders as an IEEM Intellectual Property Series the volumes of which are listed at the end of this book.

Preface

This is a book dedicated to landmark cases in the field of Intellectual Property, and their legacy. Throughout the book, the contributors in turn deal with a case or a series of cases that have made an impact on legal theory or critical thinking about the scope and purpose of the protection of intellectual and industrial creativity. By definition, this means that the cases discussed in this book deal with extraordinary circumstances that have prompted judicial action.

And extraordinary circumstances make bad case law – or do they? Most of the cases selected in this volume have been decided based on unusual facts that, at least in the eyes of the court, required unusual and novel solutions. In some cases, subsequent developments made these cases appear ‘misleading’ rather than ‘leading’. The US Supreme Court case of United Press (1918) is one of these cases that in the context of US jurisprudence can be considered a one-off. But then again, other jurisdictions have found this case helpful in developing a doctrine of slavish imitation or misappropriation beyond confusion. For other, more recent case, the verdict of history is still out, and it is too early to say whether their approach will become mainstream.

The first two cases represent the divide about what copyright law should be: A protection of the author’s rights in his creative expression, or a protection of copyright on behalf of its owner. Ultimately, the two cases concern the question of who should be master over the reputation, esteem and legacy of authors and their works. The two decisions of French courts have clearly held in favour of authors and their heirs, and against subsequent copyright owners.

The following two cases concern aspects in continental law that dealt with under the heading of unfair competition prevention: What, if any, protection should be granted to achievements in the absence of confusion? Should it, in the famous words of Rudolf Callmann, be a tort to ‘reap what one has not sown’? Should we protect commercial investment beyond the scope of defined intellectual property rights? Should it be considered a tort to use well-known marks in a way that may dilute its repute and distinctive character? These are fundamental questions that have resulted in haphazard codification, but to which no definite answers have yet been found, although both decisions, one from the US Supreme Court of 1918 and the other from the German Landgericht Elberfeld in 1924, have affirmed such an approach and received praise from academics such as Frank Schechter and Rudolf Callmann, no less.

Preface

In the patent field, discussion has always centred around the social benefit of a system effectively granting monopolistic rights: What kinds of monopolies should be protected, if any? Does the patent system in its current form allow us to question the assumption that technological progress is good per se, and that novel and inventive solutions should thus be protected? Should extraneous considerations such as public good and social usefulness be considered at the stages of grant and enforcement of patent rights? These questions have been asked by the courts in the UK as early as 1602, and much later by the Taiwanese courts in the various Philips decisions.

Academic and judicial interest in intellectual property enforcement is relatively recent and marked by the recognition that the rules developed for the enforcement of property rights are often unsuited for intangible rights where proof of infringement, infringer and damages are often hard to come by – peculiarities that led to the Anton Piller order invented by then Hugh Laddie QC and granted by the then Master of the Rolls, Lord Denning, in 1978. Yet efficient enforcement, particularly by way of injunctive relief, may have its drawbacks when running counter to the basic idea that intellectual property rights should stimulate rather than stifle innovation – submarine patents, patent thickets and standards come to mind. Would it be more appropriate in such cases to limit a patentee's remedies to appropriate damages, thereby effectively granting a compulsory license? Such position was taken by the US Supreme Court in the recent MerckExchange v. eBay case – an overdue development to some, a deeply worrying precedent to others.

The book concludes with two case clusters that are not remarkable for any single decision, but for the world-wide dimension of the dispute: Lego in about thirty jurisdictions litigated over its 'brick of the century', allowing IP lawyers to toy with patent law, copyright law, design law, trademark law, passing-off and unfair competition in order to adequately protect (or perpetuate?) investment in an invention that has given joy to millions of children. And Budweiser, the case of two very different beers, one from the Bohemian town of Budweis (or Ceske Budejovice), the other from the United States. And although one should not discuss over matters of taste, litigation in over forty jurisdictions dealt with issues of contract, trademarks, trade names, geographical indications, property rights in general, human rights, and various international and bilateral treaties, enriching both lawyers and legal doctrine along the way.

Admittedly, there could have been many more cases in this book. These landmarks, however, tower higher than others, because they deal with fundamental issues and their legacy is not at all crystallized. Exceptional cases may make bad case law, but they do make a good story, and their story continues.

Christopher Heath and Anselm Kamperman Sanders

Authors and Editors

André R. Bertrand (1952) studied at the Universities of Dijon, Paris and California, Berkeley (PhD Paris 1978 & 1995, LL.M. Berkeley 1978). In-house counsel for various companies, he joined the Paris Bar Association as an ‘avocat’ at the end of 1988. Lecturer in the field of ‘droit d’auteur’ (‘authors rights’) at the University of Paris I Pantheon-Sorbonne from 1988 to 2002, he is the author of several treaties in the fields of authors rights (‘Le Droit d’Auteur’, 3rd edn Dalloz 2010), trademarks (‘Le Droit des Marques et des signes distinctifs’, 3rd edn Dalloz, 2010), industrial property (Delmas 1995), etc. He is the founding partner of André R. Bertrand & Associés a law firm specialized in the field of IP law located in Paris.

E-mail info@cabinetbertrand.com

Matthew Fisher (1976) is a Senior Lecturer and co-director of the Institute of Brand and Innovation Law at University College London. He joined the Faculty of Laws at UCL on a full-time basis in 2009: prior to this he was a visiting lecturer (2008–2009). He previously worked (as both lecturer and senior lecturer) at the University of Bristol (2002–2009) where he established a reputation as an expert in the field of IP. He has also taught, on a visiting basis, at the University of Hong Kong since 2002. He holds a PhD in Law (2004) and BSc in Chemistry and Law (1999) from the University of Bristol, and was called to the Bar of England & Wales in 2010. He has published widely in the field of patent law: his first book Fundamentals of Patent Law: Interpretation and Scope of Protection (Hart, 2007), was very well-received, winning the inaugural Inner Temple Young Author’s Book Prize in 2008.

E-mail m.fisher@ucl.ac.uk

Vicky Hanley is a UK-qualified Barrister (2004) and Solicitor (2007), whose practice focuses on intellectual property and the regulation of electronic communications. Before becoming a consultant to ECTA, the European Competitive

Authors and Editors

Telecommunications Association, she was an associate at Covington and Burling LLP where she advised leading multinational companies on a wide range of governmental affairs and information technology-related issues, including the recent review of the telecommunications regulatory framework. Ms. Hanley is a Fellow of the International Bar Association (2009) and an Edmund Davies Scholar of The Honorable Society of Gray's Inn (2002). Recent publications she has co-authored include 'Enforcing Outside the Trademark Box: Effective Options for Grey Imports in Emerging Markets' in Trademark World (June 2009) and 'Secondary Liability for copyright infringement with regard to hyperlinks', in Peer-To-Peer File Sharing And Secondary Liability In Copyright Law, Edward Elgar Publishing (June 2009).

Christopher Heath (1964) studied law at the Universities of Konstanz, Edinburgh and the LSE. He lived and worked in Japan for three years, and between 1992 and 2005 headed the Asian Department of the Max-Planck-Institute for Patent, Copyright and Competition Law in Munich. Christopher Heath, who wrote his PhD thesis on Japanese unfair competition prevention law, is a Member of the Boards of Appeal at the European Patent Office in Munich, co-editor of IIC and editor of the Max Planck Institute's Asian Intellectual Property Series published by Kluwer Law International.

E-mail cheath@epo.org

Anselm Kamperman Sanders (1968) is Professor of Intellectual Property Law, Director of the Advanced Masters Intellectual Property Law and Knowledge Management (IPKM LLM/MSc), and Academic Director of the Institute for Globalization and International Regulation (IGIR) at Maastricht University, the Netherlands. He acts as Academic Co-director of the Annual Intellectual Property Law School and IP Seminar of the Institute for European Studies of Macau (IEEM), Macau SAR, China. Anselm holds a PhD from the Centre for Commercial Law Studies, Queen Mary, University of London, where he worked as a Marie Curie Fellow before joining Maastricht University in 1995. He is the Dutch coordinator of the training preparing for the certificate of 'Benelux Trademarks and Design Agent', organized by the BBMM. Furthermore Anselm is very active in Intellectual Property training, curriculum development, and consultancy projects, especially for developing countries and a member of editorial and/or advisory board of Intellectuele Eigendom en Reclamerecht, the Maastricht Journal of European and Comparative Law, and the Intellectual Property Quarterly.

E-mail: a.kampermansanders@maastrichtuniversity.nl

Matthias Leistner (1974) studied law in Berlin, Brussels and Cambridge. PhD-studies at the Max-Planck-Institute for Intellectual Property, Competition and Tax Law Munich; Dr iur. (s.c.l.), Munich University 1999. Master of Law, Trinity Hall College, University of Cambridge 2004. Habilitation (Post-doc thesis), Munich University 2006. Matthias Leistner was Head of the Commonwealth Unit at the Max-Planck-Institute for Intellectual Property, Competition and Tax Law, Munich. At present he is Professor of Civil Law, Intellectual Property Law and Competition Law and Director of the Institute for Commercial and Economic Law, University of Bonn. Moreover, he is a Member of the Faculty of the Munich Intellectual Property Law Center (MIPLC), and has been a Guest professor for European Intellectual Property Law at the Tongji University, Shanghai, and at the University of Xiamen, China. His specialties are intellectual property law, unfair competition law, and internet law. He has published four books and numerous articles in these fields and has been consulted on IP matters by various government departments and non-governmental organizations as well as international institutions.

Kung-Chung Liu (1961), PhD (Munich), is Research Fellow at Institutum Iurisprudentiae, Academia Sinica in Taiwan. Beginning from 2007 and 2010 Professor Liu is co-appointed professor of the Institute of Law for Science and Technology, National Tsing Hua University and the Graduate Institute of Intellectual Property, National Chengchi University respectively. Grant awarded: scholarship from the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD, 1987–1990), Grant from the National Research Council, Taiwan for Abroad Research (to National University Singapore, December 2003-May 2004), Grant from the British Academy for Research (at the Queen Mary, London University, December 2008- January 2009), Fulbright Scholar Program (January 2011–July 2011). Professor Liu's teaching and research interests are intellectual property law, antitrust and unfair competition law, communications law. From 17 February 2006 to 12 April 2007 Professor Liu took leave from the Academia Sinica to serve as the founding Commissioner of the National Communications Commission.

E-mail: liukc@gate.sinica.edu.tw

Aldo Nicotra (1960) studied at the University of New South Wales, Australia where he was awarded a First Class Honours degree in Economics and a degree in Law.

For many years he practiced in the field of intellectual property and competition law and acted for many globally recognized clients.

Most notably, he acted for The LEGO Group of companies and was involved in the early litigation which tested the boundaries of copyright, design, trademark and unfair competition law. In more recent times he has focused his practice on competition law, an area in which he is regularly recognized as a leading practitioner.

E-mail: aldo.nicotra@jws.com.au

Alain Strowel (1960) is professor at the Saint-Louis University in Brussels and teaches in various LLM programs in Europe (University of Liège, Hogeschool Universiteit Brussel, Munich Intellectual Property Law Centre, Maastricht University, Pallas). Alain's courses cover copyright, design and media law, as well as the interface between IP and competition. Belgian avocat since 1988, he works as Of Counsel in the Brussels office of Covington & Burling LLP where he focuses on digital copyright and trademark issues. Alain was visiting professor in various universities including Paris II (1998), Columbia Law School (2000) and most recently he was adjunct professor at Bond University, Australia (2009). He is a panelist for the WIPO and '.be' domain name resolution procedures. He has authored and edited many books, including: Peer-to-Peer File Sharing and Secondary Liability in Copyright Law (Edward Elgar, 2009).

Authors and Editors

E-mail: astrowel@fusl.ac.be

Severin de Wit (1952) studied at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. From 1978 until 2005 he was a patent litigation attorney at Clifford Chance, Simmons & Simmons and Buruma Maris (now Houthoff Buruma). In 2002 he worked exclusively for ASML, Europe's largest lithography equipment maker in worldwide patent litigation against Nikon. In 2005 he started an international IP consultancy firm with 18 consultants from US, UK, Germany, Belgium, Netherlands and Switzerland. He is a frequent blogger at IPEG (<www.Eipeg.com/blog>). In 2009 he started two new companies, IPTrust and IPHire.

E-mail: severin.dewit@ipeg.com.

Peter K. Yu (1971) holds the Kern Family Chair in Intellectual Property Law and is the founding director of the Intellectual Property Law Center at Drake University Law School in the United States. He is also a Wenlan Scholar Chair Professor at Zhongnan University of Economics and Law in Wuhan, China. Born and raised in Hong Kong, he is a leading expert in international intellectual property and communications law. He is the author or editor of five books and more than 70 law review articles and book chapters. He also serves as the general editor of The WIPO Journal. His lectures and presentations have spanned more than twenty countries on six continents. His publications, which have been translated into Arabic, Chinese, French, Japanese, Persian, Portuguese and Spanish, are available on his website at <www.peteryu.com>.

E-mail: peter_yu@msn.com.

Summary of Contents

Preface	xvii
Authors and Editors	xix
Chapter 1 Shostakovich and John Huston: The French Supreme Court on Copyright, Contracts and Moral Rights André Bertrand	1
Chapter 2 Moral Rights 2.0 Peter K. Yu	13
Chapter 3 The Legacy of International News Service v. Associated Press (USA) Matthias Leistner	33
Chapter 4 Odol: The Introduction of a Watery Concept with Steeled Resilience Anselm Kamperman Sanders	51
Chapter 5 Darcy v. Allen Matthew Fisher	63

Summary of Contents

Chapter 6
The Taiwanese ‘Philips’ CD-R Cases: Abuses of a Monopolistic Position, Cartel and Compulsory Patent Licensing	83
Kung-Chung Liu
Chapter 7
The Anton Piller Case and Its Legacy: In Search of a Balance in Civil Search	105
Alain Strowel and Vicky Hanley
Chapter 8
The Case eBay Inc. v. MercExchange LLC, Its Impact on NPE’s and Patent Enforcement	121
Severin de Wit
Chapter 9
Hitting the Bricks	135
Protecting the LEGO® Brick around the World
Aldo Nicotra
Chapter 10
The Budweiser Cases: A Brewing Conflict	181
Christopher Heath
Index	245

Table of Contents

Preface	xvii
Authors and Editors	xix
Chapter 1
Shostakovich and John Huston: The French Supreme Court on Copyright, Contracts and Moral Rights	1
André Bertrand
1. The Shostakovich Cases	3
2. The John Huston Case	6
Chapter 2
Moral Rights 2.0	13
Peter K. Yu
1. Introduction	13
2. Obsolescence	15
3. Creative Reuse and Semiotic Democracy	18
4. Liberative Reuse and Democracy	23
5. Right to Delete	28
6. Conclusion	31
Chapter 3
The Legacy of International News Service v. Associated Press (USA)	33
Matthias Leistner
1. The INS-Case : The Classic American Tort of Misappropriation	33

Table of Contents

1.1.	The Facts in INS and the Central Elements of the Misappropriation Action	33
1.2.	Quasi-property or Unfair Competition?	35
2.	The Chequered History of INS v. AP	37
2.1.	The Impact of INS v. AP on States' Misappropriation Laws, on UK and Australian Law, and on Federal US Restatements in the Field	37
3.	Relationship to IP Rights: The Issue of Pre-emption	38
3.1.	Pre-emption by Federal Intellectual Property Legislation	38
3.2.	Lessons for European Law	41
4.	INS and Database Protection	42
4.1.	INS and European Database Protection?	42
4.2.	INS as a Pathfinder for US Database protection?	46
5.	Discovering and Developing IP Rights: An Assignment for the Judge or for the Legislator?	48
 Chapter 4
Odol: The Introduction of a Watery Concept with Steeled Resilience		51
Anselm Kamperman Sanders
1.	Introduction	51
2.	The Dispute	52
3.	The Roots of the Dilution Rationale	52
4.	The Legacy of Odol : Trans-Atlantic Reception	53
5.	The Legacy of Odol : Cross-Atlantic Parallel Import	56
6.	Conclusion	59
 Chapter 5
Darcy v. Allen		63
Matthew Fisher
1.	Of Monopolies . . .	63
1.1.	. . . And Legacies	64
2.	A Little Background	65
3.	The Case	68
3.1.	The Prerogative Questioned	69
3.2.	The Decision	73
3.3.	Coke's Report of the Decision	74
3.3.1.	The First Question	74
3.3.2.	The Second Question	76
3.4.	Coke's Report: Altered Reality?	76
4.	The Immediate Impact of the Decision	78
5.	Conclusion	79

Chapter 6
The Taiwanese ‘Philips’ CD-R Cases: Abuses of a Monopolistic Position, Cartel and Compulsory Patent Licensing	83
Kung-Chung Liu
1. Introduction	83
2. Abuse of a Joint Monopolistic Position	85
2.1. Improperly Maintaining Prices	85
2.2. Other Exploitative Abuses	86
3. Did the Defendants Form a Cartel?	86
3.1. Confirmed by the TFTC	86
3.2. Denied by the Taipei Administrative High Court and the Supreme Administrative Court	87
4. The Compulsory Patent Licensing	87
4.1. TIPO’s Decision to Grant a Compulsory Patent License against Philips	88
4.2. TIPO’s Decision to Annul the Compulsory Patent License	88
4.3. The Taipei Administrative High Court Rescinded TIPO’s Decision to Grant a Compulsory Patent License	89
5. The Ramifications Abroad	89
5.1. In the US: Raising the Patent Misuse Issue under the Patent Act	89
5.1.1. Philips Has Market Power in the Relevant Market	90
5.1.2. Package License of ‘Essential’ and ‘Non-essential’ Patents	91
5.1.3. No Patent Misuse under Per Se Analysis	91
5.1.4. No Patent Misuse under Rule of Reason Analysis	92
5.1.5. Even if Philips and Sony Agreed to Suppress Sony’s Technology, Such an Agreement would not Constitute Patent Misuse	92
5.2. In the EU	92
6. The Aftermath	95
6.1. Ailing CD-R Market in Taiwan	95
6.2. Philips’s Demand of Sensitive Information Violated Section 24 of the Fair Trade Act?	95
6.3. The TFTC Substantially Revised Its Guidelines on Technology Licensing Arrangements in 2009	96
6.3.1. Analytical Steps	97
6.3.2. White Clauses	98
6.3.3. Black Clauses	99
6.3.4. Evaluation of the Guidelines	101
6.4. The IP Court Awarded Philips Full Royalty Despite of Violation of Article 10 of the Fair Trade Act	101

Table of Contents

6.5. The Draft Compulsory Patent-Licensing Provisions	102
7. Future Prospects	103
Chapter 7
The Anton Piller Case and Its Legacy: In Search of a Balance in Civil Search	105
Alain Strowel and Vicky Hanley
1. Anton Piller KG v. Manufacturing Processes Ltd	106
1.1. When Lord Denning meets Hugh Laddie QC	106
1.2. Anton Piller : Is It a Search Warrant for Civil Cases?	107
1.3. What Are the Exceptional Circumstances Particular to the Anton Piller case?	108
1.4. Anton Piller Orders: Disquiet about Their Success	109
2. The Anton Piller Orders Today: The Search Orders in the UK	110
2.1. Procedure for Application	110
2.2. Built-In Safeguards to Avoid Misuse and Protect the Defendant	111
2.3. Is the Defendant Forced to Comply with the Order?	112
3. Towards a Global Recognition of Civil Search or Anton Piller Order in Europe and Beyond?	113
3.1. Article 50 of the TRIPs Agreement Defines the Minimum at International Level	113
3.2. The Legislative Process Leading to Article 7 of the 2004 Enforcement Directive: Some Evidence of the Legacy of Anton Piller	114
3.3. Objectives and Building Blocks of Article 7 of the 2004 Enforcement Directive	115
3.4. Some Unresolved Issues and Open Questions in Relation to the Implementation of Article 7 of the 2004 Enforcement Directive	117
3.4.1. Protection of Confidential Information	117
3.4.2. Persons Participating to the Search	117
3.4.3. Persons Granting the Civil Order	118
3.4.4. The Evidence Needed to Obtain a Civil Search	118
3.4.5. The Possibility to Modulate the Evidence Threshold for the Description and for the Physical Seizure	119
4. Conclusion: From Anton Piller to the Modern Civil Search in Europe, in Search of the Balance of Civil search	120
Chapter 8
The Case eBay Inc. v. MercExchange LLC, Its Impact on NPE's and Patent Enforcement	121
Severin de Wit

Chapter 9

Hitting the Bricks

135

Protecting the LEGO® Brick around the World

Aldo Nicotra

1. Overview	135
1.1. The Context of the Issue	135
1.2. Outline of Presentation and Paper	136
2. LEGO Bricks: An Auspicious History	137
2.1. Seventy Years of Commercial Success	137
2.2. How Did the LEGO Brick Come to Market?	137
3. A Selection of Cases	139
3.1. Summary of Outcomes	139
3.2. Australia (First Instance), 1991	139
3.2.1. Background	139
3.2.2. Copyright	140
3.2.3. Trade Practices Act and Passing Off	142
3.2.4. Findings	144
3.3. Australia (Appeal), 1992	146
3.4. Hong Kong (First Instance), 1986	147
3.4.1. Background	147
3.4.2. Claims	148
3.4.3. Findings	148
3.5. Hong Kong (Appeal and Privy Council Decision) 1987 and 1988	149
3.5.1. Background and Appeal	149
3.5.2. Privy Council	149
3.5.3. Significance of Decision	150
3.6. Sweden, 1984–1987	151
3.6.1. Background	151
3.6.2. Findings	152
3.6.3. Summary of Appeals	152
3.7. France, 1989–1994	153
3.7.1. Background and First Instance	153
3.7.2. Appeal	153
3.8. Hungary, 1996	154
3.8.1. Background and First Instance	154
3.8.2. Appeal	154
3.9. France, 1994–2000	155
3.9.1. Background and First Instance	155
3.9.2. Appeals	155
3.9.3. Court of Appeal (Paris) decision	156
3.10. China, 2002	156
3.10.1. Background and First Instance	156
3.10.2. Appeal	156