About the Authors

Professor David Loades studied history at Cambridge, where he researched under the great Professor Sir Geoffrey Elton, and spent his entire working life teaching history at various universities including St Andrews, Durham and North Wales. He is Professor Emeritus, University of Wales, and for the duration of his directorship of the British Academy John Foxe Project, was Research Professor at the University of Sheffield. He is currently a member of the History Faculty of the University of Oxford, a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries and a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society. He has just completed a book on Mary Tudor and is currently writing a biography of Henry VIII, as well as a book on the mid-Tudor navy.

Mei Trow is an historian and criminologist who has written a number of books on the more colourful personalities from history, such as Spartacus, Vlad the Impaler, Boudicca, El Cid and Kit Marlowe. Mei is also a novelist with two crime detective series to his credit and a third in development. He regularly appears on the Discovery and History Channels as an expert and presenter.

Authors' Acknowledgements

Writing a For Dummies book has been a very different experience from writing the many other books I have published, but whatever I write owes much to my pupils during a lifetime of teaching. In this instance my first debt must be to my wife, Judith, who has worked her way through each chapter.

I also thank Juliet Atkins, without whose technical skills the format would have been impossible for me. My greatest debt is to the For Dummies team: to Nicole Hermitage, who invited me to contribute to the series (and who must often have had second thoughts!), and to Brian who made my work more lucid. Finally, my greatest debt is to Steve Edwards who has taken this book every step of the way and who has demonstrated the patience of Job in seeing it through from start to finish!

– David Loades

My thanks as always to Carol, my wife, for all her hard work and technical know-how in putting The Tudors For Dummies together. My thanks also to Steve Edwards and his team, for their support and guidance.

– Mei Trow
