

American Speeches

Political Oratory from
Abraham Lincoln to Bill Clinton

AMERICAN SPEECHES

POLITICAL ORATORY FROM
ABRAHAM LINCOLN TO BILL CLINTON

THE LIBRARY OF AMERICA

Volume compilation and notes copyright © 2006 by Literary Classics of the United States, Inc., New York, N.Y.

All rights reserved.

No part of this book may be reproduced commercially by offset-lithographic or equivalent copying devices without the permission of the publisher.

Some of the material in this volume is reprinted by permission of the holders of copyright and publication rights
Acknowledgments will be found on pages 802-9.

The paper used in this publication meets the minimum requirements of the American National Standard for Information Sciences—Permanence of Paper for Printed Library Materials, ANSI Z39.48—1984.

Distributed to the trade in the United States by Penguin Putnam Inc.
and in Canada by Penguin Books Canada Ltd.

Library of Congress Catalog Number: 2006040928
For cataloging information, see end of Index.

ISBN 978-1-931082-98-3

ISBN 1-931082-98-7

First Printing
The Library of America—167

AMERICAN SPEECHES:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN TO
BILL CLINTON

TED WIDMER
IS THE EDITOR OF THIS VOLUME

American Speeches
is published with support from THE ACHELIS FOUNDATION and
THE BODMAN FOUNDATION

American Speeches
is kept in print by a gift to the Guardians of American Letters Fund from

THE BERKLEY FOUNDATION

The Guardians of American Letters Fund was established by The Library of America to ensure that every volume in the series will be permanently available.

Contents

Abraham Lincoln: Speech on Reconstruction Washington, D.C., April 11, 1865	1
Thaddeus Stevens: Speech in Congress on Reconstruction Washington, D.C., December 18, 1865	6
Sojourner Truth: Speech at Meeting Commemorating Emancipation Boston, January 1, 1871	19
Susan B. Anthony: Is It a Crime for a Citizen of the United States to Vote? Monroe County, N.Y., March–April 1873; Ontario County, N.Y., May–June 1873	22
Robert Brown Elliott: Speech in Congress on the Civil Rights Bill Washington, D.C., January 6, 1874	48
Benjamin F. Butler: Speech in Congress on the Civil Rights Bill Washington, D.C., January 7, 1874	67
Frederick Douglass: Oration in Memory of Abraham Lincoln Washington, D.C., April 14, 1876	74
Robert G. Ingersoll: Speech Nominating James G. Blaine Cincinnati, June 15, 1876	85
Chief Joseph: Reply to General Howard Bear Paw Mountains, Montana Territory, October 5, 1877 . .	88
Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.: Memorial Day Address Keene, N.H., May 30, 1884	89
Grover Cleveland: Address at the Dedication of the Statue of Liberty New York City, October 28, 1886	98
Elizabeth Cady Stanton: The Solitude of Self Washington, D.C., January 18, 1892	99
Ida B. Wells: Lynch Law in All Its Phases Boston, February 13, 1893	110

John Peter Altgeld: Labor Day Address Chicago, September 8, 1893	129
Booker T. Washington: Address at the Atlanta Exposition September 18, 1895	137
William Jennings Bryan: Speech to the Democratic National Convention Chicago, July 9, 1896	142
Theodore Roosevelt: The Strenuous Life Chicago, April 10, 1899	150
Carl Schurz: The Policy of Imperialism Chicago, October 17, 1899	161
Theodore Roosevelt: The Man with the Muck-Rake Washington, D.C., April 14, 1906	195
Mary Church Terrell: What It Means to be Colored in the Capital of the United States Washington, D.C., October 10, 1906	204
Theodore Roosevelt: The New Nationalism Osawatomie, Kansas, August 31, 1910	213
John Jay Chapman: Speech at Prayer Meeting Coatesville, Pennsylvania, August 18, 1912	229
Woodrow Wilson: First Inaugural Address Washington, D.C., March 4, 1913	233
Woodrow Wilson: Address to Congress on War with Germany Washington, D.C., April 2, 1917	238
Robert M. La Follette, Sr.: Speech in the Senate on Free Speech in Wartime Washington, D.C., October 6, 1917	247
Carrie Chapman Catt: Address to Woman Suffrage Convention Washington, D.C., December 1917	286
Eugene V. Debs: Speech to the Court Cleveland, September 14, 1918	308
Woodrow Wilson: Address to the Senate on the League of Nations Washington, D.C., July 10, 1919	314

Henry Cabot Lodge: Speech in the Senate on the League of Nations
Washington, D.C., August 12, 1919	327
Herbert Hoover: "Rugged Individualism" Speech
New York City, October 22, 1928	356
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Speech to the Democratic National Convention
Chicago, July 2, 1932	373
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Speech to the Commonwealth Club
San Francisco, September 23, 1932	384
Franklin D. Roosevelt: First Inaugural Address
Washington, D.C., March 4, 1933	398
Huey Long: Every Man a King
Washington, D.C., February 23, 1934	403
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Speech to the Democratic National Convention
Philadelphia, June 27, 1936	415
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Second Inaugural Address
Washington, D.C., January 20, 1937	421
Franklin D. Roosevelt: "Arsenal of Democracy" Fireside Chat
Washington, D.C., December 29, 1940	426
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Eighth Annual Address to Congress
Washington, D.C., January 6, 1941	437
Franklin D. Roosevelt: Address to Congress on War with Japan
Washington, D.C., December 8, 1941	447
George S. Patton: Speech to Third Army Troops
England, Spring 1944	449
Dwight D. Eisenhower: Address to the Allied Expeditionary Forces
England, June 6, 1944	453
Harry S. Truman: Statement on the Atomic Bomb
Washington, D.C., August 6, 1945	454
J. Robert Oppenheimer: Speech to Los Alamos Scientists
Los Alamos, N.M., November 2, 1945	458

George C. Marshall: Speech at Harvard University Cambridge, Massachusetts, June 5, 1947	472
Hubert H. Humphrey: Speech to the Democratic National Convention , Philadelphia, July 14, 1948	476
Harry S. Truman: Speech to the Democratic National Convention Philadelphia, July 15, 1948	480
Margaret Chase Smith: Declaration of Conscience Washington, D.C., June 1, 1950	487
William Faulkner: Nobel Prize Address Stockholm, December 10, 1950	493
Douglas MacArthur: Address to Congress Washington, D.C., April 19, 1951	495
Richard M. Nixon: "Checkers" Speech Hollywood, California, September 23, 1952	504
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Speech to the Montgomery Improvement Association Montgomery, Alabama, December 5, 1955	516
Dwight D. Eisenhower: Second Inaugural Address Washington, D.C., January 21, 1957	520
John F. Kennedy: Speech to the Greater Houston Ministerial Association Houston, September 12, 1960	525
Dwight D. Eisenhower: Farewell Address Washington, D.C., January 17, 1961	529
John F. Kennedy: Inaugural Address Washington, D.C., January 20, 1961	535
John F. Kennedy: Address at American University Washington, D.C., June 10, 1963	539
John F. Kennedy: Address to the Nation on Civil Rights Washington, D.C., June 11, 1963	548
John F. Kennedy: Speech in the Rudolph Wilde Platz Berlin, June 26, 1963	554
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Address at the March on Washington August 28, 1963	556

Betty Friedan: The Crisis in Women's Identity San Francisco, 1964	561
Malcolm X: The Ballot or the Bullet Cleveland, April 3, 1964	574
Barry Goldwater: Speech to the Republican National Convention San Francisco, July 16, 1964	595
Ronald Reagan: Speech on Behalf of Barry Goldwater Los Angeles, October 27, 1964	604
Mario Savio: Speech in Sproul Plaza Berkeley, California, December 2, 1964	616
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Nobel Prize Address Oslo, December 10, 1964	619
Lyndon B. Johnson: Address to Congress on Voting Rights Washington, D.C., March 15, 1965	623
Lyndon B. Johnson: Address at Howard University Washington, D.C., June 4, 1965	633
Robert F. Kennedy: Address at the University of Cape Town South Africa, June 6, 1966	641
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Speech on the Vietnam War New York City, April 4, 1967	651
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Sermon at National Cathedral Washington, D.C., March 31, 1968	668
Martin Luther King, Jr.: Speech at Mason Temple Memphis, April 3, 1968	681
Robert F. Kennedy: Remarks on the Assassination of Martin Luther King Indianapolis, April 4, 1968	693
Barbara Jordan: Statement to the House Judiciary Committee Washington, D.C., July 25, 1974	695
Richard M. Nixon: Remarks on Leaving the White House Washington, D.C., August 9, 1974	700
Jimmy Carter: Address to the Nation on Energy Policy Washington, D.C., July 15, 1979	705

Edward M. Kennedy: Speech to the Democratic National Convention
New York City, August 12, 1980	715
Ronald Reagan: Address to Members of Parliament
London, June 8, 1982	724
Ronald Reagan: Address at Pointe-du-Hoc
Normandy, June 6, 1984	736
Jesse Jackson: Speech to the Democratic National Convention
San Francisco, July 17, 1984	741
Ronald Reagan: Address to the Nation on the Challenger Disaster
Washington, D.C., January 28, 1986	754
Ronald Reagan: Speech at the Brandenburg Gate
Berlin, June 12, 1987	756
William J. Clinton: Speech at Mason Temple
Memphis, November 13, 1993	763
William J. Clinton: Speech at Central High School
Little Rock, Arkansas, September 25, 1997	773
Biographical Notes	783
Note on the Texts	801
Notes	810
Index	859

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Speech on Reconstruction

Washington, D.C., April 11, 1865

WE MEET this evening, not in sorrow, but in gladness of heart. The evacuation of Petersburg and Richmond, and the surrender of the principal insurgent army, give hope of a righteous and speedy peace whose joyous expression can not be restrained. In the midst of this, however, He, from Whom all blessings flow, must not be forgotten. A call for a national thanksgiving is being prepared, and will be duly promulgated. Nor must those whose harder part gives us the cause of rejoicing, be overlooked. Their honors must not be parcelled out with others. I myself, was near the front, and had the high pleasure of transmitting much of the good news to you; but no part of the honor, for plan or execution, is mine. To Gen. Grant, his skilful officers, and brave men, all belongs. The gallant Navy stood ready, but was not in reach to take active part.

By these recent successes the re-inauguration of the national authority—reconstruction—which has had a large share of thought from the first, is pressed much more closely upon our attention. It is fraught with great difficulty. Unlike the case of a war between independent nations, there is no authorized organ for us to treat with. No one man has authority to give up the rebellion for any other man. We simply must begin with, and mould from, disorganized and discordant elements. Nor is it a small additional embarrassment that we, the loyal people, differ among ourselves as to the mode, manner, and means of reconstruction.

As a general rule, I abstain from reading the reports of attacks upon myself, wishing not to be provoked by that to which I can not properly offer an answer. In spite of this precaution, however, it comes to my knowledge that I am much censured for some supposed agency in setting up, and seeking to sustain, the new State Government of Louisiana. In this I have done just so much as, and no more than, the public knows. In the Annual Message of Dec. 1863 and accompanying Proclamation, I presented a plan of reconstruction (as the phrase goes) which, I promised, if adopted by any State, should be acceptable to, and sustained by, the Executive government of the nation. I distinctly stated that this was not the only plan which might possibly be acceptable; and I also distinctly protested that the Executive claimed no right to say when, or whether members should be admitted to seats in Congress from such States. This plan was, in advance, submitted to the then Cabinet, and distinctly approved by every member of it. One of them suggested that I should then, and in that connection, apply the Emancipation Proclamation to the theretofore excepted parts of Virginia and Louisiana; that I should drop the suggestion about apprenticeship for freed-people, and that I should omit the protest against my own power, in regard to the admission of members to Congress; but even he approved every part and parcel of the plan which has since been employed or touched by the action of Louisiana. The new constitution of Louisiana, declaring emancipation for the whole State, practically applies the Proclamation to the part previously excepted. It does not adopt apprenticeship for freed-people; and it is silent, as it could not well be otherwise, about the admission of members to Congress. So that, as it applies to Louisiana, every member of the Cabinet fully approved the plan. The Message went to Congress, and I received many commendations of the plan, written and verbal; and not a single objection to it, from any professed emancipationist, came to my knowledge, until after the news reached Washington that the people of Louisiana had begun to move in accordance with it. From about July 1862, I had corresponded with different persons, supposed to be interested, seeking a reconstruction of a State government for Louisiana. When the Message of 1863, with the plan before mentioned, reached New-Orleans, Gen. Banks wrote me that he was confident the people, with his military co-operation, would reconstruct, substantially on that plan. I wrote him, and some of them to try it; they tried it, and the result is known. Such only has been my agency in getting up the Louisiana government. As to sustaining it, my promise is out, as before stated. But, as bad promises are better broken than kept, I shall treat this as a bad promise, and break it, whenever I shall be convinced that keeping it is adverse to the public interest. But I have not yet been so convinced.

I have been shown a letter on this subject, supposed to be an able one, in which the writer expresses regret that my mind has not seemed to be definitely fixed on the question whether the seceded States, so called, are in the Union or out of it. It would perhaps, add astonishment to his regret, were he to learn that since I have found professed Union men endeavoring to make that question, I have purposely forborne any public expression upon it. As appears to me that question has not been, nor yet is, a practically material one, and that any discussion of it, while it thus remains practically immaterial, could have no effect other than the mischievous one of dividing our friends. As yet, whatever it may hereafter become, that question is bad, as the basis of a controversy, and good for nothing at all—a merely pernicious abstraction.

We all agree that the seceded States, so called, are out of their proper practical relation with the Union; and that the sole object of the government, civil and military, in regard to those States is to again get them into that proper practical relation. I believe it is not only possible, but in fact, easier, to do this, without deciding, or even considering, whether these states have even been out of the Union, than with it. Finding themselves safely at home, it would be utterly immaterial whether they had ever been abroad. Let us all join in doing the acts necessary to restoring the proper practical relations between these states and the Union; and each forever after, innocently indulge his own opinion whether, in doing the acts, he brought the States from without, into the Union, or only gave them proper assistance, they never having been out of it.

The amount of constituency, so to speak, on which the new Louisiana government rests, would be more satisfactory to all, if it contained fifty, thirty, or even twenty thousand, instead of only about twelve thousand, as it does. It is also unsatisfactory to some that the elective franchise is not given to the colored man. I would myself prefer that it were now conferred on the very intelligent, and on those who serve our cause as soldiers. Still the question is not whether the Louisiana government, as it stands, is quite all that is desirable. The question is "Will it be wiser to take it as it is, and help to improve it; or to reject, and disperse it?" "Can Louisiana be brought into proper practical relation with the Union sooner by sustaining, or by discarding her new State Government?"

Some twelve thousand voters in the heretofore slave-state of Louisiana have sworn allegiance to the Union, assumed to be the rightful political power of the State, held elections, organized a State government, adopted a free-state constitution, giving the benefit of public schools equally to black and white, and empowering the Legislature to confer the elective franchise upon the colored man. Their Legislature has already voted to ratify the constitutional amendment recently passed by Congress, abolishing slavery throughout the nation. These twelve thousand persons are thus fully committed to the Union, and to perpetual freedom in the state—committed to the very things, and nearly all the things the nation wants—and they ask the nations recognition, and it's assistance to make good their committal. Now, if we reject, and spurn them, we do our utmost to disorganize and disperse them. We in effect say to the white men "You are worthless, or worse—we will neither help you, nor be helped by you." To the blacks we say "This cup of liberty which these, your old masters, hold to your lips, we will dash from you, and leave you to the chances of gathering the spilled and scattered contents in some vague and undefined when, where, and how." If this course, discouraging and paralyzing both white and black, has any tendency to bring Louisiana into proper practical relations with the Union, I have, so far, been unable to perceive it. If, on the contrary, we recognize, and sustain the new government of Louisiana the converse of all this is made true. We encourage the hearts, and nerve the arms of the twelve thousand to adhere to their work, and argue for it, and proselyte for it, and fight for it, and feed it, and grow it, and ripen it to a complete success. The colored man too, in seeing all united for him, is inspired with vigilance, and energy, and daring, to the same end. Grant that he desires the elective franchise, will he not attain it sooner by saving the already advanced steps toward it, than by running backward over them? Concede that the new government of Louisiana is only to what it should be as the egg is to the fowl, we shall sooner have the fowl by hatching the egg than by smashing it?