

The background of the cover is a solid blue color. Overlaid on this background are numerous faint, red, star-like or asterisk-like patterns. These patterns are scattered across the entire surface, with some appearing more prominent than others. They have a hand-drawn or organic feel, with varying numbers of points (usually 4 to 8) and some internal branching or irregularities.

Acknowledgments

I would like to thank Richard Hart for his enthusiasm, patience and support over the past two years. Sabbatical leave from Birkbeck College Law Department and a grant from the British Academy enabled me to start the research for this book in New York, and I am grateful to NYU Law School, and particularly to Holly Maguigan, for the help I received during my stay. The students on my medical law course at LSE deserve thanks for their persistent and challenging interest in the subject, among them Aimée Shirin-Daruwala and Karen Stephens were diligent proof-readers.

Of the countless colleagues and friends who have provided me with inspiration, encouragement and welcome distractions during the writing of this book I should especially like to thank Hugh Collins, Nicola Lacey, Ellie Lee, Mavis Maclean, Ngaire Naffine, Katherine O'Donovan, Helen Reece, Sally Sheldon, Juliet Tizzard and Matthew Weait, all of whom made perceptive and invaluable comments on earlier drafts. For their wit, wisdom and love, I am grateful to my best and oldest friends: Jonathan Brenton, Alison Cox, Rebecca Mead, Ciarán O'Meara, Duncan Paterson and Monica Thurnauer. My father and brother have, as ever, been a constant source of support. But my greatest debt is undoubtedly to my husband, Paul Raffield, who continues to be indispensable.
