ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to express my appreciation of those individuals who, in one way or another, supported the work that enabled me to produce The Hidden Handicap.

I was extraordinarily fortunate to have the abiding support of Mrs. Louise Pinkerton Marshall, and the Pinkerton Foundation, with the help, particularly, of Miss Joan Colello and Mr. George Gillespie III, along with Mr. Thomas J. Sweeney, Jr., Mr. Robert Bach, Mr. David Fuchs, and Mrs. Marcia Warner, who are on the Para-Educator Foundation board of directors. In the very beginning of my work, before I dreamed of the possibility of the Para-Educator Center for Young Adults, I must single out Mr. Sweeney, Mr. Bach, and Miss Colello, for the first scholarship efforts on behalf of our Marginally Learning Disabled young adults; and to the entire generous-spirited group, there should be added The Louis Calder Foundation, for underwriting a number of fellowships for New York University doctoral students; through the Calder grants, they were able to study at PEC, thus enabling its work to spread beyond the walls of the university.

I am also grateful to the late Dr. Jesse Zizmor, whose dedication to the cause of the MLD drew me into its picture; Dr. Alfred Ellison, the former chairman of my university department, who was the first of my professional colleagues to appreciate the value of my experiment; and the School of Education deans, Daniel E. Griffiths, and John C. Payne, recently deceased, who gave the center its backing.

Additionally, there came the dedication of an exceptionally fine PEC staff, which has been essential to the program's success. It includes: Cynthia Bonnes, Louise Brown, Esther Conrad, Miriam Lawin, Irene Metzger, Joy Moser, Judith
