You might think the largest library in the world would be in Europe. But it isn't. It's in Washington D. C. It's called the Library of Congress.

President John Adams started the library in 1800 for members of Congress. He wanted them to be able to read books about law. The first 740 books were bought in England. They were simply set up in the rooms where Congress met. Then Thomas Jefferson sold Congress many of his own books. He felt Congress should have books on all subjects, not just on law. This idea changed the library for ever.

The library grew and grew. Now it covers a large area of land. It contains 20 million books as well as pictures, globes and machines. Experts in every field work there. Hundreds of people call every day with all kinds of questions. Many of them get answers right over the phone.

The library is a huge storehouse. Thomas Edison's first movie and Houdini's magic books are preserved (保存) there. And it is the proud owner of the world's best collection of humorous books.

The world is filled with many interesting sounds. Some are unpleasant to our ears while others are very pleasant to hear. In a single day you probably hear hundreds of different sounds. All sounds are different. Some may be soft, others may be loud. Some sounds are high, others are low. Some sounds are useful. The ringing of the alarm clock wakes people up. The hooting of a car warns people of danger.

Some sounds are harmful. When planes fly low over the land, the very loud sounds can cause damage to houses. Very loud sounds can even make people deaf.

We know sound travels about one kilometer in three seconds. In a thunderstorm you see the lightning first and then hear the thunder. This is because light travels much faster than sound.

- () 10. Our world is full of all kinds of sound.
