黛西是一只毛茸茸的小黄鸭，刚从蛋里孵出来。

花了好一会儿工夫，她才把蛋壳啄开。所以当她出来的时候，其他小鸭子早就不见了。

她决定去找她的家人。

Daisy was a fluffy yellow duckling, newly hatched from her egg.
It had taken her a little while to peck her way out of the egg,
and all the other ducklings were nowhere to be seen.
She decided to try and find the rest of her family.

黛西摇摇摆摆地走着。突然，她发现草地上有一枚漂亮的雪白的蛋。

Daisy wandered along until she noticed a nice white egg lying in the grass.

看起来，那枚蛋马上就要破壳了。

可能也是一只小鸭子？

It was just about to hatch.

Perhaps it was another duckling?

黛西说：“你跟小鸭子一点儿也不像！”森美点点头。

她们一起出发，沿着河岸，看看还能找到什么。

没多久，一枚半埋在沙里的闪光的蛋，吸引了她们的眼球。这里面又是谁呢？

“You don't look like a duckling!” said Daisy, and Sammy agreed.

They set off together along the riverbank to see what else they could find.

Soon, a shiny egg half-buried in the sand caught their attention. Who could it be?

小鸭黛西看看两位新朋友，叹了口气。
想要找到自己的家人可真不容易呀。
尤其是他们又找到一枚蛋的时候……

Daisy looked at her new friends.
She sighed, thinking that finding her family might take a while.
Especially when they found the next egg...

“你也不是小鸭子。”黛西说，
“看你咬牙的样子就知道了！”

“You’re not a duckling,” said Daisy.
“Especially with the way you snap your teeth!”

“躺在水边的是什么？”黛西问她的朋友们。

“又是一枚蛋！”大家一起喊。

“What's that by the water?” she asked her friends.

“Another egg!” they cried.

“我可不像你这样叽叽叫，看来你也不是小鸭子！”黛西说。

“说不定你的家人在这边呢。”查理热心地说。

“I don't cheep, so you can't be a duckling!” said Daisy.

“Perhaps the other ducklings are in here?” suggested Charlie.

一连串的惊喜之后，小鸭黛西有些累了。

她抖抖身上嫩黄的羽毛，停下来打个盹儿。

黛西不知道，就在她睡着的时候……

All of these surprises had made Daisy quite tired.
With a flutter of her fluffy yellow feathers, she settled down for a nap.
Little did she know that while she was asleep...
