It was a long lonely way. When it was almost dark, he saw a farmer who was ploughing in a field. He stopped and called out, "Hello, farmer! Where does this road go?"

"Hello, I have not seen it go anywhere. It always stays right where it is," said the farmer, without stopping his work.

"How far is it to the next town?" said the stranger.

"I don't know, never measured it," replied the farmer.

By this time the city man was getting angry. "What do you know? You are the biggest fool I ever saw."
