A Guide to Use this Book

To use this book, you only need 5 minutes every day, no more!

Jason, my son, aged 13, a first grader in the junior high school, under my training, could read fluently or recite most of the passages in this book. Here are some tips:

- Day 1 Teach the kids the first passage sentence by sentence.
- Day 2 As above.
- Day 3 As above.
- Day 4 From this day, ask the kids to try to recite the first passage, and then start to teach the next passage sentence by sentence.
- Day 5 From this day, ask the kids to recite an old passage and teach a new one.

A new chapter of your life will begin!

本书建议使用指南

使用这本书, 孩子们每天只需要 5 分钟, 不要多!

我的孩子们,在我的训练下,能够熟读或者背诵本书大多数篇章。以下是几条小小建议,以供参考:

第一天 按孩子们的兴趣选择第一篇,老师来教,或者跟读音频, 一句句读:

第二天 同上;

第三天 同上;

第四天 让孩子们试着去背第一篇文章,大多数孩子能达到这一点;

第五天 从这天起,每天背一篇旧的篇章,开启一篇新的篇章, 以此类推。

孩子们,相信你新的人生篇章马上开启!英语是打开你心灵的一扇窗口!

Blowing in the Wind

How many roads must a man walk down,
Before they call him a man?
How many seas must a white dove sail,
Before she sleeps in the sand?
How many times must the cannonballs fly,
Before they are forever banned?
The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind.
The answer is blowing in the wind.

Bob Dylan

How many years must a mountain exist,
Before it is washed to the sea?
How many years can some people exist,
Before they' re allowed to be free?
How many times can a man turn his head,
And pretend that he just doesn't see?
The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind.
The answer is blowing in the wind.

How many times must a man look up,

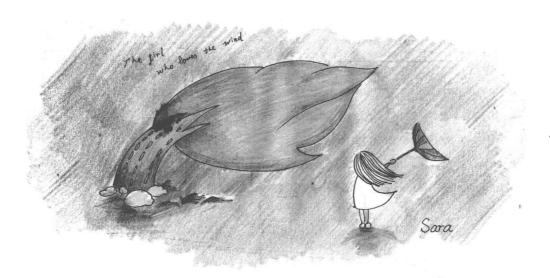

Before he can see the sky?

How many years must one man have,
Before he can hear people cry?

How many deaths will it take till he knows,
That too many people have died?

The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind.

The answer is blowing in the wind.

O Sailor, Come Ashore

Christina G. Rossetti

O sailor, come ashore.

What have you brought for me?

Coral from the sea.

I did not dig it from the ground, Nor pluck it from a tree. Feeble insects made it, In the stormy sea.

November Night

Adelaide Crapsey

Listen...
With faint dry sound,
Like steps of passing ghosts,
The leaves, frost-crisp' d, break from the trees.
And fall.

Who has Seen the Wind?

Christina G. Rossetti

Who has seen the wind?

Neither I nor you.

But when the leaves hang trembling,

The wind is passing through.

Who has seen the wind?

Neither you nor I.

But when the trees bow down their heads.

The wind is passing by.

The Little Match-girl (I)

Another match was struck. It burnt and flared. The wall became transparent like gauze. She could see right into the room where the table stood covered with a shining white cloth and set with fine china. And there was a roast goose, stuffed with prunes and apples, steaming deliciously. The goose jumped off the dish, and went straight over to the poor girl. Then the match went out, and there was nothing to see but the thick cold wall.

She struck another. Then she was sitting under the loveliest Christmas tree, it was even bigger and more beautifully decorated than the one she had seen last Christmas through the glass-doors of the wealthy grocer's shop. Thousands of candles were burning on its green branches, coloured pictures were looking down at her. The little girl stretched out both her hands—then the match went out. The Christmas-candles rose higher and higher, and now she saw they were the bright stars—one of them fell and made a long streak of fire across the sky.

"Someone is dying," thought the little girl, for her grandmother used to say, "When a star falls, a soul goes up to God."

The Little Match-girl (II)

Once more she struck a match on the wall. It lit up the darkness around her, and there stood old granny, so bright and shining, so wonderfully kind.

"Granny!" cried the little girl. "Oh, take me with you! I know you'll go away when the match goes out—you'll go away just like the warm stove and the lovely roast goose and the wonderful big Christmas tree!" And she quickly struck all the rest of the matches. It was brighter than daylight. Granny had never before been so tall and beautiful. She lifted the little girl up on her arm. And they flew away, high high up towards heaven. And there was no more cold and no more hunger and no more fear—they were with God.

The next morning, in the corner by the house, the little girl sat, with red cheeks and a smile on her lips—dead, frozen to death on the last evening of the old year. No one knew what beautiful things she had seen.

The Little Mermaid

Far out to sea the water is as blue as the petals of the loveliest cornflower, and as clear as the purest glass. And it is very deep. The most wonderful trees and plants grow there. All kinds of fish, large or small, swim among the branches just as birds do in the air up here.

In the very deepest place of all lies the merking's palace. Its walls are coral, and its long pointed windows are clearest amber, and its roof is made of mussel-shells.

The merking lived with his mother and six beautiful daughters. The youngest was the most beautiful of all-her skin was as clear and pure as a rose-petal, her eyes as blue as the deepest lake, but like all the rest, she had no feet and her body ended in a fish's tail. She was a strange child, quiet and thoughtful.

Many a night, she stood by the open window and looked up through the dark-blue water where the fish were waving their fins and tails. She could see the moon and the stars through the water. And when a dark cloud was gliding across, she knew it was either a whale swimming over her or a ship with men on board.
