It's hard to be a teenager (青少年). Many young people today are under a lot of pressure (压力). You may worry about not doing 1 in class, or perhaps you argue (争执) with your parents a lot. Maybe you don't have as 2 friends as you would like. Problems like these can make you feel stressed (有压力的). These feelings may upset (使烦恼) you if you spend 3 time worrying about them.

"Don't Sweat (担心) the Small Stuff" by American writer Richard Carlson gives advice (忠告) to teens. He tells you how to be happy under pressure and how to deal with (处理) these pressures in a 4 way.

Carlson writes about his own teen-age years as an example. He tells teens how to 5 problems at school, home or with your friends. These problems, he says, are "small stuff" that happen 6 everybody. One of his key 7 to deal with "small stuff" is learning not to get angry or worried when these things happen. Take criticism (批评), for example. Don't worry too much if a teacher or your parents criticise you. Be pleased that they care enough to want you to do better. Don't worry 8 mistakes you have made in the past. Everyone makes mistakes; learn from 9.

If you learn to worry less about the "small stuff", your life will be 10 and happier.
