Lili's Tea

By Naomi Styles

Lili is doing homework at Lily's house.

"Would you like some tea?" asks Lily's mum.

"Yes, please!" they reply.

"Would you like milk and sugar?" Lily's mum asks.

Lili isn't sure. She usually drinks tea without milk and sugar.

"No, thank you," she says.

Lili tries the tea. It tastes strange.

"Don't you like the tea?" asks Lily.

"Not really,*" says Lili.

"It tastes better with milk and sugar," says Lily.

Lili adds them.

That's better! She likes the taste now!

"You should try Chinese tea," says Lili.
The next day, she gives Lily a packet.

A few days later, Lili is at Lily's house again.

"Did you like the Chinese tea?" Lili asks Lily.

"Not really," says Lily.

"But it's delicious!" says Lili. "Let's drink some now!"

Lili makes tea for Lily.

She pours it into small cups.

Lily begins to pour milk into her tea.

"No!" says Lili. "Don't add milk! It will taste terrible!"

"I must have milk and sugar in my tea!" cries Lily.

"No! Try it the Chinese way," says Lili.

Lily tries the tea without milk. It's nice!

Now both girls drink Chinese tea and English tea.
They drink Chinese tea without milk and sugar.
And they drink English tea with milk and sugar.
“It's good to try new things!” says Lili.

Lazy Lizzie

By Debbie Aldred

Lizzie walked into the kitchen and ate her cat food.
She climbed on the sofa and went to sleep.
"What does Lizzie do all day, Mum?" asked James.
"Sleeps," replied Mum. "Look at her. What a lazy cat!
Time for school and work. Bye, Lizzie."

Lizzie opened one eye. It was time to go out. She squeezed through the cat flap and walked down the garden path. She was off to the shopping mall.*

Lizzie went to a department store. She walked around slowly. She saw a lady put some expensive clothes in her bag. She decided to follow her. Next the lady took some make-up and put it in her bag. Then the lady went to the perfume counter. She took some perfume and put it in her bag. The lady was not paying for anything.

Lizzie saw the guard  by the door. The lady walked to the door. At that same moment, Lizzie walked in front of the lady.

The lady tripped over and as she did so, the perfume  fell out of her bag.*
