Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Japanese Kuzushiji, arranged in vertical columns from right to left. The text is contained within a rectangular frame with vertical lines separating the columns. The characters are fluid and interconnected, characteristic of the cursive style. The text appears to be a continuous passage, possibly a letter or a section of a book. The rightmost column begins with a character that looks like 'ま' (ma) and ends with 'る' (ru). The leftmost column begins with 'し' (shi) and ends with 'る' (ru). There are some dark rectangular marks on the left side of the page, possibly from a binding or scanning artifact.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, organized into ten vertical columns. The text is written in black ink on a white background with faint vertical lines. The script is highly stylized and appears to be a form of shorthand or a specific dialect of a cursive hand. The characters are connected and flow from top to bottom in each column. There are some horizontal lines and dots interspersed within the columns, possibly serving as punctuation or structural markers. The overall appearance is that of a handwritten manuscript or a set of notes.
