前 言

今年，剑桥商务英语证书（Business English Certificate, 简称BEC）考试落户中国十五个年头。

BEC考试自1994年起在我国各大中城市全面开展，影响逐年深入，反响巨大。在经济全球化背景下，剑桥商务英语学习及其证书考试不仅是一种时尚，更是一种必要，是一个在日益激烈的竞争中取胜的重要砝码。该考试从听、说、读、写四个方面对考生在一般工作环境下和商务活动中使用英语的能力进行全面考查，对成绩合格者提供由英国剑桥大学考试委员会颁发的标准统一的成绩证书。由于该证书的权威性，其已成为在所有举办该考试的130多个国家和地区求职的“通行证”。

综观当前的图书市场，有关商务英语的教材和参考书不多，而将商务英语的系统学习和考试指导相结合的用书就更难寻觅了。本书适时地满足了广大学习者和考生的这一需求。命名为《新剑桥商务英语经典教程》有三个原因：一、参加本书编写的作者团队由具有丰富的商务英语教学经验和商场实战经验的大学教师、以及BEC考试辅导专家组成，在认真研究最新考试大纲的基础上，精心编写了本书；二、十个单元内容的选编涵盖了当今世界上最新的有代表性的商务素材，如美国可口可乐公司并购中国汇源案；三、每个单元都包含听、说、读、写四个方面的练习，在题型和难度上进行了严格的测试和筛选。教学性很强，同时也适合考生循序渐进准备BEC Vantage（中级）、BEC Higher（高级）的考试。

本书适合高校外语学院、商学院、经济学院的学生和一般商务工作者学习商务英语使用，也是考生参加BEC考试的备考用书。

我建议读者在选择本书之前考虑两点：一、本书是否适用于自己现有的英语水平；二、是否在对比其他同类教材之后决定选择本书。

Work Roles & Communication

Text A

Background Information

Teamwork is a joint action by two or more people or a group, in which each person contributes with different skills and expresses his or her individual interests and opinions to the unity and efficiency of the group in order to achieve common goals.

This does not mean that the individual is no longer important; however, it does mean that effective and efficient teamwork goes beyond individual accomplishments. The most effective teamwork is produced when all the individuals involved harmonize their contributions and work towards a common goal.

The Success of Starbucks

Because of rapid globalization over recent years, the competition around the world becomes more intense, especially for the service industry with the similar products. The most critical point for business to succeed is not only the quality of products they supply, but the atmosphere of cooperating and the amount from yield of teamwork in retail sales. The employees who always deal with customers and can realize what customers really need are first-line staff. Therefore, it turns to be essential for companies to motivate, reward and train their employees to be the best quality personnel.

Starbucks began by three friends, Jerry Baldwin, Zev Siegl, and Gordon Bowker, who knew each other in the University of Seattle. In 1971, the first name of their store is "Starbucks Coffee, Tea, and Spice" in Seattle, Washington's Pike Place Market. Starbucks Corporation, the most famous chain of retail coffee shops in the world, mainly benefits from roasting, selling special coffee beans and various kinds of coffee or tea drinks. It owns about 4 000 branches in the whole world. Moreover, it has been one of the most rapidly growing corporations in America as well. The reasons why Starbucks is worldwide popular are not only the quality of coffee, but also its customer service and cozy environment. Starbucks establishes comfortable surroundings for people to socialize with a fair price, which attracts consumers of various ages to get into the stores. Besides, it is also noted for its satisfaction of employees. The turnover rate of employees at Starbucks was 65% and the rate of managers was 25% a year. However, the rates of other national chain retailers are 150% to 400% and 50% respectively. Compared with them, the turnover rate of Starbucks is much lower than other industries on average. As a result, Starbucks would be one of the optimal business models for cooperation and teamwork.

Teamwork can not only construct a small social structure in organization for employees to socialize, but also is a composite of various kinds of members who are equipped with different background of skill and knowledge on account of the mission. Each member plays an important role in the teamwork; therefore everyone in that team can meet their need for getting acquainted with different colleagues and learn new skill from each other. Thus the definition of teamwork is a social system including more than three people in an organization or context. These members identify others as one member of the team and they have the same goal.

The CEO of Starbucks corporation, Howard Schultz, considers that the tip of success in Starbucks is not coffee but employees, especially the cooperation among employees—teamwork.

1. Equal treatment

The managers in Starbucks treat each workpeople equally and all of the staff are called

'partners', even the supervisors of each branch are so called as well. In order to narrow the gap between managers and employees, they also co-work with the basic level staff in the front line. Due to this, they can maintain a good management system and create a much closer and more familiar atmosphere than other places, which makes not only employees enjoy their job but also customers affected by their enthusiasm.

2. Listen to employees

Starbucks has a well-organized communication channel for employees. It places a great importance on labours. For example, managers plan the working hours per worker and arrange the schedule of time off, and meet their requirements according to their wants. There are interviews every week to see what employees' need is. A special survey called "Partner View Survey" is taken off approximate every two years. The managers can receive feedbacks through the event on which part should be improved or what issue should be paid more attention to.

The partners have the right to figure out what is the best policy for them, and the directors show a respect for each suggestion. Starbucks even wants every employee to join in making and developing plans, then achieving their goals all together. As a result, the policies and principles are communicated between all staff, and there is no limitation in employees' personal opinions. For this reason, business could improve, even innovate their strategies by different ideas.

3. A goal of public welfare

Starbucks has endeavored to create "third place" (outside from home or office) for people to take a rest. They want to provide such a comfortable environment to increase the harmoniousness of the society. Apart from this, Starbucks contributes part of its profits to public service; on the other hand, it also sets a goal to improve and donate to the society. As a consequence, the aim makes all staff have an idea that what they do for Starbucks is for the society as well. As the goal theory, Starbucks sets a challenging and specific goal, and it permits all partners to decide the direction. Afterward, employees embrace to do what they chose and they get some feedbacks from the goal. The concept causes an increase of the power of agglomerating and enthusiasm in relation to a positive effect to the profit of Starbucks.

Starbucks changes the behaviors and view points of global consumers to coffee, and this example of success has caught global attention. Nevertheless, it was also a small retail coffee shop in North America initially. Nowadays, it is not only one of the fastest growing corporations, but also an outstanding business model with lower employee turnover rate and higher profit performance. A good relationship between managers and employees could maintain a high quality of performance. As the case of starbucks shows, using the correct strategy would lead to a successful path.

Midnight Apps Had Failed

A small little application called Cha-Ching, developed by Midnight Apps, was offering licenses for its next version in the Macheist bundle. Users would be invited to beta test the next version of Cha-Ching if they bought the bundle and all was glorious.

Unfortunately, what happened was a complete failure of Midnight App's communication strategy for the application. It really starts with this thread on the Macheist forums. While the developer did respond in this forum, you can sense the frustration stemming from a lack of progress updates from the developers. In fact, in the thread where people are wondering where the beta application is, the conversation starts to turn against the company.

The conversation gets so heated, that users begin recommending other applications. One forum poster takes a stab at Midnight Apps by recommending Moneywell: the reason given—"developers are committed". The commentator "rookie" even goes so far as to say "So I take it, we've given up on ever seeing Cha-Ching 2.0?" This hostility then pours out to their own forum where people post threads like this one. Midnight Apps had failed to meet their promise of a beta, and then failed to communicate why. The users were revolting, but they weren't just angry, they started recommending other products.

So why did many of the forum users recommend Moneywell? What was the difference?

Communication is the only way

The answer was quite simple. Kevin Hctor, the developer of Moneywell, is a master of support and communication. You can take one quick glance at nearly every single post on the Moneywell user forums and see that Kevin is involved in nearly every one. This approach constrains his time and his resources, but the man is still able to release builds and fixes. While Moneywell is not updated weekly, his customers feel confident in their software choice. This is what lead disenchanted Cha-Ching users to point others in his direction, and his communication efforts explain one of the modern tenants of good business and why Midnight Apps created a mess for themselves.

Steady communication builds steady/loyal customers

Communication, and a steady channel of communication, is what turns a good company into a fantastic company. It is one of the key tenants of modern web applications, where the principle concept is "ask the users". People feel more invested in their software, their design and their website if they are constantly reminded of your awareness of them.

There are always exceptions to the communication rule, and there are instances of constant user feedback ruining communication. However, most websites, software, and pretty much any consumer/business relationship benefits from having a steady stream of updates. It builds consumer trust and lets the user know their co-existence with your product is valid.

There is a happy ending to this story

The great news is that Midnight Apps realized their stream of non-communication was not worth the productivity time it gave them. They could generate more users and carve out more interest in their application by opening themselves up and talking about what happened. They even asked "How are we doing?" to extremely positive reviews after their communication efforts increased 100-fold. This goodwill has spread to their business and applications, as Cha-Ching for iPhone is an excellent application.

Constant communication, even if you feel like you have nothing to say, makes everyone feel involved in the process. Don't waste it just saying hello, or talking about the weather, but explain what you're doing and what's happening. Don't wait for the juicy update, give micro-updates. People will always want to know more about what's coming, but a taste of what's happening now will appease them. It doesn't take a lot of effort to send out a weekly email, but its reward is almost 1 000%. So, get on with it.
