Occasionally it seems as though Liana hardly remembers when her dog ran away and she cried for her dead mother. But John and I remember, because that was the moment that Liana and our lost friend and our lost dog all came together, and we became a family.

The Dog that Made Us a Family

『字数:688 建议阅读用时:11.5分钟』

We inherited my daughter Liana when she was barely 5. She had been adopted from China by my closest friend of 30 years, Linda, a single 51-year-old woman, slim and delicate-looking but tough and firm inside. Linda had a background of diverse illnesses. My husband later told me that when she walked merrily off the plane on Christmas Day in 1994, with her round, worried-looking Chinese baby bundled in red and holding a toy bear, he had a weird impression that we would eventually raise this child. Three years later, my best friend died and Liana came home with us. I was 55, a fulltime textbook editor with two almost-grown daughters. My husband, an English professor, was 48. I was looking forward to a few years of empty nesting(巢) and then some grandchildren. Starting over with a dynamic kindergartner was, to be frank, not in my expectation.

Shortly after she came to us, Liana began asking for a dog. She had been passed from family to family during Linda's six-month illness, spoiled by sympathetic people who wanted to make her cheerful. She was not accustomed to hearing the refusal "no." I have affection for dogs. But I already had to be responsible for a new and unexpected member and I didn't want another responsibility. Initially our little apartment was our excuse: not abundant space. But four years later we moved to a house, and we could no longer resist Liana's request. So off we went to an animal shelter.

Molly wagged(摇摆) its tail all the time. She was mild but energetic. As long as Liana and my husband, John, promised to do the walking, I decided I could handle having a dog. So we brought Molly home. Twenty-four hours later I opened the front door, liked a streak of lightning—Molly, bolting out the door. Liana and John chased after her, but losing the trail.

让我们融为一家

我们领养女儿莉安娜时,她才刚刚五岁。最初 莉安娜是我30多年的好朋友琳达在中国收养的。琳 达是一位51岁的单身女人,外表脆弱但内心坚强,有 着复杂的病史。后来丈夫告诉我,1994年圣诞节那 天,当他看到琳达高高兴兴地下了飞机,怀里抱着被 包裹在红布里,手里拿着玩具熊,看上去圆圆的又有 些忧郁的中国孩子时,他就有一种奇怪的感觉:最终 我们会抚养这个孩子。三年后,我的好朋友去世了。 这样,莉安娜来到了我们家。当时我55岁,是名全职 的教辅书编辑,有两个快成年的女儿。我的丈夫48 岁,是一位英文教授。我正期待着过几年没有子女在 家的日子,然后就会有外孙了。从头开始抚养一个精 力充沛的上幼儿园的孩子,说实话,并不在我的计划 当中。

和我们在一起不久, 莉安娜想要只狗。琳达生病的六个月里, 她由不同的家庭轮流抚养, 被那些想让她开心的好心人宠坏了。她已经不习惯听到"不"这个词。我喜欢狗, 但是我已经多出了一份意外的责任, 不想再多一份。最初我们住的小公寓成了我们的借口: 没有足够的空间。但是, 四年后, 我们搬进了大房子, 再也没有理由拒绝莉安娜的恳求了。于是, 我们去了动物收容所。

莫利的尾巴总是摆来摆去。她很温和,却又精力充沛。只要莉安娜和我丈夫约翰承诺会去遛狗,我肯定就能接受拥有一只狗。所以,我们把莫利带回了家。24小时后,当我打开前门时——莫利像一道闪电,突然冲出了门。莉安娜和约翰在后面追她,但还是没了踪影。

Liana came back into the house and cried. In her four years with us, she had rarely ever cried. And she had hardly ever mentioned her adoptive (有收养关系的) mother, my best friend. I almost resented that she seemed to have moved past grief without a second thought. But now she sobbed (啜泣) in sor—row. Her thick black hair stuck to her cheeks, wet with tears. She wrapped her arms around herself, then around me, squeezing hard. She cried for three hours. "She's gone," Liana moaned. "My dog is gone. My mother is dead. I loved my dog. Why did my mother die?"

She hadn't moved past the miserable event. She just concealed it, deep beyond reach, until now.

For John, finding Liana's dog became a mission. Luckily, we had taken some cell-phone photos of Molly and we sent them out to all the shelters in the community. After three weeks I was discouraged. But then we got a call. A woman had claimed spotting a dog matching the description and photos of Molly 15 miles away.

Despite repeated sightings, Molly somehow stayed out of reach. The kind-hearted woman who'd noticed Molly enlisted (得到支持) the neighborhood kids to report sightings. Eventually John hired a team of animal facilitators(帮助者)—they used to be called dog-catchers—and they set out a trap. For another week Molly ignored it until they changed the bait (饵), at John's suggestion, from fish to steak. Then she walked in, and she came home.

For five years now, Molly has slept with Liana every night. When Liana is away, her dog paces. Molly's tail still wags, but she is 7 now, a little staggering and much less troublesome. Liana, a slender beauty of 15 with fashionably black nails and a loyal circle of flashing friends, has moved on to "Twilight"(《暮色》,畅销书名) and the Jonas Brothers(美国偶像组合). She still loves dogs, but a little dog that she can dress up with cute stuff is more preferable. Occasionally it seems as though Liana hardly remembers when her dog ran away and she cried for her dead mother. But John and I remember, because that was the moment that Liana and our lost friend and our lost dog all came together, and we became a family.

《暮色》是美国女作家斯蒂芬妮·梅耶所著的畅销小说,改编成电影后,于2008年秋冬档上映,震惊了北美电影票房,独揽第18届MTV电影奖5项大奖。

莉安娜回到家后哭了。她跟我们一起住了四年,几乎从没哭过。而且她几乎没再提起她的养母,我最好的朋友。看到她这么快就把悲伤抛在脑后,我甚至感到有些怨恨。但是,她现在哭得很伤心。浓密的黑头发贴在面颊上,被泪水打湿了。她用手臂拢住自己,然后抱住了我,使劲抱着。她哭了三个小时。"她走了,"莉安娜呻吟着说,"我的狗跑了,妈妈死了,我爱我的狗,为什么妈妈会死?"

她没有把悲伤抛在脑后。她只是把它藏起来了,藏 得深深的,无法触及,直到现在。

对于约翰来说,找狗成了他的任务。幸运的是,我们用手机给莫利拍过几张照片。我们把照片发给了社区内所有的动物收容所。三周后,我气馁了。但此时我们接到一个电话,一位女士说在15英里之外看到了符合照片和描述的狗。

虽然不断有人看到它,但不知怎么,就是一直捉不 到莫利。那位好心的认出莫利的女士还请社区的孩子 们帮忙,报告在哪里见到莫利。最终,约翰雇了一组动 物帮助者(以前叫捕犬人),他们设了个陷阱。又过了一 个星期,莫利连理都不理。直到在约翰的建议下,他们 把诱饵从鱼换成了牛排。莫利走了进去,然后她回 家了。

到现在五年了,莫利每晚都和莉安娜一起睡。莉安娜不在的时候,莫利会踱步。莫利的尾巴现在还在摇,不过她已经7岁了,步履有点蹒跚,也不怎么捣乱了。莉安娜也长成了15岁的小美人,染着时尚的黑色指甲,有一帮忠诚的活力四射的朋友,兴趣也转移到了《暮光之城》和乔纳斯兄弟上。她仍然喜欢狗,但可以任由她穿上各类可爱饰物的小狗更讨她喜欢。偶尔,好像莉安娜几乎已经记不得她的狗曾经跑走过,而她曾为她死去的母亲哭泣。但是,约翰和我都还记得,因为那一刻,莉安娜、我们去世的好朋友、还有我们跑掉的狗都聚在了一起,我们成了一家人。
