全省现有独立设置的各类成人高等学校28所，

在校学生38,997人。其中广播电视大学1所，教育学院7所，管理干部学院3所，职工高等学校17所；现有专任教师1,635人。此外，普通高等学校设置夜大学8所、函授部5所，共有学生9,541人。

从1984年起实行高等教育自学考试制度，现已开考12个专业，81门课程。至1987年底已有3,353人考试合格，取得毕业证书。高等教育自学考试制度的建立为广大学子开辟了一条自学成才之路。

为了提高教学质量和直接为经济建设服务，江西省普通高校共设有科学研究所（室）65个（其中理工农医科研机构59个，文科科研机构6个）。1978至1986年，在理工农医等方面共取得应用科技成果335项，在哲学和社会科学方面取得成果2,961项，分别达国内和省内先进水平。在省一级以上学术刊物上共发表科研学术论文2,728篇，出版教材、专著949种。对促进学术交流，提高教学质量，推动四化建设的发展，起了积极的作用。

江西省高等教育事业前景光明，现已遵照“教育要面向现代化，面向世界，面向未来”的要求，深入教育改革，加强对外开放，使江西省高等教育事业持续稳定发展，更好地为建设江西服务。

Higher Education in Jiangxi

The province of Jiangxi, also called Gan, is situated south of the middle and lower reaches of the Changjiang (Yangtze) River in southeastern China. It covers an area of more than 166,900 square kilometers, and has a population of more than 35 millions. The province has abundant natural resources, and is one of the main grain production bases in China.

Demands for economic construction and development in Jiangxi province have challenged the province's institutions of higher education to revitalization and a steady series of achievements. Currently there are 30 facilities of higher education in the province, including one comprehensive university, seven institutions of science and technology, two colleges of agriculture and forestry, five colleges of medicine and pharmacy, eight normal universities and colleges, one institute of finance and economics, one institute of political science and law, and five vocational colleges. These institutions enroll a total of 565 graduate students and more than 52,000 undergraduates. They employ 9,198 full time teachers, of whom 187 are professors, 1,590 are associate professors, and 2,442 are lecturers. They have authority to confer Master's Degrees in 56 majors.

In accordance with the policies of opening to the outside world, eight of Jiangxi's institutions of higher education cooperate and engage in academic exchanges with fifteen universities or colleges abroad. Fifteen have in recent years invited an impressive number of foreign teachers and scholars to lecture, both long and short term. At the present time, 42 long-term foreign teachers are employed as full time faculty. Several Chinese teachers and scholars have been sent abroad to be involved in teaching, researches, and other academic activities. Since 1985, foreign students have been accepted to study in Jiangxi Agricultural University, South China Metallurgical Institute, and Jiangxi Institute of Traditional Chinese Medicine.

Jiangxi Province has 28 adult education facilities with a total enrollment of 38,997 students. These schools are Jiangxi Radio and TV University, seven education institutes, three administrator training colleges, and 17 in-service refresher schools. They employ a total of 1,635 full time teachers. In addition, many evening schools and correspondence schools associated with universities and colleges also offer higher education to adults. They enroll a total of 9,541 students.

In 1984, the Jiangxi Province Education Commission launched a Higher Education Certificate Examination System for Self-Instructed Young People. Presently, the program includes 81 courses in 12 majors. By the end of 1987, 3,353 people had passed the examinations and were awarded certificates. The program offers an alternative course of action to young people who have failed their first attempt at the college entrance examination.

In an effort to improve teaching standards and speed economic construction in the province, nearly all universities and colleges in Jiangxi have established research institutes on their own campuses. Of 65 such facilities, six specialize in liberal arts, and 59 specialize in science, technology, agriculture, and medicine. From 1978 to 1986, 335 research projects in science, technology, agriculture, and medicine, and 2,961 projects in liberal arts, have been recognized on the state, or provincial level for both theoretical and practical value. Also between 1978 and 1986, members of the academic communities published 2,728 academic theses, and a total of 949 monographs, textbooks and aids, and creations in extro-provincial publications. Thus, members of Jiangxi's institutions of higher education are actively involved in promoting academic exchanges, improving educational standards, and assisting economic construction.

Acting on the motto, "Facing modernization, the world, and the future," education leaders in Jiangxi anticipate a bright future for higher education in the province. Consistent reforms and continuing academic exchanges with foreign countries will ensure a steady and rational development, enabling the higher education system to adapt to the rapid development of economic construction in Jiangxi Province.
