Passage 3

Billy's Drawing

Billy is very small, and he loves drawing. His mother often draws some for him on old pieces of paper. She is very bad at drawing, but Billy likes her pictures and always wants more.

Then, when Billy is a little older, his mother gives him some pencils and a drawing book, and he begins drawing pictures too, but none of them is beautiful.

Now Billy is six years old. His mother takes out a small blackboard and some pieces of chalk. She asks him to draw a picture of his father. The boy draws and draws. It takes him more than two hours to finish the picture. But he is not happy when he looks at it.

"Well," he says at last to his mother, "I can put a tail on it and make it a dog."

Passage 5

Women in Modern Society

Today, women's life is much better than ever before. In the past women couldn't get a job. They could only stay at home to take care of babies. But now women can get jobs easily and they can do any work as men do.

Now, people cherish girls as much as boys. They say girls and boys are the same. In their homes, husbands also do housework.

Chinese people often say, "Women can hold up half of the sky." In fact, women play a very important role in today's society.

I believe that one day there will be a woman president in China.
