A: Excuse me, Sir. I come to inquire about how to apply for a traveling visa.

B: Here are some forms for you to fill in. Besides, you need to get yourself prepared with some relevant documents. The detailed information is displayed on the bulletin board at the gate.

A: Thank you sir. (A week later)

A: Good morning, sir! Here are my documents.

C: Oh, thank you. Maybe I'll ask you a few questions.

A: That's fine.

C: (Checking the forms) Why did you leave this item vacant?

A: Sorry, sir. I don't quite understand it. What does it mean by "single entry", "double entry", and "multiple entry"? Would you please explain it to me more specifically?

Conversation 2

A: Do you like traveling?

B: Certainly. It's an indispensable part of our life. Owing to the Schengen visa, traveling between most of the European countries becomes much easier.

A: Schengen visa? Can you tell me a bit more about it?

B: OK. The common "Schengen" visa is a visa for short stays for 15 European countries: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain and Sweden.

A: Do you mean I can travel across these countries freely by holding just one visa?

B: Right! The only thing for you to do is to present the visa application to the embassy of the main destination of your journey or the first country you are going to enter.

A: Do I need to prepare some special documents?

B: No, but you must possess a valid visa for the U. K. or some other European countries that won't expire in six months. And sometimes you have to present to the embassy some certificates of your journey, such as the round-trip ticket, the hotel reservation, and the travel insurance.

A: What are the odds of my application?

B: Not so difficult, as long as you get all the necessary documents ready.

A: Thank you for giving me such important information.

B: You're welcome. Good luck!
